SUPERIOR (Retarded) LILY OF THE VALLEY

Our Valley is sought at open prices, with distinctions for a selection of the best developed pip. Introduced a few years ago, it is now being forced very extensively by a large number of celebrated Lily-of-the-Valley growers. It produces strong spikes of flowers, about fifteen inches in height, bearing from twelve to twenty extra large bells.

For forcing, these pips are the very best that can be planted.

THE PRACTICAL BOOK OF Outdoor Rose Growing

FOR THE HOME GARDEN
by
GEORGE C. THOMAS, JR.

Elaborately Illustrated with 96 Perfect Reproductions in Full Color of All Varieties of Roses, and a Few Half-tone Plates. Octavo, Handsome Cloth Binding, in a Slip Case. $4.00 net. Postage Extra.

We have sold a number of copies of this sterling book. One purchaser writes as follows:

HORTICULTURE, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir: Some time ago we ordered a copy of Thomas' Book on Roses. We promised to send you postage as soon as we learned the amount. The book was so good that we forgot all about postage until today. Please forgive our lapse of memory.

We loaned it to a friend and he likes it so well we're afraid that we will have to buy another.

Respectfully,
New York. A. R.

Every rose grower should possess a copy of this book.

Horticulture Publishing Co.

BOSTON.

A BOOK WORTH HAVING.

Dear Sirs:

The last letter we wrote you was an appreciation about Thomas' Book on Roses. We have had a lot of fun following his instructions this last summer and we consider the book worth much more than four dollars. On a test bed of about one hundred roses planted in April, 1915, we grew over thirteen hundred blooms and could have had at least one-third more if we had not pruned out a lot of shoots to give more strength to the bushes. We could write a volume on the value of Thomas' book, but enough said.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Compost for Winter

On any place where plants are grown commercially there should be at all times a supply of soils ready for immediate use for whatever purpose needed. Aim to have a good pile of soil hauled and placed under cover where it can be kept dry. Now is a good time to look into this very important matter, and at the earliest possible date get soil and manure together and work them over at the rate of three of soil to one of manure. Success with any kind of plants depends much on the kind and condition of soil in which they are growing.

Orchids

At this time of the year it will be advisable to modify the temperature in the various departments as growth and root action are not very active from now on. The cool house should be given a night temperature of about 50 to 55 degrees, day with sun about 65 degrees, without sun anywhere from 58 to 60 degrees. The intermediate house can be kept about 55 to 60 degrees at night, with a rise to 70 degrees with sun, but without sun around 65 degrees will do. In the warm house 60 to 65 degrees at night will be high enough with a rise to about 75 degrees during bright days, but during dull days 70 degrees will fill the bill. Now that the shortest days are with us, with less sunshine, more fire heat will again be necessary for all cool orchids. It is better to have a gentle warmth running through the pipes with ventilation than to try to bottle up some heat by shutting down the houses early. Such treatment often produces the right condition for the spread of fungus or spot. By the middle of February the temperature can be increased.

Freesias

From now and up to the middle of January will be in good time to start Easter crop of freesias. Fill 6-inch pans with a rich compost of fibrous loam three parts, and one part of cow or stable manure. Place from 16 to 18 bulbs in each pan and hold at about 50 degrees at night. Water with care until they become well-rooted when they should have plenty. Later on they will stand a temperature of 55 to 58 degrees. Keep them well up to the glass and on all good days give a spraying overhead. As they become tall give some support to keep them upright. When they have filled the pans with roots they can have liquid manure once a week. Move them into more heat or retard with a cooler house as needed to strike the Easter date.

Sweet Peas

During these short days feeding must be done with extreme caution or the plants may drop their buds. Cow manure water well diluted is a safe stimulant, and a light top-dressing of fine bone, pulverized sheep manure or cow manure, not too fresh, can be applied. The surface soil should be loosened after applying the manure, before watering is done. There are several possible causes for the sweet peas dropping their buds. Fumigation with tobacco stems if overdone will cause it, so will the use of nitrate of soda, dried blood, sulphate of ammonia and other fertilizers high in nitrogen. Dryness at the roots would also cause it as would cold draughts. Do not let the temperature go below 48 degrees at night and 50 degrees is better. On dull days let the temperature run up to 58 or 60 degrees, and 5 degrees higher on sunny days will be to their liking.

Winter Protection

Beds and borders containing hardy herbaceous perennials will need a winter mulch, not so much for protection as to prevent the plants from being lifted or loosened by alternating freezing and thawing. Let the soil freeze and cover the surface first sufficiently to keep it in a frozen state for the next two months and a half. This holds good not only with bulb stock but with most of our perennials. This mulch may consist of leaves, straw, coarse manure, hay or any other suitable material which must be kept in position by boards, brush, corn-stalks or some other light covering. Most of the bulbs we make use of for outdoor planting can stand quite a little winter weather but when planted a few inches deep and the soil freezes one week and thaws out the next, only to freeze again, stock suffers and frequently perishes if this happens often enough.

Placing Seed Order

Whenever the 1916 catalogues come to hand, make up your lists and send them in without delay. This will give the seedsman a chance to deliver your order early. There are plenty of seedsmen saying they can fill orders the same or next day after receipt of order, but this does not hold good during the rush season from now on. The seedsmen advertising their business in HORTICULTURE are the leaders in the trade and they can supply everything you will require.

Next Week:—Asparagus; Fuchsias; Gardenias; Geraniums; Primulas for Next Christmas; Starting a Diary.

INDEX TO VOLUME XXII

Those of our subscribers who bind their volumes of Horticulture or who for any other reason may wish to have the index to the contents of Vol. XXII—July 1 to December 31, 1915, will be supplied on application. THEY ARE NOW READY.

Rudbeckia

When a florist selects the fairest of the world's produce regardless of origin and nativity. But supposing we should once be called on to draw the line and select the fairest to be shown in the January issue of their gardens. Would our gardens perceptibly lack beauty in color and effect? Not a whit. The flora of our country affords a surprisingly high number of worthy plant species. As a few I mention Coreopsis lanceolata grandiflora, hardy asters, golden rod, Philox divaricata canadensis, Lilium superbum, Cypripedium acaule and the wonderful Cypripedium spectabile. Last, not least, I call attention to the subject of this note—the genus Rudbeckia, so truly American. The garden varieties and here particularly the well known Rudbeckia laciniata Golden Glow rank among the showiest garden flowers of the world. Unpretentious as to soil, exposure and care it is a glorious perennial for mass effects and in a cut state a most useful material for indoor decoration. Its spreading root growth, allowing frequent divisions, is no doubt accountable for its wide distribution but in the end its decorative qualities have made the Golden Glow the perennial of the people, seen everywhere.

Appreciation of the single medium-high yellow varieties, Rudbeckia Newmannii, nitida and subtomentosa is evidenced by the liberal space they are granted on our herbaceous borders. The characteristic dark center contrasting beautifully with the bright yellow petals, the free-flowering habit and the fact that they continue blooming for at least two months make single rudbeckias well nigh indispensable. Less known appears to be the tall-growing Rudbeckia maxima distinguishable by its attractive glaucous foliage and large bright yellow single flowers. A clump of this variety with its many long-petaled blossoms borne on slender but wiry stems swaying in a light breeze is indeed a fascinating sight.

The more robust growing Giant Purple Cone flower—Rudbeckia purpurea—is also a valuable garden flower.

larity. Equally valuable for garden effect as for filling vases, producing flowers from 4 to 5 inches across, with deep claret-red petals surrounding the large cone-shaped dark brown center, this variety is indeed a very showy midsummer perennial. Raised from seed sown in spring, it flowers the second year. Our illustration shows the effect of a plantation of two-year-old plants. Well manured ground and open sunny exposure are essentials if perfection of growth is desired. Do not divide or transplant Rudbeckia purpurea late in fall. As a rule it does not take kindly to this treatment. Spring is the better time for planting and propagating.

Genista (Cytisus)

Two species of the Genista—properly Cytisus—commonly grown by the florist, are C. carnariensis and C. racemosus, both evergreen forms.

They are usually propagated by seeds sown in February or by cuttings of the green wood struck in sand any time from December to February. As soon as rooted, they should be potted and thereafter shifted as necessary. To obtain bushy plants they should be pinched back from time to time and should not be allowed to become pot-bound. The young plants should be kept under glass all summer and shaded a little. By winter, they will be in five-inch pots.

In the fall, the plants are placed in a cool, light, airy house and watered carefully. Do not force them with a higher temperature. About the first of January they may be given 55 degrees. Red spider is an enemy of this plant and syringing should be attended to regularly. The plants will be in full bloom in March and will find a ready Easter sale. By giving them a night temperature of 45 degrees they can be had in flower in April. Cut the plants back when they are through flowering and repot as soon as they start new growth. After repotting keep them in a closed house and well syringed until all danger of wilting is over. After that give them plenty of air. A slightly shaded house will be of advantage. During the summer—July and August—the old plants may be plunged out of doors.

Genistas may also be propagated by layers or by grafting. For ordinary grafting, C. nigricans is used as the stock, while for standards, Laburnum vulgare is commonly employed. For those plants grown in the greenhouse, C. carnariensis is used.

C. racemosus is the better commercial plant. It is also known as Genista formosa. A variety—Everestiana—has flowers of a deeper yellow shade and is very free flowering. C. carnariensis is the common genista. It has yellow fragrant flowers and blooms from May to July. C. maderensis is not as good as the other two. It has yellow flowers and has but little fragrance. C. scoparius—Scotch broom—also known as Sarothamnus scoparius, is a hardy shrub growing to a height of ten feet, good for naturalizing and covering unsightly and exposed banks, etc.

The First Potting

The batch of cuttings that was put into sand the latter part of November or the first days of December, will now be ready for potting. Make sure that the pots are clean. More trouble with young plants can be traced to dirty pots than to any other cause. The first potting should be in 2½-inch pots. Two-inch pots are too small—not for the cuttings but because the plants have to be shifted into larger pots so soon after the first potting, thus making much more work. We use no crock at all in the small pots unless the soil happens to be heavy. Then a little screened coal ashes will do very nicely. Use only enough to cover the bottom of the pot slightly. Make sure that the cuttings are put deep enough for shallow potting is not very desirable. If the cuttings are not put in deep enough trouble will be experienced when syringing later on and then the plants will not break as freely from the bottom after they are set in the benches. We find we get much better stems from plants that were potted deep enough at the first potting. Use nice porous soil, not too heavy, as the roots will work into lighter soil much easier. The heavy soil can be used later for repotting into the larger pots. Use only about a four-inch potful of bonemeal to a wheelbarrow of soil. If more were to be used it might damage the roots as these are very tender the first week or so on leaving the sand.

Where to Put the Plants

The best and sunniest bench on the place is none too good. We generally take out the old plants and about two inches of soil with them. The rest of the soil is left in the bench and after getting a good coat of fresh air-slacked lime, is covered with two inches of finely screened ashes. These have to be quite fine, otherwise the pots will not set good. Needless to say, the ashes should be leveled, as should the soil before the lime and ashes are put on. See that there is no lime sticking out through the ashes anywhere on the bench for if the pots were set on this it would soon stop up the drain in the bottom of each and the plants would not thrive. Where labor does not matter so much it would be a good plan to take out all the soil in the benches, wash these out and whitewash them. Then put on two or three thicknesses of newspaper and spread the screened ashes over this. There will be no danger then of the young stock contracting any disease or insects from the old soil.

Care in the Propagator

If the sand in the propagator is to be used again great care should be taken to remove all dead leaves, pieces of broken roots, and cuttings. If any of this were to remain in the sand, fungus would attack these remains and then when the new lot of cuttings came in chances are that it would spread to these too and cause trouble. Where sand is cheap and labor not considered it would be well to use fresh sand after thoroughly cleaning the benches. With care, however, we have used the same sand three or four times without any trouble whatever.

Shading the Cuttings After Potting

It will be necessary to shade the newly potted cuttings carefully the first few days. For this purpose use two thicknesses of old newspaper for the first three or four days. One sheet can then be used and, depending on the weather, can be left off an hour in the morning and taken off an hour earlier at night. This time can be prolonged as the roots take hold and finally the plants are shaded only at noon when the sun is very bright. Should air currents in the house pick up the papers, sprinkle them over now and then with the hose. Growers sometimes scatter a little earth over the papers to hold them down, but this is not very good for in taking the papers off some of the earth is bound to get into the pots, and these are then apt to get a little too full here and there, which will upset the evenness of their drying out.

The President's message

We give especial prominence this week to the very sanguine and inspiring greeting of the new President of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists. We hope his rosy predictions of advancement in numbers and usefulness for the Society and its members may be abundantly fulfilled. The horticultural industries have, in the S. A. F. as constituted today, one of the most serviceable agencies ever devised for concentrated energy which shall in return benefit all. Mutual helpfulness is the keynote of such an institution and if that is freely forthcoming, substantial progress is assured. Let everyone—North, East, South, West—give the new president the support which he solicits.

The year 1915 has been a memorable one and memorable events have followed one another in rapid succession. It came in with foreboding signs and hurried with incredible moments and all of suddenness. Whether it has done for us or failed to do for us as individuals or as a profession, it has settled beyond recall and it is for us now to face the young dawn of the New Year with the hope that "every atom and tolls as tomorrow will be better." Remembering the quotation that "Things at the worst will pass, let us climb upward to what they were before" and with the unmistakable evidence all around us that the worst is over and decisive improvement well under way, we can now readily forget and forgive the past for all its deficiencies and move on into the sunlight and the promise of a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Retrogression

House Bill 636 introduced by Representative Anderson, providing for the abolishment of the special mail rates which have applied to seeds for a period of more than a generation, and substituting therefor regular merchandise rates, is a retrogressive measure on which Congress should waste no time. Seeds are the foundation of all prosperity and the action taken so long ago as a stimulus to their wide distribution was a recognition of this fact, as was also the custom of sending out free seeds, in its original intent. The latter under present methods, as everybody knows, has come into disrepute, but we fail to see how the government can consistently put the burden of double postage rates upon the small garden planters who pay for their seeds, while at the same time it is loading the mails annually with eighty or ninety million packets of gift seeds on which no postage whatever is paid. If any change is to be made in postage on seeds, let it be in the direction of lower, not higher, rates. It costs no more to transport and deliver seeds than it does periodicals and it would be a mighty poor grade of seed that would not exceed in its worth to the people some of the literature that finds its way into the second-class mail.

A New Year Wish

In a very interesting pamphlet on Credit Policies sent out by a western lumber concern, the last words are "A Sale is only a Loss until the bill is paid." We venture to suggest that very few of our readers have ever regarded their business transactions quite in that light and yet the losses due to credit giving—even that which is carefully considered as well as that given indiscreetly—occur to all of us with a frequency which should be sufficient to convince us of the hard truth underlying the aforesaid conclusion. Eagerness to make sales, to increase the gross amount of business transacted and quantity of goods handled, is undoubtedly the largest factor in loading up our ledgers with accounts collectible—so-called, but too often far from it. We are now at that period of the year when balances are struck and more or less effort is made to clear things up and start with a new clean slate. If we can do this with our collections it will be easy to do it with our payments. On the other hand, if we do it with our payments we help the other man to do his part also. The process of annual settling-up has usually been prolific in failures. If this January should prove the reverse it will be very pleasing and a fine testimonial to the growing stability of commercial horticulture and its allied industries. In extending the compliments of the season to the trade we can think of no better wish than that all may be able to collect in full and to pay in full, everything that the year 1915 has left on the books.

NEW YEAR'S GREETING

There is no day in all the year that brings more expectant joy to the heart of every man than the advent of a new year. The privilege, as President of the S. A. F. and O. H. of extending to its members and to their families the sincere wish for a happy and prosperous New Year, gives me extreme pleasure.

There is no doubt whatever in my mind but that it will be a prosperous year, and inasmuch as prosperity and happiness go hand in hand, I can readily assume that it will be a happy one. Trade conditions throughout the country are very healthy. We have harvested the largest crops in our history and this is the back-bone of prosperity in any country.

We have more to hope for in the year 1916 than we have ever had before. Our Country has been saved from the horrible calamity which has overwhelmed Europe and we are hopeful that we will be spared from such a fate, not only this year, but for all years to come.

It is with great personal gratification that I can look upon the S. A. F. and O. H. as more truly a National Body than it has ever been. The Convention held in San Francisco in 1915, was in my opinion, a step forward. Its convening in Houston, Texas, in 1916 will be another step toward making it a really National Organization in every sense of the word. By extending our Conventions to the West and South, we not only benefit those sections, but the Society itself gains much by securing large numbers of recruits from the new territory which has thereby become attached to it. Every section of the country is benefited, and the members are already drawn closer together than ever before, forming a universal brotherhood for the promotion of all that is beneficial to the individual and to the Society as a whole.

As the President of this worthy Organization I am proud to be able to send a kind greeting to all the craftsmen of the Society. Our membership is increasing steadily and I know that it will continue to do so. This larger membership will make it possible for us to undertake in the future many things that would be otherwise impossible. I am particularly desirous that every man associated with our profession should have the opportunities which our Society affords and as a slight stimulant toward increasing our membership, I am offering $150 in gold the same as was done by my predecessor, Mr. P. Welch. This I will hand to Mr. John Young, secretary, as an award to the member who will bring in the largest number of new members between the period January 1 and July 31, 1916—the only stipulation being that the winner must bring at least thirty new members.

I hope that the Vice-President in every state, as well as every member of the Board of Directors, and every permanent committee, will co-operate with me in pushing forward this endeavor to increase our membership. In order that these heads may attain the required success it will be necessary for every individual who is fortunate enough to be a member of the S. A. F. and O. H. to give forth his best efforts, for "In Unity there is Strength," and if these efforts are put forth untiringly, we will beyond a doubt soon have a membership list three times what it is today.

It is the sincere desire of this Society to build up a permanent Institution founded on a pillar of fairness and goodwill, and I hope every member will lend his efforts to this end.

Again extending a message of hearty good wishes and unbounded blessings for the New Year, I am,

Faithfully yours,

President.

MISSOURI STATE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Missouri State Horticultural Society will be held at the Planters' Hotel, St. Louis, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, January 12, 13 and 14, 1916. A cordial invitation is extended to all having any interest in fruits, flowers or vegetables. The St. Louis Florists' Club is cooperating, and will be represented at the sessions, and joins the society in extending an invitation to fellow workers from all parts of the state and elsewhere.

Thursday morning session, Jan. 13, will be devoted to floricultural topics, the program for this session being as follows:

Floriculture and the State, Prof. J. C. Blair, University of Illinois, Urbana.
Cultivation of Flowers under Glass.

Outdoor Flower Gardening, J. Bourdett, St. Louis.

Hardy Trees, Shrubs and Herbaceous Plants for the Missouri Home, W. W. Ohlweiler, Mo. Botanical Garden, St. Louis.

Novelties in Fruits and Flowers, A. Jaenicke, St. Louis.

The Pursuit of Beauty, John Noyes, Mo. Botanical Garden, St. Louis.

An Official Flower for Missouri, Miss Marie Goodman, Kansas City.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., will be held at 1214 F Street, Northwest, Tuesday evening, January 4. The officers of the club are planning an extensive entertainment for that evening.

At the last meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society, officers for 1916 were elected as follows: President, Henry Halbig; vice-president, Max Schneider; treasurer, Edward A. Manda; secretary, Geo. W. Strange.

The Florists and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island held a well attended meeting, Monday evening, Dec. 27, in Swart's Lodge Hall, Providence. Plans were made for the installation of officers on Jan. 24 and at that time the club will have its annual feast and entertainment. A committee composed of Robert Johnston, Eugene A. Appleton and Al Macrae were appointed to have charge of the arrangements. The supper is to be followed by an entertainment. After the business session of the meeting, the members engaged in a beneficial discussion of subjects allied with the trade. S. A. G.

The National Cooperative Committee of the National Association of Gardeners has issued a communication to local horticultural societies to supply a series of papers on horticultural subjects for discussion at their monthly meetings during the year 1916. The committee announces that this offer is also extended to any other horticultural organization or educational institution and it will be glad to hear from those that would be interested to receive the papers, which will be provided as outlined in its letter. If any of the horticultural societies or clubs have been overlooked and not received a letter, but desire to obtain this service, the committee asks them to communicate with the secretary, M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J. This service will be free of any expense to the local societies, the motive for this offer being solely to arouse a greater interest in horticulture and to develop a greater cooperative spirit among those engaged in the profession of gardening.

"A REMARKABLE CAREER".

An observing correspondent sends the following—

The velvet poinsettia is seen everywhere in all seasons. It has had a remarkable career. It was disseminated by the florists' supply houses only recently, but has proven so prolific that not only all florists but all other stores can furnish it in quantity. Its keeping qualities are unsurpassed—what is not sold this year, can be kept till the next. Unlike most flowers, its holiday price is more "reasonable" than at any other time. It combines well with other prepared material and saves the retail florist a trip to the wholesale market where his money would be spent. The regular color is red, but white ones have lately appeared which will help in funeral work, and in due time we may expect to see them come in blue and orange. So popular has the velvet poinsettia become that its originators and disseminators are now turning their attention to the introduction of thistles and other attractive offerings, and if equally successful will soon eliminate the ice box nuisance from the flower store!

DINNER TO THEODORE WIRTH.

A dinner was given by two hundred citizens of Minneapolis at the Minneapolis Club to Park Superintendent Theodore Wirth in honor of the tenth anniversary of his assuming his position. Following the toasts a handsome silver service was presented to Mr. Wirth.

In his response, Mr. Wirth showered praise on the founders of the park system and on his fellow workers, and detailed the history of the park system.

"Three main features of our parks appealing to us," Mr. Wirth said, "are the strong support of the citizens in the upbuilding of the recreation grounds, the harmonious spirit of our executive boards, and the completeness of the plan and its execution. Our parks are not detached, but connected in a chain of drives, lakes, gardens and groves. That is largely because few changes have been made in the personnel of the board of commissioners and the officers, and because of the absence of politics in the work."

"We will need but little more land, and our main work is to provide for play spaces. We must be willing to pay as we go, by assessments, for we can get little more by bond issues."

Mr. Winston was chairman and Mr. Snyder, toastmaster. Each program carried a photograph of Mr. Wirth.

BRITISH HORTICULTURE.

Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society

This flourishing Society held its winter show in London on Dec. 8th. A high standard was reached in the quality of the blooms. An award of merit was granted to Mrs. Mackay Edgar, a very fine light pink bloom, described as an improved May Day. This was shown by Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park, Enfield, Middlesex. There was only one exhibit in the class for American novelties distributed since Jan. 1st, 1912, for the challenge cup offered by the American Carnation Society. This was secured by Wells & Co., who showed excellent samples of Laura Webber, Champion, and Pink Sensation. The best vase of British raised seedlings, shown by Countess Derby, was awarded Mrs. Norman's challenge cup. In the trade section the following awards were made: Gold medals, Allward Bros. and Stuart Low & Co.; large silver medals, A. F. Dutton and J. C. Jenner; silver gilt, J. West; large silver medal, W. Cutbush & Sons; silver medal, Misses Price and Fyfe.

New Chrysanthemums.

The floral committee of the National Chrysanthemum Society have granted first-class certificates to the following new varieties: Crimson Velvet, a decorative single, crimson, with broad golden zone, by Wells & Co. December Bronze, a golden bronze market variety, by Cragg, Harrison & Cragg. James Fraser, deep sulphur yellow, exhibition, Wells & Co. Yellow Perfection, yellow single, and December Beauty, reddish bronze single, by Norman Davis.

Charging a "Gate" at Kew.

Commencing on January 1 the public are to be charged for admission to the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew. Hitherto this splendid collection of floral treasures has been free to the public any day in the week, and the privilege of inspecting the gardens and conservatories has been largely taken advantage of by visitors from all parts of the world. In 1914 the number of persons who visited the gardens totalled 4,082,011, and there has been no noticeable falling off this year. Kew Gardens have been pre-eminent in the botanical world since 1773. In the preceding year George III was induced to send one of the gardeners to the Cape of Good Hope, "providing his expenses do not exceed £200 a year," and he brought back forty species of new plants. This collection placed the gardens at Kew above the Paris Jardin des Plantes and the Upsala Botanic Gardens, both of which previously claimed to possess the finest variety of plants in Europe. Afterwards collectors were sent at the expense of the government to India, China, Brazil, Fiji, Australia and the Philippines. The present proposal, which is made on economical grounds, is being stoutly resisted by the residents in the district. The local Borough Council has appointed a deputation to make a protest to the Board of Agriculture.

THE HORTICULTURIST AS KING.

ANONYMOUS. THE HORTICULTURIST AS KING. THE HORTICULTURIST AS KING. THE HORTICULTURIST AS KING.

Satan of the passions regarding our future, tremble as with their castles.

"To him that overcometh, will I grant to sit with me in my throne." But how is it down here? Thou crownest him with power and honor. Thou hast put all things under his feet."

Into fields where feet of angels come not, we are chosen as partners of the Heavenly Father to make this a more fruitful and beautiful world.

In our work, the details on our attitude regarding our calling. We can plod like an ox or like Markam's semi-brute man with the hoe and make that the badge of servitude to toil, or we can make it a wand in a magician's hand to call forth radiant forms of beauty from the somber earth to smile upon us and load the air with fragrance. We can live down in the basement of Horticulture or in the upper story.

Man is coming to his own. The savage trembled at the lightning stroke which shivered the mighty oak. Little knew he that here was a giant at play waiting to be tamed and harnessed so he could be the most obedient servant—ready at the Master's beck to leap a continent, dive under an ocean, draw heavy trains, and run acres of machinery. Man reaches out his wand and steam, gas, and oil rise up to do his will.

If, with the advance of civilization, he wants beautiful things to adorn person or home, he finds subterranean gardens of precious gems almost priceless in value—gems that are immortelles—flowers that never fade—prophets all of the "glory to be revealed."

You have heard of the marvelous Persian garden of gems—four hundred feet in length and ninety feet wide—made to imitate the most beautiful blooms of earth. It cost millions upon millions. Do you know that it is in your power, with the advance of floriculture, to create gardens far more resplendent in beauty—great gardens of delight fit for the touch of angel's feet, while the whole is flooded with billows of sweetest perfume. Three years ago that was a patch of barren earth. Now you have pulled down a section of paradise upon it and condensed there the tints of the morning, the splendors of the evenings, the beauty of the rainbow, and the effulgence which flames in the mantels of the suns.

I love to think of Nature as a person—first born daughter of God. Her head white with the snows of the centuries, her cheeks radiant with the flush of recurrent springtime, emblems of eternal youth. She takes you by the hand, leads you into the forests, talks to you of the soul of the tree, tells you how intelligent it is. There is one standing in the open. It has performed a feat no civil engineer can emulate. Think of those roots so busily scurrying around in the earth, gathering food to send up the cambium high-way to nourish the tree. See the tent cords thrown out to anchor it against the storms. Look at those trees on the outskirts. Among wild animals the strongest are on guard on the outside to protect the herd. So

SUMMER BEDDING AT HIGHLAND PARK, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Formal bedding in park adornment has not been done as extensively in recent years as formerly. It had been overdone and inappropriately done and this abuse was the cause of its discredit. But the instance shown in the accompanying picture will certainly not offend but appeal rather to the judgment of any person with an eye to the fitness of things. The public parks of Rochester stand second to none in this country as furnishing examples of good taste and judgment in planting. Most of the planting is of natural character, presenting many marvelous views and charming vistas. That a bit of neat formal plant adornment is not despised even in Highland Park, our illustration of the scrollwork on the slopes of the reservoir at the entrance of the park goes to prove.

these sentinel trees guard their wards against the storms. Fool man cuts down the guards and the wards fall before the sweep of the storms. Mother Nature—dear friendly soul—takes you into her holy of holies and reveals her mysteries. She makes a confident of you. She throws open her doors and shows you the wide vistas of a new land you may enter and glorify. Follow her direction and what a friend you have. Cross her, thinking you know more than she does, and she laughs at you. She takes you into the garden and the nursery and discloses her wonders and helps you to work miracles. You plant seeds and bulbs, and beauty rises to greet you. Did you ever think of the royal position of the florist and horticulturist?

The sacred poet speaks of the "labor of the olive." What a flood of light that opens upon us. "All things are yours." Let us go out into the grove you have planted. I once took off my hat to myself. While living in the Republican valley near the 100th meridian, I planted some bull pine seed. When the little trees were large enough, I transplanted them in rows six feet apart and started a miniature forest. Twenty-five years after I went to see them. The rows were straight. The trees had fine bodies six inches through. They were miniature columns in a temple, holding up a canopy of green. The ground was covered with a thick carpet of needles. It was one of the most pleasing sights I ever saw. Then I thought, "What if I had planted forty acres?" I would have had a Mecca to which horticultural pilgrims would have flocked from hundreds of miles. I planted the trees and the faithful servants had kept on working day and night and that beautiful grove was the result. Every tree you plant is your servant and how faithful it is—no shirking—always at it whether you are looking or not. Look at that cherry tree. How the tiny rootlets scurry through the soil—loyal children gathering food to send up to their mother. Look at that flood of bloom. Then the fruit grows till a mass of red gleams from the leafy coverts. There is a great difference between a patch of brown earth and your faithful Jonathan. What a marvel that little patch of soil, absolutely milked by those busy foragers, and the extracts of it glowing in red beauty on the tree. Talk of chemists. Those quiet rootlets surpass them all.

If you want to be in the realm of miracles, lay down your hoe a while and sit among your flowers. Your brain devised the plan, your hand planted the seeds and bulbs. "Behold the lilies, how they grow." Now sit there and think it out. At your feet are artists no human skill may imitate. Two peonies grow side by side. Golden harvest opens with yellow petals fading to purest white. In the center is a miniature Festiva Maxima—blood drops and all. How can those roots send up the golden tints; the snowy white and the red, and never have the colors mixed? Close by is a Plutarch, deep brilliant red. The roots intermingle. How is it possible to pick out of the dull soil, Nature's eternal drab, that brilliant color for your peony? There are your Irises—the newer sorts absolutely indescribable. There are a dozen different shades in a single bloom. But those blind artists at work in their subterranean studios never make a mistake. The standards must have just such colors, the falls just such tints, and where did they get that dazzling radiant reflex such as you see on Perfection Monsignor and Black Knight? But it is always there shimmering in the sunlight. There is a fairy—a pure snowy queen. How was that sweetness and purity ever extracted from the scentless soil? Every bloom uncorks a vial of perfume which has the odor of the peach blossom.

Did you ever sit down in your Kingdom and see what a royal throne you occupied? What a reception your flowers give you. The ambrosia and nectar of the feasts of the deities of fable are overshadowed by the fragrance and sweetness of your worshippers. It would seem that every flower, like a royal subject, was bent on rendering the most exalted honor to her king.

No company of maidens preparing for nuptials were ever arrayed like these. The highest art ever displayed in the palaces of kings hasn't any comparison to the beauty and splendor of your reception. By divine right you are supreme. The fertile soil puts her tributes at your feet. For you all the viewless influences of nature are at work. For you the sun shines and the showers fall. So brothers, don't creep, but mount up as on eagles' wings. Don't live all the while in the basement. Spend some time in the upper story of your calling.

You are not making the earth weep blood. You are not spreading on the fields a carpet of mangled forms. You are not dropping ruin and death from the skies or polluting God's pure waters with submarines. You are not turning all your energies into the work of destruction, despoiling the treasures of art and the pride of the ages and turning the fairest portions of the earth into desolations. You are not changing yourselves into demons to gloat over starvation and ruin.

See what you have done! You have clothed the dreary plain with gardens, orchards, and forests. Instead of the air sodden with tears and tremulous with the wail of widows and orphans, you are welcomed with the joy of children and the delight of mothers. When you pass on to the land where "everlasting spring abides" may you receive the royal welcome "Well done, good and faithful servant."

SAN FRANCISCO.

D. Raymond of the Garden City Potteries Co. has left for the east to look over the products of some of the pottery factories.

Jesse I. Jewell and Guy E. Grosse have opened an agency in Santa Rosa, Cal., for the well-known Fancher Creek and Kirkman nursery products.

Violet shippers enjoyed a very heavy demand for violets the week before Christmas. The American Express Co. had to put on an extra car to care for the final orders.

John H. W. Field has withdrawn from the recently organized Bay Counties Seed Co. at 404 Market street, leaving his partner, E. Milton Tonini, sole proprietor of the business.

The week before Christmas, Pelicano, Rossi & Co. maintained a branch at 135 Sutter street to relieve the congestion at their main shop on Kearny street. Plants were featured at the temporary location and a very satisfactory clean-up was reported.

The Art Floral Co. on Powell street was obliged to secure additional space to handle its holiday trade, the overflow from the main shop being stored in a large basement across the street, where it could be reached on short order. P. Epstein reported this their best Christmas business.

News Items From Everywhere

BOSTON.

The Florists' Bowling Association resumed its schedule on Thursday evening, Dec. 30.

Ladies' Night at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be on January 18, 1916, at which time the new officers will be installed. The date of the annual banquet, which will take place at the American House, has been set for February 9th.

The most remarkable case of long-keeping of violets that we have seen was a shipment of flowers of the old Parma single from California which was received in Penn's store a few days before Christmas. Fragrance was gone, of course, but many of the flowers retained their color and crisp, fresh appearance most surprisingly.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., have opened out on to three floors in the building which they acquired adjoining their original building on South Market and have been remodeling. One floor is devoted to the draughting work of the landscape department, and another to the vegetable seed department, materially relieving the congestion in the old quarters.

John P. McCarty, for the last eight years with P. Carbone, severed his connection there on Dec. 31, and took a position for M. Rice Co., of Phila. He will travel over the northern and western section formerly covered by R. Schalk. Having traveled for Mr. Carbone for the last four years over the same route he has made a lot of friends who wish him success in his new position.

CHICAGO.

The first Purity freesia arrived Christmas week. It is large and long stemmed.

Not much need of new price lists. Christmas is over but Christmas prices remain.

Sam Pearce cut his first jonquils December 16, and will cut steadily untill spring.

Miss O'Neil, bookkeeper at Geo. Reinberg's wholesale store had a sad Christmas, her father having passed away on the 24th.

La Grippe is no respecter of persons and many florists are in its clutches. E. Wienhoeber the north shore florist is one of them.

Probably violet sales touched the million mark Christmas week. Think of bunching one million violets! Who wouldn't rather have the returns?

The arrival of six Ficus elastica from Mississippi caused the express company a little unusual work to deliver. They required a 20 foot box and were safely set down at the Winterson's Seed Store where they were already sold at ten dollars each.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Joseph E. Koppelman has decided to move his greenhouses from Oaklawn to Riverside. A contract has been let for the taking down of six houses which are of iron construction for the most part. This will add to his Riverside range two houses 30 by 200, two 30 by 150, and two 20 by 150. Greater access to the Providence market is one of the reasons for the change of location.

William E. Chappell, Secretary of the Florists and Gardeners' Club, is slowly recovering from the serious injuries which he received a week ago by a fall in his home, although he is not able to get around and take care of his business. Mr. Chappell was going down the cellar stairs of his home when one of the top treads gave way and he fell nearly to the cellar bottom. His left leg was caught in such a way that the muscles were badly sprained and made it necessary to keep off his feet for several days.

The severe snow and wind storm which visited Rhode Island last Sunday, when the wind attained a new record of 82 miles an hour, did considerable damage to property. The chimney on the Hamden Meadows Greenhouses was blown over, but fortunately the houses escaped the shower of brick. Work was immediately begun to rebuild the chimney and they succeeded in saving the stock in the houses. The wind ripped out the end of one of the houses of the Norwood Floral Company and a portion of the roof. There were few houses that did not lose more or less glass. Fortunately the temperature hovered around the freezing mark and this allowed repairs to be made without the loss of stock.

Chatham, N. J.—After some spirited bidding in Referee Atwood L. DeCoster's court of bankruptcy, transformed temporarily into an auction room, the realty holdings of Samuel Lum, florist, were sold on Dec. 20, for $26,050 by Corra N. Williams, trustee in bankruptcy. The successful bidder was Elmer King, a Morris County attorney and Mayor of Netcong, who represented a combination of creditors with claims against the Lum estate aggregating about $25,000.

Mr. Lum in his schedules placed a valuation of $96,120 on the real estate. He valued his residence at $5,000, the greenhouses at $28,000 and the personal property, including the greenhouse stock, at $1,150. In addition to the mortgage creditors, those unsecured appear to have claims aggregating $39,054. The Madison Trust Company and the Centerville Bank of New York are the principal creditors who joined in the bid on the property through Mr. King.

Chrysanthemums, Roses, Carnations and Hardy Plants. The most attractive and readable catalogue in its class which has come to our desk this season. It lists the cream of the new things and the illustrations are very fine.

John H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.—An 8-page pamphlet illustrated with views of Mr. Dunlop's magnificent new floral store on Adelaide St., Toronto. Prices of design work, flowers and plants are given, and it will prove useful to the buying public, who are waiting to know.

H. G. Hastings Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Catalogue No. 51 of Hastings' Seeds, Spring 1916. One of the catalogues that impress by their originality and unlikeness to those sent out by "the other fellow." Cover in colors, showing Hastings Prolific Corn on front and Kleckley Sweet Watermelon and Red-field Beauty Tomato on back.

W. Atlee Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa.—Burpee's Annual. "The Plain Truth About Seeds That Grow" is again told in this bright and interesting publication in the same convincing way as in years past. The covers show Sweet Pea Fiery Cross and Blue Bantam Pea and Golden Bantam Sweet Corn in natural colors. The novelty lists are lengthy and there are four pages in colors, one of these showing Fordhook Hybrid Gladioli.

Knight & Struck Co., New York.—1916 General Catalogue. Similar in style, binding, etc., to its predecessors, blue covers, and mailed in a box of corresponding tint. This year's edition is a volume of 336 pages, and being in fine print and minus illustrations, contains an exhaustive list of seeds, plants, bulbs, etc., hardy and tender, with a vast amount of descriptive text and cultural notes and gardening advice. It is unique in its way.

Watkins & Simpson, Ltd., London, England.—Foreign and Colonial Wholesale Catalogue of Vegetables and Flower Seeds, 1916. As a wholesale catalogue this publication has few equals in its typographical excellence, completeness and direct value to the trade. It is well illustrated with portraits of novelties and established favorites in the flower seed line especially. A frontispiece shows the extensive new building now in course of erection Sutton & Sons, Reading, England—Amateur's Guide in Horticulture for 1916. Truly a superb production. 188 pages, magnificently illustrated, several full-page pictures in colors included. Ever to the fore in the raising of improved strains of vegetables, Messrs. Sutton are now offering for the first time a number of new varieties, prominent among which are two fine marrowfat Peas—"The V. C." and "Lord Kitchener." In the potato section a new weight-producing maincrop variety has been added to the unique strain of pedigree seedlings, the distribution of which was commenced in 1912. This latest introduction, Sutton's Gordon Castle, should prove of exceptional interest in view of the national importance of the potato crop.

A large number of pages are devoted to flower seeds. The list is conveniently compiled in alphabetical sequence and includes the many well-known specialties which adorn thousands of public and private gardens. Two magnificent colored plates call for special mention. These represent the

A Bargain.

On pier 27, North Wharves, Philadelphia, there were sold at 1 P. M. on Wednesday, Dec. 22, 1915, 294 cases of imported nursery stock for the munificent sum of $13.40. The stock was mostly astilbe and dicentra clumps; it also contained gladiolus, Iris germanica and montbretia bulbs. Of the 294 cases only 13 cases were of boxwood, rhododendrons and azaleas. The appraised value of these two shipments was about $600. Nobody in the trade seems to have gotten wise to the sale—at least they did not attend, and besides there was only 24 hours' notice of the sale. The stock was supposed to be damaged, due to its delay in reaching this country. Some of it was as much as 50 days overdue.

Notes.

W. H. De Graaf of Leyden, Holland, is expected to arrive in this country in March on his annual business tour.

The strawberry growers of Abington, Mass., are planning to organize in order that they may better handle the output of the big strawberry fields. Abington is second in the strawberry growing towns of the state and the fame of "the Abington berry" is spreading. The growers have been handling the output independently, but it is believed better results may be obtained through unity.

David Burpee has been elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father, as a member of the board of directors of the Market Street National Bank of Philadelphia. Mr. Burpee, while comparatively young in years has a sound business training and inherits his father's traits and character in a high degree. As head of the house of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., he will undoubtedly uphold and upbuild the prestige of the establishment and acquit himself well in whatever further honors may be in store for him.

The first shipment of potash to be made from the Utah mines, which are now being developed to manufacture potash from alunite, will, according to a telegram to the "Manufacturers' Record" from Chas. H. MacDowell, president of the Armour Fertilizer Works, which controls the plant, be sent in cotton bags to one of the fertilizer plants of the Armour Company at Jacksonville, Fla. Wiring from Salt Lake City, Mr. MacDowell adds:

"The mine is developing splendidly, and the process is working entirely satisfactorily, and the product is superior to the imported potash. The first car analyzed 93 per cent. sulphate of potash."

ERLANGAEA TOMENTOSA.

Flowering plants of Erlangea tomentosa were much admired at the Farquhar nurseries at Dedham, Mass., on the occasion of the visit of the gardeners. The plant is quite similar to a Eupatorium in character and form of flowers with sage-like foliage and heliotrope colored flowers in ample panicles. It continues in bloom for two or three months and makes a very pretty winter subject for the greenhouse.

Houston, Tex.—Fresh pears, the second crop of the season, were a unique dish appearing on a number of Christmas tables in this section. After the August 16 storm, when the trees were stripped of leaves, trees put out new leaves and blossomed again. The fruit is claimed to be of better quality than the first crop.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Beginning a little over a year ago the Curtis Companies of Clinton, Ia., started in their house organ, "Curtis Service," a series of articles under the heading "Building a Credit Policy." After this series had ended, and in response to numerous suggestions, they combined all of these articles in one booklet, and up to date have distributed, on request, about 4000 of these booklets. A great deal of favorable comment has been received from retailers in lines other than lumber and millwork, and while this series of articles was written expressly for the retail lumberman, his credit problems are very much the same as those confronting other retailers.

The various chapters treat respectively on Credit—Its Uses and Abuses; The Credit Policy; Laying the Foundation; Getting Results Without Giving Offense; The Question of Interest; The Question of Discount; Preventing Bad Accounts; Keeping Good Accounts Good; Collecting Bad Accounts; Settlement by Note, etc., etc.

CHRISTMAS IN CHICAGO.

East, West and South Send Stock.

The market for Christmas stock was very active in Chicago. The East, West and South all sent in their quota of stock. The price was fairly satisfactory to grower, wholesaler and retailer. The only stock left unsold was that which came in on the last day and was mostly cut too close. This does not refer to "pickled" stock, of which a certain amount always finds its way in, and this year was no exception, the grower as usual getting less than if he had brought it in earlier or quite likely having it thrown into the barrel where it belonged.

Roses.

The most plentiful stock in the market was of Killarney roses, of which there was a big supply and prices on par and white were much lower than previous quotations. Killarney Brilliant fared differently, the stock being less in quantity and much of it better. Many more Ophelia could have been sold, all commission houses looking for more stock. Prices ranged as high as 25c. Some magnificent Mrs. Sawyer roses were offered for 25c. and extreme lengths brought more, but there were not nearly enough to supply demand. There were plenty of Richmonds and the very best did not go above 25c. A few Hoosier Beauties were seen and had they been forthcoming, a larger number would have sold. The stems were longer than of the Richmond but there was no advantage in the color. Milady was a favorite, and the color was good. All of the deep hued roses had remarkably good color in spite of weeks of dark weather, with the exception of Mrs. Russell, on which rose there was a great disparity in the quality of the stock. Some growers had "blue" stock in spite of all efforts while others were more fortunate and had splendid offerings of this popular rose. Yellow roses were in great demand and supply ran short especially in Sunburst.

American Beauty.

The market was not swamped by eastern stock as was the case last year. One large dealer considers twenty-five to forty thousand a conservative estimate which kept prices on home stock from reaching the top notch of previous years, but did not break the market as at last Christmas. The storm in the East delayed some stock which came in time for the following Monday and sold to good advantage. During the week frozen shipments of Beauties, orchids and gardenias arrived from Boston, totaling several hundred dollars in one house alone. But few long Beauties sold for more than ten dollars per dozen and many more for less. It is regarded here as highly improbable that this flower will ever bring the old high prices, for various reasons, principally the quality of the other and newer roses with which it now competes.

Orchids.

As this market has been shy on orchids for some time eastern and southern growers shipped here in quantity and some frozen but still there were some left over and some were left unsold.

Cut Poinsettias.

Reports differ regarding poinsettias. Some houses were short while others had some left over and there was plenty of a poor quality shipped in. Some boxes from California had every leaf in the bottom of the boxes and did not bring express charges. Fancy stock brought $5.00 per dozen but $3.00 was a more common price.

Carnations.

No one was surprised at the scarcity of this flower which was known to be generally off crop. It was more than a question of price; orders had to be cut because there was nothing to fill them with, and from the earliest bookings customers were limited to a fraction of what they wanted.

Violets.

Eastern violets arrived daily during Christmas week and the stock was of good quality and not injured in transit. Two dollars per 100 was the highest reported, the great bulk falling below that figure. The enormous quantity handled during the week may be imagined when the sales of a single wholesale house sometimes reached 100,000 in a day. Local violet growers also realized good returns from the week's sales.

Greens.

Holly, mistletoe and other greens were almost as necessary as flowers. Holly was well berried and the leaves of a dark rich green. There was the usual large stock of it on South Water St., coming from the South and East, the latter leading in quality. Ed. Winterson states that the holly sales were as far ahead of previous years as the flower sales were, and his house has made a specialty of holly for years. His carload of greens included pine branches, miniature pine trees, smilax, holly, mistletoe, and by no means least in importance, a turkey for each of the twenty employees of the store which accompanied a generous check from the firm to each one. Mistletoe was in evidence on every street corner and was a mass of white berries. Like holly, it was extra fine.

Plants.

Each year more plants have been grown in and about Chicago and it was thought that the limit this market could handle had been reached, but not so. Sales were far ahead of any previous year and the repeat orders of the last days showed that the retailers had sold out. Stock was good in all mid-winter varieties and the largest growers could have sold more had they had the stock.

Obituary

George Pedrick.

George Pedrick, who for the past twenty-two years conducted a florist business at Windsor, Ont., died at his home December 18, aged 63 years. He was born in Devonshire, Eng., and came to Canada thirty-five years ago. He is survived by his wife and one daughter.

Alexander Chisolm.

Alexander Chisolm died Dec. 21 at the Sturdy Memorial Hospital, North Attleboro, Mass., following an illness of many weeks. He was 75 years of age. Mr. Chisolm was gardener for H. F. Barrows of that town for nearly forty years and recently he laid out the grounds at Mr. Barrows' new home. He leaves a son and a daughter. S. A. G.

Charles H. Chenery.

Charles H. Chenery, 50 years old, a well-known market gardener, died at his home in Belmont, Mass., on Sunday, December 26. He was born in Belmont and had always lived there. After completing his education in the local schools, he entered the market gardening business with his father, and upon the death of the latter, a number of years ago, assumed charge of the business and conducted it until his death. He was unmarried.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Boston's Christmas was a record breaker in many respects. Everything of acceptable quality that was available was taken with avidity at prices which have seldom been reached. Carnations were far below the requirements, and this not only assured the sale of every decent carnation at top figures, but left the rose men the control of the market, and they, having a good cut, certainly had a good Christmas. American Beauty roses were sold at a lower figure than they might have been had the large operators in this specialty realized the situation. The plant trade was enormous, showing that people were feeling the impulse of rapidly improving business conditions, and although the local retail trade devoted all their advertising to the interests of the plant department and practically ignored the cut-flower lines in their publicity campaign, yet the cut flower had its innings in the end, as the plant supply gave out and the cut flower end then loomed up big. The result was an empty market for this week and everything that comes in is easily sold at prices not much below those of Christmas. There are Roman hyacinths and freesias now on sale, as well as yellow jonquils and even tulips. Business from the wholesale standpoint continues excellent, but New Year's is not a great occasion in Boston, and with brighter weather the market value of most things will surely fall to normal. Sweet peas are enjoying an exceptional call.

BUFFALO The Christmas business by all reports was universally good. The sale of decorative greens and dried material began earlier than usual and was larger than ever before. The supply of plants was heavy and the sales fell off a trifle. Prices were lower, especially on begonias, which were overplentiful. The poinsettia was the best seller. Cyclamen of good quality and well bloomed were rather scarce, and ferns, araucarias, etc., had only a light demand compared with previous year. Cut flowers sold about the same as other years. Beauties were of good quality, but even at a 25% reduction the sales were smaller. Scott Key, Richmond, Milady and choice colored Killarney had good sales. The demand was excellent on lily of the valley, violets, mignonette, sweet peas and lilies. The supply of carnations was rather light, especially on red and colored; there were enough white. All had good sales. Orchids and corsage roses sold exceptionally well. All in all it was good holiday business and the trade is well satisfied.

CHICAGO The last week of the year opens with splendid opportunities for the grower who has any stock left to cut. Prices are almost as high as during Christmas week. Orders began coming early Monday from out-of-town customers, showing that their trade had been good, and there was a lively scurrying around to get the stock for shipping. Carnations are still selling at the same price as roses and, even so, stock is scarce. As one dealer put it, anything that looks like a carnation brings five and six cents, and good ones are eight cents. Roses are only a little less than a week ago. Funeral work demands flowers and all kinds are selling well. Lily of the valley sales hold up well and there is no good stock left over. American Beauties left from late shipments designed for Christmas were ready for Monday and sold at once. Lilies, jonquils, Roman hyacinths, paper whites, calendulas, stevia, freesia, marguerites, delphiniums and snapdragons give a good variety. Orchids are not moving so well as could be desired.

CINCINNATI The early Christmas business was very good and exceeded the anticipations of the most optimistic. The supply was large and able to take care of most all needs. On the first of the year the new officials at City Hall and in the Municipal Court take their places and this is resulting in a good demand for the better grades of stock. Roses are in a good supply. Carnations, however, are rather scarce and as a whole are not of a very high quality. Most of the growers supplying this market seem to be off crop completely. Lilies are excellent and plentiful. Paper white narcissus has been cleaning up regularly. Poinsettias sell fairly well. The market for lily of the valley, orchids and violets is not any too good. Callas, magnificum lilies, stevia and sweet peas may be had. Greens are plentiful.

NEW YORK One wholesale flower dealer in New York advises us that we should head this column with "New York Boasts of a Howling Success." Surely if the clean-up of every saleable plant in the vicinity and the disposal of the greater part of the cut flowers sent to the wholesale markets for Christmas constitutes a howling success, then that is what it was. In the plant line the stores were frantically telephoning orders to growers who were unable to respond with anything whatever. Just why the plant supply ran short is not quite clear. It is said that owing to overstock conditions at Christmas a year ago, the output of plants had been materially reduced by many growers. It is probable that this was true and that, coupled with a larger demand than heretofore, the result was a bare market. One direct result was that the retail stores, being completely sold out on plants and unable to get any more were compelled to fall back on cut flowers to supply an almost insatiable demand. And thus it came to pass that the flower men "got by" with their entire stock, with very few exceptions, at the inflated prices put into effect in advance—something that has not happened in many a year. Of gardenias, at no time were there enough at from $6.00 to $12.00 a dozen to satisfy repeated and persistent calls. American Beauties of faultless form were eagerly grabbed up at $15.00 to $18.00 per dozen—a tremendous business in these being done and the shorter grades of this rose, as well as the other varieties of bright color brought almost unbelievable prices, special Hadleys, for instance, touching 75c. and $1.00 each. At the close nothing was left in the way of roses at any of the fifty wholesale places catering to the city store trade. Hoosier Beauty did not bring as good value as Hadley. A few fine Scott Keys sold at 40c. White roses were not much in demand. The small varieties of Cecil Brunner type sold readily at from 50c. to $1.00 a dozen. Carnations had a peculiar experience. When they arrived on Friday morning the demand was light and it was difficult to get 6 and 8c. for the ordinary varieties and 12c. for the scarlet, but the demand increased during the day and the prices remained at about 6 and 8c. for the ordinary varieties, 10c. for Mrs. Ward and 15c. for the scarlet. This was for those of the best quality only. Violets were of exceptionally good quality and sold from 75c. to $1.25 for doubles and $1.50 to $2.00 for singles. Poinsettias brought all the way from $8.00 to $25 and a few as high as $40 per 100. Sweet peas did remarkably well at $1.50 for grandifloras and $2.00 to $2.50 for Spencers. Prices on all other stock are sufficiently indicated in the tabulated lists. The orchid situation took a surprising turn. They had previously been running scarce and suddenly an enormous supply of cattleyas said to have been in the neighborhood of 15,000 blooms was dumped upon the market by out-of-town growers breaking the price which started at $1.00 each, to 50c. and eventually going as low as $10 to $15 per 100. So with the exception of the orchids and, of course, the "pickled" flowers, it may be said that everything in the market was cleaned out completely. It must not be gathered from the foregoing that the retailers accepted the situation with either joy or philosophy, although from all accounts they did an unprecedented amount of business, some of them claiming to have increased over last year 50 to 65 per cent. They claim a disappointment and loss in having been compelled to pay in many cases as much as they could ask for the goods from the public, and even then at the risk of "being looked upon by the purchaser as a thief," as one expressed it. They say the only profit they did make was on the plants and that were it not for the plants they would better have closed up their stores during Christmas. So there you have the story of New York's big holiday scramble.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. A record volume of trade was established for the holiday season in this city and vicinity according to the wholesalers and retailers, and as a natural sequence they are happy at this time. It is the general opinion among the trade that the Christmas business was 25 per cent. above any previous year. The supply was up to the steady demand and the prices were firm. The trade was fortunate in having a supply of good quality and the last day rush was not as hard as in previous years. The campaign here for early shopping appeared to have its effect even with the florists so far as the character of the trade would permit.

SAN FRANCISCO The local trade, both wholesale and retail, jubilant over the returns from Christmas business. No complaints are to be heard from any quarter, and many pronounce this the best holiday season they have ever experienced. Pot plants cleaned up closely and the supply of cut flowers was readily absorbed although most lines were fairly plentiful. Poinsettias showed excellent quality and more plants could have been used according to reports from various houses. The supply fell below expectatations on account of light arrivals from the southern part of the state. Azaleas were a little short also, but there was plenty of primulas, cyclamens and begonias, all of which were in good demand. Quantities of greens made up an important item in the week's business and more English holly was available than in previous years. The latter was very popular among high-class trade, but it did not compete very strongly with California red berries in the cheaper establishments. Orchids were featured strongly by the better shops, some very nice plants being offered as well as the cut flowers. Roses were fairly plentiful and good stock cleaned up readily, especially American Beauties. Chrysanthemums did not hold out as long as usual this season and the Christmas supply was very limited with quality undesirable, which gave them little recognition. Violets continued in good supply both for shipping and local needs. Carnations were offered freely, at prices somewhat lower than for some time which is the only instance noted of a decline, and it can be accounted for by a change in marketing conditions. Lily of the valley had a good call, and gardenias, which were in good supply, held a strong position. Fancy basket arrangements and other seasonable specialties proved very popular.

The Christmas rush is over and from reports everybody is well satisfied. For the residence district it was purely a plant Christmas as they had the call over the high-priced cut flowers. Down town they had all they could attend to in both cut flowers and plants. It was a "white Christmas" and nobody expected it. It came early Friday morning and it snowed continuously until Saturday morning, which caused considerable delay in delivering and a great deal of extra work in packing up plants. We can safely say that, notwithstanding the bad weather, it was the best Christmas in years for most St. Louis florists. Poinsettias, azaleas and cyclamen cleaned up early. Some extra fine holly trees and oranges fruited were seen this year. Lily of the valley in pots had a good call. Carnations were very scarce and the wholesalers cleaned up early at very high prices, extra fine red going as high as 12 cents. Roses were in plenty but these, too, demanded high prices, especially on the red varieties. Beauties were not so many and $12 per dozen was the price for extra choice. Sweet peas were fine. Violets were in only limited supply from our local growers, but a heavy supply from California helped out greatly. This came to the retailers direct, the commission men handling none of them.

The florists of the National Capital are well pleased with the business for Christmas. From all accounts 1915 will measure up well with previous years. The mild weather greatly facilitated deliveries. The prophesied shortage of stock failed to materialize and there was fully enough in all lines to fill all orders. Everybody seemed to be on a crop. Prices were about the same as in previous years, and these are being maintained for the New Year's Day business. There were plenty of carnations; American Beauty roses were slightly cheaper than last year; cattleyas brought $9 per dozen; Richmond roses sold at as high as 35 cents each and

Cyclopedia of Horticulture

Six large quarto volumes.
More than 3,600 pages. 24
plates. 96 full-page sepia half-tones and more than 4,000 text engravings. 500 collaborators. Approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names.

The new Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture has been freshly written in the light of the most recent research and experience. It is not merely an ordinary revision or corrected edition of the old Cyclopedia, but it is a new work from start to finish with enlarged boundaries geographically and practically; it supersedes and displaces all previous editions or reprints of every kind whatsoever. It is both an Encyclopedia and a Manual, for with the aid of its Synopsis and Key, amateur and professional alike may quickly identify any plant, shrub or fruit contained within the set, and then receive expert instructions for its cultivation.
Price $6.00 per volume. Three volumes have now been issued and the others will follow in succession. Order from

DAMAGE BY GALE.

The gale on Sunday afternoon, December 26, demolished a greenhouse, 23 x 160, belonging to E. M. Bruce and leased to John W. Lowe, at Leominster, Mass. The greenhouses of Paul F. Brigham at Westboro, Mass., suffered a loss of 200 lights of glass. A large quantity of glass was smashed in the Paine greenhouses at Randolph, Mass., and the roof was lifted causing considerable damage to the plants. At West Boylston, Mass., Charles E. Potter, florist, sustained the near ruin of one of his newest and largest hot-houses. The wind got in under and loosened the supports which held down the glass roof. Mr. Potter discovered it in time, got help, and by means of wire ropes tied down the supports, but meanwhile much glass was smashed.

THOROUGHNESS is the key note of Met-

A PROMINENT CARNATION GROWER SAYS THIS ABOUT THE STANDARD RECORDING THERMOMETER

Lancaster, Pa.

Standard Thermometer Co.,
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Please send me 25 record plates like the enclosed sample, and I want to say that the machine, bought a good many years back, is keeping up its good work right along. I think it a very useful adjunct to good plant growing, and it should be in every greenhouse, as reference to it may often tell what is wrong with a batch of plants.

Very truly yours, ALBERT M. HERR.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

It Took Over 30 Years to Build This House

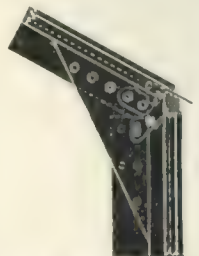

No. 1. No needless, complicated and cumbersome framing at the ridge; but just a simple double rafter splice plate; to which the cypress ridge is bolted "through and through."

No. 2. You should have seen the stress diagrams and the pages and pages of figures our engineers worked out, before adopting this exact truss and its connections.

No. 3. Rafter, column and truss binding plate. You should have seen the actual frames of houses, put up in our factory, and tested with weights far in excess of what they will actually have to stand. Not "paper weights"; but tons and tons of iron with all its DEAD WEIGHT.

No. 4. Steel rafters; wrought iron post; and double steel gusset plate; with galvanized angle iron eave.

NOT actually thirty years to build it, but the way it is built is the result of our thirty years' development in Iron Frame Houses.

No one knew a thing about how Iron Frames should be built thirty years ago. We built the first one built.

Our construction engineering experts have grown up in the business. They know greenhouse construction from stem to stern. You cannot go outside of the greenhouse business and get construction engineers, whose knowledge in building steel structures of other kinds can be satisfactorily applied to present day greenhouse construction. They are determined to put needlessly heavy, cumbersome members in some parts; and neglect stress and strain at others.

They are accustomed to working with wind pressures against vertical buildings. They have no experience, no facts, no figures, to guide them in wind pressure against the angles of a glass roof surface. They think in big I-beams and ponderous columns.

They will tell you that our houses are too light.

Still, thirty years have passed, and never a house has gone down with snow or blow.

The man who says: "It looks to me as if that strut is too light;" or "it seems to me that side post ought to be heavier," isn't safe to take seriously. It is the men who say: "Here are facts and figures that prove these things are right;" these are the men who are safe to listen to. We have not only one such fact and figure man; but many just such men.

The fact that other builders are continually claiming their houses to be "just as good as Lord & Burnham's" proves most conclusively that ours are the best.

Ever think of it that way?

Want to talk building?

Say when and where, and we will be there.

The New Rose, Mrs. Bayard Thayer

that we are offering this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front since we introduced Mrs. Charles Russell of which the new claimant is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink, inside of petals a shade lighter. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society medal over a strong class of competitors at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Asparagus

From now and up to the end of January is a good time to sow Asparagus plumosus, Hatcheri and Sprengeri. They are slow in starting and require all the time from now on to grow into serviceable stock. Sow the seed in flats or pans in a compost of loam three parts, leaf mold two parts and some sand. Cover the seed about an eighth of an inch. Fill the pans within an inch of the top and then press the material moderately firm and on this sow the seed. Cover with glass and shade until they germinate. Pot into 2-inch pots when about two or three inches high, in fresh loam three parts, cow manure one part and a little sand. When they have filled these pots with roots shift into 3-inch and again into 4-inch pots which will serve until they are planted out. Those that you want for pans of poinsettias can be sown later.

Fuchsias

Old plants of fuchsias can now be potted into a compost of fibrous loam three parts, well rotten manure and leaf mold one part each. Remove all the unripe tops, and they will furnish a nice lot of succulent cuttings later on. Place in about 55 degrees at night, with 10 to 15 degrees more with sunshine. Give water with care until they begin to make lots of roots, when they will stand plenty. On all good days give them a syringing overhead. When 3 or 4-inches long the cuttings can be taken off and placed in a moderately warm propagating bench where they will soon root.

Gardenias

Before ventilating let the thermometer reach 75 degrees and then only give a little air at a time so as not at any time to cause a chill. Start early in the afternoon and reduce the air the same way, and finally close up early enough so the house will stand at 75 degrees or thereabouts. The temperature should never be allowed to go below 65 at night. Give a good syringing early in the morning on all clear days. Keep the plants nicely tied up. Never let the soil become either overwet or dust-dry as either condition always paves the way for the loss of buds and gives that sickly looking yellow foliage. Look over the benches every day and water any dry spots. Now that the sun is becoming more powerful they can have an occasional light mulch.

Geraniums

Geraniums should now be potted up from flats using 2-inch pots and those that were potted some time ago should have a shift into 3-inch pots. One of the heavy jobs just now is shifting geraniums from 2 to 3-inch pots. It is always better to do this as soon as possible so as to give the plants a long season. It is better to give two shifts than one. They can be moved successively to 3-inch and 4-inch pots. Use two-thirds of soil that has been stacked up in a pile and mix with one-third of well rotted manure. Add a 4-inch pot of fine bone to each bushel of soil. After potting they enjoy a little bottom heat; so, if you have heating pipes under any of the benches these would provide the necessary warmth. 65 degrees in the day and 45 to 50 degrees at night is sufficient.

Primulas for the Next Holidays

To have good large plants for next Christmas the first week in January is none too early to sow primula seed. These will make fine stock in 5-inch pots. Large shallow pans are the best. Fill these pans, after giving good drainage, with a light compost of sifted loam and leaf mold in equal parts to which some sand should be added. Press the soil even and give a good watering with a fine hose, and let them stand until the next day when the soil will be in condition to receive the seed. Press the seed in and cover very lightly with finely sifted compost, and again press smooth. Place a piece of glass over the pans. Be sure to buy only the best seed.

Next Week: Adiantum Farleyense; Carnations; General Propagating; Lorraine and Cincinnati Begonias; Marguerites; The Trickiness of Ivies.

JACKSON T. DAWSON

HIS WORK AND HIS WORKSHOP

When an occasion in 1910 Jackson Thomas Dawson, as he is called, came, with his wife, to the United States, he brought with him a small collection of plants and a small staff of laborers. He had been in the United States for some time, but he had not yet found his way to the United States. During the Civil War he was in the army, and he was in the United States for some time, but he had not yet found his way to the United States. His long career in horticulture began in 1873, and the dual labors in the field of horticulture of these two men have been more fruitful in results than that of any other combination, past or present, that we have record of. The collection of living plants in the Arnold Arboretum, the most complete on this continent and, when climate is duly considered, not excelled the world over, is a fitting monument to the diligent labors of these two men. But their work begins—not ends—in the Arnold Arboretum, for since the institution's inception a world-wide distribution and interchange of plants has been an important branch of its activities. The result is that in this country, in Europe and elsewhere as remote as New Zealand, many large private establishments, parks and arboreta owe a great number of their choicest plants to the skill of Jackson Dawson and the generous policy of the director of the Arnold Arboretum.

Jackson T. Dawson is known throughout the length and breadth of this country and Canada. He is equally well-known in Europe, where the work of the Arnold Arboretum is better understood and appreciated than it is here in eastern North America. Jackson Dawson's skill in the propagation of all sorts of plants in all sorts of ways is spoken of almost with awe in places far and wide, and his success is proverbial. It would seem as if there was some close bond of communion—some occult understanding—between the plants and the man. But, however this may be, the patient, attentive care of the man seems to bring under submission the most intractable plants, and if a spark of life be left in a stick, a root or a seed it blossoms forth under his persuasive ability.

The picture shows not only the man but his workshop. This greenhouse, only 50 feet long, 20 feet wide and 12 feet high, is a humble structure, but its interior sense up-to-date interior, for it was built some twenty-nine years ago, has made history as probably no other such structure has. Inspect it closely; its thick wooden beams and rafters are all the work of the man and his staff, and note that plants are crowded in everywhere. It always is and always has been crowded on and under shelf and bench. Unfortunately there are no figures available of the actual number of different kinds of plants in cultivation in the Arnold Arboretum, much less of the number that has been raised there, but the most astonishing fact is that, their number notwithstanding, they have mostly passed through this house in the infantile stages of their careers. This workshop—this tiny greenhouse—is the cradle of the Arnold Arboretum, and Jackson Dawson is, and has been from the commencement, not only nurse but foster-father also. Not more than one hundred yards from the spot where this photograph was taken is growing a Pin Oak (Quercus palustris) which is 70 ft. tall and has a trunk nearly 7 ft. in girth and this lovely tree was raised by him from an acorn!

To stroll among the collections with Jackson Dawson and learn the history and origin of this and that tree or shrub is a rare delight.—“This plant came from —, this was raised from seeds which came from Dakota or from the White Mountains, that from seeds collected by Bretschneider in China or by Sargent in Japan; this is a grafted plant, and that is from a cutting received from — in —,” and so the story is unfolded. Not all the new plants he has raised have proved capable of withstanding this New England climate, and others for reasons not apparent have not proved amenable to cultivation in the Arnold Arboretum, but the wise policy of widely distributing the young plants has preserved them to cultivation elsewhere if not here. The Magnolia portrayed as a frontispiece in this number of HORTICULTURE is an example of such plants and it is a pleasure and a privilege to introduce in the fullness of its blossom this errant beauty to the Nurse of its youth.

Our Editor has asked me to write a few lines to accompany the picture and I feel complimented at the request. But a difficulty arises when one sits down to translate thoughts into sentences. Words seem inadequate or extravagant in their meaning and equally

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Fumigation

There is no reason why the plants should be allowed to become infested with greenfly at this time of the year when it is plenty cool enough to fumigate and with many nice preparations made for the purpose. The same applies to spraying. To keep expenses as low as possible it is best to watch the plants closely and apply a dose of spray or fumigate as soon as the least trace of insects can be seen. Do not wait until they increase to large numbers, as it will be hard work to get rid of them then, for the smoke or spray will have to be made quite strong to kill some of the older ones who are pretty tough as a rule. Try to spray or smoke just before syringing. The work should be done the last thing in the evening or at night and never in the daytime unless it is cloudy. In spraying, spray in the morning during the winter and late in the evening during the warm and hot months of the year. To make the fumigating as effective as possible have the plants plenty wet enough. Then do it on a quiet day. When it is raining is an ideal time, as the houses are tighter then, as all cracks and spaces between glass are filled with water.

Tobacco Stems in the Walks

With winter here, the houses not getting very much air, growers will be thinking of tobacco stems for the walks to keep the greenfly down. Personally I do not like the idea of the stems either, as they make the walk unnecessarily damp. Also the air in the house is not as healthy to work in when charged with the odor of the stems. Growers who smoke will not notice this at all or if they do they will not mind very much. Make no mistake in thinking that these stems will rid the plants of greenfly for they will not. They will help prevent greenfly from spreading but the houses must be clean before the stems are put in. As soon as the stems get stale more will have to be put in, taking the old ones out before doing so. The old stems should not be wasted but should be put on the manure pile as they make excellent plant food when they decay and are very good to use in the vegetable garden.

objectionable on either account. Yet even in this materialistic twentieth century youth may respectfully do homage to age and experience, and in any and every era an indebtedness can be honestly acknowledged. For the attention and loving care he has lavished on the seeds, plants, sticks and roots I culled in the back blocks of western China and Japan, I owe Jackson Dawson a debt of gratitude and my appreciation of his care lacks nothing from a full knowledge of the utter futility of a collector's work when his spoils fall into the hands of the indifferent or incompetent. Though he may be quite unconscious of the fact, it is none the

Syringing Young Plants

As soon as the young cuttings become established in the pots they will have to be syringed. This work must be done very carefully and with less pressure than what is used for the old plants. Also the spray should be directed to hit the plants as the leaves are pointing and should be steady, moving the nozzle from side to side. No up and down motion should be used at all as this will shake up the cuttings a good deal, and ruin quite a few. In syringing old plants in benches next to the young stock care should be taken not to throw any water from the old plants on to the young as this water is likely to be mixed with some spiders and these would certainly make themselves at home on the little plants. Care should also be taken to syringe the plants very quickly and quite early in the morning so that they will have every chance to dry off before night.

Watch Out for Worms in the Pots

Sometimes the man applying lime to the benches before the ashes are put on will be a little careless and not cover the soil well and some worms will work up into the pots. If there are not very many it is best to take the plant and knock it out of the pot, and as a rule the worm can be caught right there. If there are many plants affected this way then it will be necessary to give them a dose of lime water which will do away with most of the worms. There are worms in the soil used for potting at times so it is not always a case of careless work in preparing the bench. These may be in egg form, so they may not be noticeable, but as soon as given heat and moisture they hatch out and make a nuisance of themselves.

Watering

With the dark days of winter here every now and then, great care should be taken not to get the plants too wet. This applies especially to Beauties, and plants that are cut off pretty well. If there is any spot on the plants at all it should be picked off as it is almost sure to spread and be quite bothersome before spring sets in.

less true that virtually every reader of this paper also owes something to this grand old gardener. And the science of Horticulture owes him a lasting debt for his labors toward its uplift. Long may Jackson T. Dawson in health and strength be spared to increase this debt, and to increase in number and variety the plants he loves so well.

J. H. Wilson

WINTER PROTECTION OF STRAW-BERRIES.

In all except the extreme southern and western districts the autumn or early winter is the season in which the strawberry fields should be covered with a mulch, partly to protect the plants from the continual freezing and thawing which occurs in many sections, partly to conserve moisture and keep down weeds during the following spring and during the fruiting season, and partly to keep the berries from contact with the soil when they ripen. This mulch may consist of some kind of straw or hay or of stable manure containing a large proportion of straw, but it should be free from weed seed. Wheat, rye, oat, and buckwheat straw, long-leaf pine needles, prairie hay, marsh hay, salt marsh hay, and other materials are frequently used for this purpose. The mulch should be placed on the berry field after the ground freezes and before it is covered with snow. If a rain follows the spreading of the mulch, less trouble will be experienced from scattering by the wind. The mulch should be spread evenly over the whole field. If available, sufficient material to make the depth of the mulch when it settles from 2 to 3 inches should be used.

Stable manure, though frequently used, is not always satisfactory. In some sections it causes a vigorous leaf growth the following spring and actually lessens the yield of berries. If either the stable manure of the straw contains weed seed, it may infest the berry field with weeds to an extent which decreases the yield and causes much expense in cleaning. When stable manure is applied, the solid portions as far as possible should be put between the rows and that part containing more straw placed over the row. In the spring before the plants start growth, sufficient straw should be removed from the rows to allow the plants to grow through the mulch. This straw may be thrown into the space between the rows. Where the ground is weedy, it will often be necessary to rake the mulch upon the rows of plants and cultivate the field. The mulch is then returned to the middles between the rows of plants to be left until after the picking season.—Weekly News Letter U. S. Dept. of Agri.

CYCNOCHES.

All the species of Cynoches are extremely interesting owing to their curious flowers and their habit of producing flowers of both sexes on one and the same pseudo-bulb. In most species the difference between the male and female flowers is very distinct, the male flowers as a rule being produced on long, many flowered scapes, whereas the female flowers are produced in short 2 or 3-flowered scapes; these latter much larger and of more substance than the former, one female flower equalling in weight about twenty male-flowers, and they also vary in color. All the species produce male flowers frequently but female flowers only on rare occasions and only under very favorable conditions. At this season of the year most of the species will be at rest and will require very little if any water until the new growth appears at the base of the last made pseudo-bulbs. As soon as these new growths show signs of making roots, the plants may be shaken out of their pots, all dead roots cut away, and repotted in new compost consisting of a good quality of osmunda fibre, chopped rather fine and a little live sphagnum moss and coarse sand or finely broken crocks mixed with it. Watering must be done with great care until the roots have taken a firm hold of the new compost and at no time should water be allowed to stand in the new growth, else these are very apt to rot off. When the new bulbs commence to form and until they are completed they can receive more liberal supplies of water with an occasional dose of weak liquid manure water. Cynoches require at all times a light, sunny position in the warmest house, being best suspended from the roof where they will get the maximum amount of light and heat. Catasetums and Mormodes will require similar treatment to grow them to perfection.

C. maculatum, the subject of the accompanying illustration, is a native of Mexico, flowers buff-colored, thickly spotted with purple.

FIGHTING MOTHS WITH PARASITES.

Over 12,000,000 specimens of two parasites which prey on the gipsy moth and brown-tail moth were released in 201 towns in Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island during the fall of 1914 and spring of 1915, according to the annual report of the Bureau of Entomology, United States Department of Agriculture.

As a result of the successful establishment of colonies of these and other parasites which feed on the gipsy and brown-tail moths, marked progress is being made in reducing these pests. Effective cooperation is being afforded by the states, which carry on as much work as possible within the infested areas, thus allowing the Federal authorities to carry on field work along the outer border of infestation, so as to retard the gipsy moth's spread.

Spread of the Gypsy Moth.

As a result of scouting work carried on by the entomologists in 223 towns in New England, the gipsy moth was found in 4 towns in Maine, 23 in New Hampshire, 3 in Vermont, 10 in Massachusetts, and 10 in Connecticut, making a total of 50 towns where the insect had not been previously reported. This scouting consists in an examination of all roadsides, residential sections, orchards and woodlands. Where colonies are found the egg clusters are treated with creosote and the trees are banded with tree tanglefoot and sprayed with arsenate of lead.

Brown-Tail Moths Decreasing.

The spread of the brown-tail moth during the past year has been considerable, the indications being that this pest has not infested any territory other than that already reported. In cooperation with the United States Lighthouse Service, the work of collecting moths at night along the coast of Connecticut and Long Island has been continued.

Other activities of the Bureau in relation to the gipsy moth include the inspection of forest products, nursery stock, and stone and quarry products shipped from gipsy moth territory, as well as extended investigations along other lines.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY

On January 22-23-24 the American Carnation Society will hold its 1916 Annual Convention and Exhibition at St. Louis, Mo. Arrangements have been made for lectures and business sessions in the Planters Hotel, which offers facilities unsurpassed for that purpose. St. Louis being the terminus of many of the east-coast railroads, there should be no difficulty in reaching the convention from all directions. There should especially be a large attendance from west of the Mississippi and those growers will have opportunity as never before to exhibit blooms.

The exhibition will be staged by 1 o'clock, and after the judging is finished it will be held for inspection by the members until 8 P. M. at which time the public will be admitted and the first business session will be called to order. No admission will be charged at the door and the public will be admitted on Wednesday evening, Thursday afternoon and evening.

The members are requested to attend the business sessions, the first of which will be called to order at 8.00 P. M. Wednesday. Another session will be held on Thursday morning and, if necessary a third one on Thursday afternoon. Nomination of officers on Wednesday evening, election on Thursday morning. The banquet will be served on Thursday evening.

The schedule of prizes for the exhibition has just been received. Copies of same may be had on application to the Secretary, A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.

The party from Boston for the A. C. S. meeting at St. Louis will leave the South Station at 2 P. M., on Jan. 24, arriving at St. Louis by 9.55 P. M., Jan. 25th. This is the best connection we can possibly make, as it gives us ample time to prepare for the exhibition on Wednesday.

The fare, individual, $28.50; 10 or more, $26.35; upper berth, $5.20; lower berth, $6.50; drawing room, $23.00.

The drawing room will be reserved for any one wishing to take flowers for the exhibition as on previous occasions.

If you are contemplating making the trip please advise me as soon as convenient and I will make all necessary reservation.

Yours sincerely,

S. I. GOODARD

BOOMING THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

The following communication has just been received from Chairman Therkildson, of the Philadelphia National Flower Show Publicity Committee:

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir—Enclosed you will find copy of the Poor Richard Almanac. This is the official organ of the Poor Richard Club of this city. As you perhaps know, this club is behind the Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. The Poor Richard goes to all Associated Clubs, and they are using the Flower Show poster stickers.

In a day or two I will send you an eight-sheet poster covering the billboard advertising that we expect to do in connection with the National Flower Show. There will be 830 of these posters in the Philadelphia and New York districts, together with 1000 single sheet posters 28 by 42, and many thousands of window cards of two sizes will be distributed.

We hope to have the mayor declare March 25 to April 2nd Flower Show Week. We are anticipating a line of publicity such as has never been equalled before, and if the present plans go through without a hitch we will have some real publicity. On page 3 of the Poor Richard Almanac you will find a reference to the National Flower Show and the way the publicity is being handled.

Sincerely yours,

W. F. THERKILDSON,

Chairman, Publicity Committee, Fourth National Flower Show.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The next meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held on Monday, January 10th, at Labold & Newburgh's, 8 East Third street.

The eleventh annual dinner of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society will be held at the Florence Inn, Tarrytown, N. Y., on Tuesday evening, Jan. 11, at 7 o'clock.

The Collingwood (N. J.) Horticultural Society has elected the following officers for 1916: President, H. R. Lippincott; vice-president, Kathryn Brown; secretary, Myrton A. Bryant; treasurer, John L. Root.

A regular meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society will be held on Monday evening, January 17, 1916, in O. U. A. M. Hall, Park and Main streets, at 8 P. M. Meeting date has been changed to third Monday in month during 1916.

At the 60th annual meeting of the Illinois State Horticultural Society held at Champaign, the following officers were elected: President, W. S. Perrine, Centralia; vice-president, A. W. Brayton, Mt. Morris; secretary, A. M. Augustine, Normal; treasurer, J. W. Stanton, Richview.

At the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston, the elimination of the parasite evil was the principal subject discussed. H. T. Fernald read a paper on "An Inspection Problem." G. Howard Frost was elected president to succeed Charles Adams.

Philadelphia.—George C. Watson is just out again after a serious attack of the grippe which confined him to his bed for more than a week and has left him a much used-up victim with the evidences of the scrimmage very palpable.

PUBLICATION RECEIVED.

The Cherries of New York. By U. P. Hedrick, assisted by G. H. Howe, O. M. Taylor, C. B. Tubergen and R. Wellington. The Department of Agriculture of the State of New York has in this magnificent volume made a most notable and praiseworthy addition to the pomological annals of the state. The Cherries of New York is a worthy follower to the previous similar publications on The Apples of New York, the Grapes of New York and The Plums of New York and its contents are compiled with the same assiduous industry and wide research which gained for those volumes an unique position and prestige among American horticultural publications.

The book is issued as the Twenty-Second Annual Report of the Department—Vol. 2, Part 11, and bears the imprint of J. B. Lyon Company, State Printers, Albany. There are 371 pages of text, with 56 full-page color plates of cherry species and varieties, life size, either flowers or fruit. In the text several hundred varieties are listed and fully described. The seed parent is given for 61 varieties, but no case is recorded of a variety known to have come from self-fertilized seed, neither is any cherry cultivated for its fruit reported to have come from a sport or a bud-mutation. 147 are put down as "chance seedlings." The total number of cherries under discussion is 1,145, of which 917 are described as of unknown origin. The multitude of cross references to literature ancient and modern, the scientific facts which have been accumulated regarding the habitat and origin of the many species of prunus, and the exhaustive cultural and historical information which have been so industriously gathered and are now given to the public in such an attractive and useful form will make this publication a highly prized possession for the fruit grower, amateur or professional.

We have taken occasion heretofore to mention in sincere approbation the faithful, conscientious work so evident in these fruit volumes, and welcome this opportunity to again commend Professor Hedrick and his co-laborers for this new achievement.

PACHYSANDRA TERMINALIS AS A GROUND COVER.

For many years past, the plant has been used as a ground cover in effect to plantings where grass can only find a struggling existence. In recent years, Pachysandra terminalis has often been used as a substitute for Vinca minor. As a ground cover the latter is unquestionably very satisfactory, but one objection to its more general use is its frequency in cemetery planting, hence Pachysandra terminalis has found a welcome with the discreet planter.

Whether for a city lot or a suburban home, or large estate, or for pleasure resorts and public parks, oftentimes we have to resort to a ground cover to complete the pleasing effect and Pachysandra terminalis is well adapted for either situation.

To harmoniously complete a group of evergreens or deciduous planting in the border, or especially near a dwelling, Pachysandra terminalis makes an ideal under cover, thus evading the exposure of unplanted ground, or grass which must be mowed every week. Lawn mowers or other implements will often do much damage when manipulated too closely to the trees and often injure the bark of plants, however careful the workman may be, the damage often resulting in the loss of some valuable plant.

The saving of labor by the use of Pachysandra holds good also in regard to steep bankings which often are a very hard proposition to keep in a satisfactory condition if seeded down in grass.

One feature worth mentioning in the use of Pachysandra as a ground cover is that by planting spring flowering bulbs in the midst of it a most pleasing effect is gained, with the one great advantage that after the foliage of the bulbs has shrivelled there will be no noticeable gap, on account of the profuse evergreen cover.

The writer further has in mind the planting of Pachysandra as used by Duncan Finlayson, superintendent of the Larz Anderson estate. There one can see this plant used as an edging in front of shrubbery borders with beautiful effect, and taking the place of low box edging, with the difference of being less stiff than the latter and more adapted to our climate.

Without doubt there are many nooks and corners on estates where horticulture is practiced where plantings of Pachysandra might be more generally used and to refined effect. It is a perfectly hardy evergreen and will do equally well in either sun or shade.

M. P. HAENDLER.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Franklin, Pa.—Bell Floral Co., incorporators, Philip A. Edward, Rachel L. and Anna Bell.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Keystone State Nurseries, capital stock $5,000. Incorporators, J. M., F. R. and D. G. George and M. L. Sweeney.

Malden, Mass.—Through the efforts of Park Commissioner J. G. Tilden a rest room is being erected on Ferryway Green, equipped with shower baths, lockers, etc. for men, and retiring rooms for ladies. The main room above on the street level will be used as a rest room for mothers with children. Com. Tilden is an enthusiastic worker in behalf of the playground and the young people throughout the city have enjoyed outdoor sports through his untiring efforts. There has been some talk of naming Webster Playstead Tilden Lea in his honor.

THE PRAIRIE STYLE OF LANDSCAPE GARDENING.

The Middle West is just beginning to evolve a new style of architecture, interior decoration, and landscape gardening in an effort to create the perfect home amid the prairie states. This movement is founded on the fact that one of the greatest assets which any country or natural part of it can have, is a strong national or regional character, especially in the homes of the common people. Its westernism grows out of the most striking peculiarity of middle-western scenery, which is the prairie, i.e., flat or gently rolling land that was treeless when the white man came to Illinois. One landscape gardener has done, since 1901, $6,000,000 worth of work, which he declares has been inspired by the prairie. Some of the progress that has been made toward a prairie style of architecture is illustrated in "The Prairie Spirit in Landscape Gardening," by Wilhelm Miller. This is a 36-page circular containing 100 illustrations published by the University of Illinois. It is too expensive for unlimited free distribution, but is sent to Illinoisans who will promise to do some permanent ornamental planting within a year.—Univ. of Ill. Press. Bulletin.

Imports at the Port of New York, of horticultural material, for the week ending Dec. 24 were recorded as follows:

Plants and trees—From Japan, $408; England, $3,138; Ireland, $729; Brazil, $366; France, $310; Netherlands, $913; Trinidad, $310.

Grass seed—Netherlands, $611; Ireland, $713; Canada, $368.

Red clover seed—France, $43,168; England, $8,273.

Other clover seed—Canada, $3,990.

Other seeds—France, $4,955; Germany, $168; Netherlands, $17,980; England, $13,229; Spain, $351; Argentina, $9,077; Japan, $16.

Bulbs, etc.—Belgium, $1,324; Germany, $2,925; Netherlands, $1,945; England, $181; Japan, $1,391.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

M. Herb, Naples, Italy.—Wholesale Catalogue of Seeds. In three languages—English, French and German. Illustrated.

Holmes-Letherman Seed Co., Canton, O.—"Holco" Seeds, Bulbs and Plants, 1916. A neatly gotten-up catalogue, 84 pages, illustrated.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.—"Chrysanthemums for Every Purpose," 1916. The title tells the story. As usual, this is a valuable list for the grower who wishes to know the novelties.

Chris Reuter, New Orleans, La.—Reuter's Seeds for the South, Spring 1916. The people of the South will have no cause to grumble at their fare this season if they live up to the familiarity of vegetables listed in this book.

Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Wholesale Catalogue and Price List of Seeds, Bulbs, Plants, Fertilizers, Poultry Supplies and Garden Requisites. A 112-page catalogue, illustrated and comprising an invaluable list of material of distinctive value to the trade, inclusive of some very seductive novelties.

Harry A. Bunyard Co., Inc., New York—Price List of Seeds, Bulbs, Plants and Garden Supplies, for Spring, 1916. This catalogue is minus illustrations with the exception of that on the covers but the space thus saved permits of its being made into narrow pages so that it may be conveniently carried in an ordinary coat pocket and the lists which fill its 112 pages are well selected. The cover illustration is of the new red annual sunflower embossed in natural colors on a white background and very effective.

J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York.—1916 Catalogue of Thorburn's Seeds. As if in anticipation of a bright and prosperous 1916, Messrs. Thorburn & Co. have in this, their 105th Annual Catalogue, departed from the time-honored modest grey cover and illuminated the title page with a very artistic and pleasing design in rich color. "Reliable seeds" is still the slogan of this oldest of American seed houses. The lists are very extensive, containing many specialties that are already of high repute and novelties that promise gratifying progress for the coming season.

Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa.—Dreer's Garden Book, 1916. The 78th annual edition of this splendid publication comes to us in a rich and dignified dress of dark blue with gold embossed lettering and no other ornament or furbelow, and it will not be inappropriate or obtrusive in the library or ladies' boudoir. It fills 292 pages with cover and there are four pages of special offers, printed in green. There are five colored inserts of much beauty, especially those of roses and phloxes. The novelty lists in vegetable and flower seeds are as usual very interesting and enticing. Sweet peas, asters, zinnias, snapdragons, delphiniums, etc., are well represented in the advances of the year. Aquatic plants are given a section by themselves—ten pages, handsomely illustrated.

W. Atlee Burpee Company, Philadelphia.—Fortieth Anniversary Supplement, 1876-1916. This publication under the title of "Forty Years Burpee Service," is in no sense a catalogue, yet it well fills its intent as a supplement to amplify the interest and value of the catalogues of this enterprising seed house with facts concerning the diversified interests and operations which are a part of the outfit and the work of such an establishment, which, as Mr. Burpee said, is "a business builded not for the present only, but with an outlook to the future. A business that has no vision of the future or the object of which is mere money-making, would not be worthy a life's work." The book contains 84 pages, profusely illustrated with views in Philadelphia, Fordhook and Lompoc, all of which help to give some idea of the extent of the industry so zealously nurtured by its late gifted founder and bespeaks both by pen and picture the methods of the House of Burpee. Cover and layout are the work of W. F. Therkildson, Burpee advertising manager.

CHICAGO.

A fire in a small building and water from the street is being controlled for the time being by the fire department of the L. A. Building, South Broadway.

Phil Schupp has his office force closing up the books for the year and taking account of the winter business. Ordinarily located in the shipping room lively for the J. A. Budlong Co. is one of the large shipping houses of this city.

Paul Klingsporn, of the Chicago Flower Growers Association, says that only fancy snapdragons sold at a price corresponding to the stock, will pay for the growing. Some of the stock coming into this market is excellent; good heavy heads and long stems and they sell at once but small stock is not a profitable crop.

The round, solidly built bouquets, of formal type, still lead in social fashions. Their quaint mixtures of colors, when confined to the soft tones, have a suggestion of demureness which makes them particularly fascinating for the debutante. The new year is opening with coming-out parties in which flowers and their arrangement are an important factor.

A fire demolished the building at 127 N. Wabash Ave., early in the morning of Dec. 29, in which was located the retail store of the Harry Rowe Co. The loss is a complete one, well covered by insurance. Mr. Rowe did not know of the fire till he saw the news in a morning paper. His business address for the present is The Garland Bldg., cor. Wabash Ave. and Washington St. Adjoining the destroyed building is the one occupied for so many years by the E. H. Hunt Co. and by Bassett & Washburn, the latter having moved last fall and the former gone out of business some years ago. The building was injured but not destroyed.

The epidemic of grippe which has seized upon Chicago is bringing its toll of victims. Always the chief cause of the purchase of flowers, funerals in such increased number must have a large bearing on trade conditions. The almost unbelievable number of 1100 deaths is recorded in the local papers as occurring in one week. This is an unprecedented record in the history of Chicago, save in the cases of the Iroquois and the Eastland disasters. The usual dropping off of the florists' business after a holiday season has not occurred this year and the falling off of the supply of roses makes the situation one that keeps prices up almost to the Christmas schedule.

The Park conservatories have not been so well patronized by the public during their holiday displays this year as usual. At Garfield Park, the stock and seeds were a mass of red and white as were also the curved side-benches whose sloping banks of palms reached the point where glass dome and side walls met. Poinsettias almost touched the glass and between them and in sharp contrast were dotted the clusters of paper white blossoms. Begonia luminosa afforded a low growing red plant and A. Koch, superintendent of the park says this variety has remarkable keeping qualities and is an equally good Christmas plant or outdoor summer plant. Long clusters of red berries of Rivina humilis, afforded more color. The end beds were varied by the use of pink begonias and azaleas with the paper white narcissus.

SAN FRANCISCO.

J. Epstein, of the Art Floral Co., is back on duty after being confined to his home for several days by illness.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society is concluding preparations for a social to be given next week in conjunction with the men's association.

Chas. Willis Ward, of Cottage Garden Nurseries, Eureka, Calif., has a large force at work clearing the 232 acres of land on Yager Creek, near Carlotta, which he purchased recently. Improvements are progressing at the Eden plant also, including a dam and large reservoir at the extreme eastern point.

The affairs of the Luther Burbank Co., a corporation organized three years ago to exploit the work of the Santa Rosa horticulturist, reached a climax the past week when Burbank filed suit in the superior court to collect $9,775 from the Luther Burbank Co. This amount is alleged to be due on two promissory notes given Burbank by the company and signed by R. J. Hough, vice-president, and Leo V. Belden, secretary.

While the Exposition is a thing of the past, its effect is felt in certain lines of business, and it is believed by many of the florists that theirs will be one of the lines to feel its influence for a long time to come. Through the various flower shows held at the Exposition the public was given the opportunity of seeing the finest new creations in flowers, and the tendency is now to demand extra fine stock from the trade. In response to this demand the growers are using more than usual care in their new plantings, realizing that good stock will bring high prices and that ordinary offerings will be hard to dispose of at any price.

PITTSBURGH.

George E. Hallam, of the North Side, has recently recovered from a six weeks' attack of pneumonia, is again confined to his home with acute abscesses of the glands of the neck.

James Thompson, a shipping clerk for the E. C. Ludwig Company, was fatally injured in a Pittsburgh Railway accident on New Year's evening, and at time of writing is at the point of death.

Edward E. Ludwig, the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Ludwig, returned last Wednesday to Cornell University, where he is specializing in floriculture in the College of Agriculture.

Ray J. Daschbach has charge of the new floral department recently inaugurated in "The Big Store" of Kaufmann Brothers. Mr. Daschbach continues his own flower shop on Wood street, with his former head saleswoman, Miss Catharine Friel, as manager.

Owing to the rather isolated headquarters of the Civic Club of Allegheny County on the fifth floor of the Keenan building, the organization's much-talked of, famous Christmas tree has been removed downstairs to a prominent window of the A. W. Smith Company.

G. P. Weaklin is again in his store after a severe attack of la grippe. Among other flower people who have been victims of the prevailing epidemic, are the following: Frank M. Stafford and William G. Picketts of Randolph & McClements; Harry E. Graves, Charles F. Manke and Oliver Beet of the Ziegler Company; Anthony W. Smith, Jr., and James Ford of the A. W. Smith Company; Mrs. E. A. Williams and Louis R. Biehl of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Company. Five employees of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company are detained from business by the same disease.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The annual opening of bids for the supply of seeds to the United States Department of Agriculture will take place at 2 o'clock, January 11.

The decorations on the occasion of the New Year reception to the delegates to the Pan American Scientific Congress were by J. H. Small & Sons. The already elaborate decorations of the building were augmented by a large quantity of flowers, plants, shrubs and trees. Colored illuminations added to the beauty of the scene. The buffets were decorated with Lady Stanley and Mrs. Moorfield Story roses, while these, poinsettias and other flowers were used in profusion in the different rooms of the building.

The National Theatre was decorated by Gude Bros., when the delegates attended the performance en masse.

Here each of the boxes were decorated with laurel-festooned wall pockets filled with Richmond roses. The boxes were banked with palms and ferns. The mirrors at either side of the stage were outlined with smilax with Richmond and Killarney roses entwined.

Congressman Frank Park of Georgia has presented a bill in Congress to appropriate $25,000 for the establishment of an experimental station in Colquitt, Miller County, Ga., for the purpose of demonstrating the character of plants, shrubs and trees best adapted to the soil and climate of that section. The appropriation is to be used in securing the necessary land, buildings, stock, implements, machinery, etc. The measure has been referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

BOSTON.

Joseph Margolis, of H. M. Robinson & Co., went to New York last Saturday to see his mother, who is reported to be very ill.

Bert Sloane, one of the partners of the New England Florist Supply Company, and Miss Frances Gresaver of Winthrop, will be married January 26th.

C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me., the carnation man, who was a market visitor this week, reports that conditions through Maine are about the same as in Boston.

H. Ruppert, of the Carbone traveling staff, has left for a three months' tour of the West. He is going over the territory formerly traveled over by John McCarty, who is now with the M. Rice Co. Alex. Abrams has been taken from the retail department and placed in Mr. Ruppert's place. He will travel over the northern and southern territory.

The Horticultural Club of Boston held the usual monthly session in the Parker House on Wednesday evening, January 5. W. A. Manda was the speaker and gave an address of sterling worth on the subject of hardy herbaceous plants, which was followed by a vigorous debate lasting until 11.20 P. M. The table decorations were a vase of Mr. Manda's seedling cerise carnation, and one of Erlangia tomentosa from President Farquhar.

Since the call for prizes for the Florists' Bowling Association of Boston went out, several very handsome articles have been presented. Amongst them is a fine cut glass vase from the T. J. Grey Co. and a gold-leaved mirror from the Boston Plate Glass Co., besides several very handsome cups. The association has promises for about twenty cups and when they are all received they have decided to display them around in the different show windows of the flower shops.

Obituary

Norton Huggins.

Norton Huggins, employed for the past two years in the greenhouses of Galen L. Stone, Marion, Mass., was drowned, together with Albert Bradley, who conducted a boarding house for the men on the Stone estate, while out in a row boat in Buzzard's Bay during the blizzard of Sunday, December 26. Mr. Huggins was 24 years of age, unmarried, and a native of Scotland.

George Dobbs.

George Dobbs, 64 years of age, founder of the firm of Dobbs & Son, Auburn, N. Y., died at his home December 19th. He had been ill but a few hours, death being caused by a paralytic stroke. Mr. Dobbs was born in England but came to this country when a boy, and at one time had been employed in the greenhouses of John N. May, of Summit. In 1893, he secured the Dunning greenhouses in Auburn and started in business for himself. He is survived by his son William, who was associated in business with him, a daughter and four sisters.

William W. Foster.

William W. Foster, a prominent florist of Westerly, R. I., died suddenly on December 26th. He was seeing a friend off at the station at Westerly and became unconscious in the waiting room and never recovered. The doctors reported heart failure as the cause of death. He was a rose grower for the wholesale market and retired from business on account of poor health last May, renting his establishment to Lewis P. Rankin. His brother-in-law, Samuel S. Pennock of Philadelphia, and all the family were there for the Christmas holidays and his sudden demise was a great shock to all. He was unmarried and lived with his sister's family.

William H. Bowker.

The funeral of William Henry Bowker of Boston and Concord, a recognized authority on agricultural chemistry and fertilizers, and a member of the first class at the Massachusetts Agricultural College was held Thursday afternoon, January 6, in Emmanuel Church, Boston. The deceased was born in Natick July 3, 1850, and after being graduated from the State College at Amherst, of which he was a trustee up to the time of his death, he engaged in newspaper work. He taught journalism, conducted a drug and chemical business with his brother in the city, and finally, at the age of 23, entered another partnership for the sale of fertilizers, on which he became an authority. He was president of the Bowker Fertilizer Company of Boston. He was also a director of many concerns and belonged to several Boston clubs.

Portland, Conn.—Mr. and Mrs. Otto Keser observed the 25th anniversary of their marriage on Christmas. Mr. Keser was born in Gmund, Germany, and Mrs. Keser in Staffordshire, England. Fourteen years ago they bought the F. L. Sellev greenhouses in Portland. The establishment has been enlarged from time to time and a very substantial business and enviable personal standing in the community has been attained.

Flower Market Reports

The same conditions BOSTON prevail in the market as during the last two weeks. The dark weather has kept the flowers from opening up and the supply is much curtailed. Several sweet pea men have said that the buds which have fallen off their vines resemble snow on the ground, there being so many of them. Carnations have come in a little more plentiful, but not quite enough for the demand and still hold up in price. Roses seem to be more or less going off crop. Bulbous stock is coming in quite fast and sells rapidly at a good figure. The list now includes jonquils, paper white narcissus, Roman hyacinths, freesias and tulips. Lilies and callas are coming in exceptionally well and are in great demand owing to the scarcity of other flowers. Amongst the specialties there are some very large spiked and long snapdragon, yellow marguerites, English wallflower, pansies and calendulas. Although flowers are scarce the market business is altogether not very large and it is generally predicted that if the sun should come out strong for a couple of days we may see an unwelcome glut.

The ending of the old BUFFALO year was quite satisfactory. Stock was a little on the short side but at the end of the week receipts were heavier. Carnations had good sales, especially colored, roses in variety were in heavy demand and cleaned up satisfactorily. Everything along the line has had good sales. Paper White narcissus, which generally are too plentiful and always carried over were this time sold out.

Everybody is happy CHICAGO here. The new year is starting out in a way that means a new record for business. Every bit of stock that comes in sells for a good price, in some cases equal to that of Christmas, and the sum total is only limited by the quantity, which is inclined to be light. Carnations are still away up and will be till there is another crop on. Roses have been the main stay of the market for weeks and now they, too, are beginning to come in less quantity. The shortage is in all shades and there is no stock left over each day. American Beauty roses are in splendid condition, the stock being fine and the cuts heavy, and social events are using up the supply for house decorations, gifts, etc. The larger proportion comes in the long lengths. Sweet peas are not in excess of demand and stock sells out each day at a good price. Lily of the valley holds its own and no excess is likely to occur as pips are scarce and growers are careful not to bring on more than they can sell. Miscellaneous stock is limited. Violets are doing better than before the holidays.

New Year's business CINCINNATI was very good and rather took the florists by surprise. The induction into office of the newly elected and appointed city officials took up quite a bit of the better grades of stock and the demand for lily of the valley, violets and orchids was very good, being larger than the demand for these for Christmas. Among rose offerings are excellent Killarney, American Beauty, Ophelia, Sawyer, Richmond, Hoosier Beauty and Sunburst. Carnations are not very plentiful. Lilies longiflorum and magnificum are in good supply. Narcissus receipts are heavier. Daffodils, freesia and Roman hyacinths may now be had.

The customary stagnation in the flower market directly after the holidays has been nicely escaped this year up to present time. Weather conditions have no doubt had more or less to do with the proportions of the daily supply and there are other factors which have helped to this pleasing result. Business is not very heavy, either, and it is strongly intimated by the knowing ones that it is only a question of sunlight for a few days to change the aspect of the market very materially. It is very gratifying to see the values hold up so evenly for so long a period and we shall be glad if it should continue so for a few weeks longer. Bulbous material is rapidly taking a place of prominence in the wholesalers' stock. Carnations and roses are excellent, the latter gradually slacking up in quantity.

New Year's trade

PHILADELPHIA was as good as expected. Prices held firm on probably everything except cattleyas; these broke badly as the growers used poor judgment in their early estimates, failing to give the wholesalers proper information in advance as to what they were going to have. Carnations were as short as anything, nearly everybody being off crop, the warm fall having been too prolific. There was the usual scramble for reds but while flowers moved well, too, on account of mortuary work, deaths here lately having been unprecedented on account of the grip-pneumonia epidemic. Roses were in splendid demand, especially over the new year. Lily of the valley is scarce.

The present holiday

PITTSBURGH season has been by far the best in the annals of local commercial floriculture. With over 100,000 cases of pneumonia and influenza, the harvest of death has perhaps never before been as great in the brief period, and meanwhile entertaining for the debutantes, vacation school sets and society at large has gone on. Holiday flowers were fairly plentiful, and—as the wholesalers viewed it—sold at reasonable prices. However, it was noted, that with but few exceptions, flowers of the so-called "middle classes" were more in demand than those of higher degree and exorbitant cost.

New Year's came with

ST. LOUIS a rush and all the florists about town are well pleased with the business done for both big holidays. The market was not quite so stiff as it was Christmas, still prices are a little high especially on carnations which have been decidedly off crop for some time and now that the big rush is over no doubt normal prices will prevail from now on, as a big crop is expected for this month. Roses have been in constant good crop all during the past month and will also for this month. Other stock is coming in fine at all times. The trade expect a good steady demand from now on and this market can supply all these demands with good quality of stock.

The local de-

SAN FRANCISCO mand for flowerers shortened up very noticeably between Christmas and New Year's Day, but it was just as well for the trade as the supply was

A BOOK WORTH HAVING.

Dear Sirs:

The last letter we wrote you was an appreciation about Thomas' Book on Roses. We have had a lot of fun following his instructions this last summer and we consider the book worth much more than four dollars.
On a test bed of about one hundred roses planted in April, 1915, we grew over thirteen hundred blooms and could have had at least one-third more if we had not pruned out a lot of shoots to give more strength to the bushes. We could write a volume on the value of Thomas' book, but enough said.

REFLECTING ON ONE'S EMPLOYEE WITHOUT PROOF.

The following is a true story of a salesman who was discharged by his employer for reasons which were not true.

It was a case of a salesman who was discharged by his employer for reasons which were not true. The salesman claimed that this damaged his reputation very badly, and that the publicity which it carried prevented him from getting any more business. He stated that he was a very good person, and that he was a very good salesman. He stated that he was a very good person, and that he was a very good salesman. He stated that he was a very good person, and that he was a very good salesman.

than we would have sent had we not been in business in your territory has greatly suffered by reason of the unfortunate personal habits of our former salesman, Mr. —, whom we have now discharged. The salesman claimed that this damaged his reputation very badly, and that the publicity which it carried prevented him from getting any more business. He stated that he was a very good person, and that he was a very good salesman. He stated that he was a very good person, and that he was a very good salesman.

Yours truly,

R. B. C. & Co.

The salesman has in case whatever if his former employers can prove what they said about him. If it is true that he has "unfortunate personal habits," and that those unfortunate personal habits did upset business in his territory, and if both these facts can be proven in court, the salesman's case will go up in smoke. It is fundamental that in a civil action to recover damages for libel, the person sued can always defend on the ground that what he said was the truth. Nobody can be unjustly damaged by the truth.

It is different where the action is a criminal one. If this salesman was threatening to arrest his employers for libel, instead of suing them for damages, they would be in position to worry more about it, because in many States the truth of the charges is not a defense in an action for criminal libel. True or not, it is still libel, and the defendant can go to jail for it, even though he spoke the absolute truth. In fact, everybody has heard the proverb, "the greater the truth, the greater the libel." The theory at the bottom of criminal libel is that the offense consists not in saying false things about one's neighbor, but in stirring up that neighbor to a breach of the peace. This has always been the law as to criminal libel, but the courts are coming more and more to take the view that if the thing said was true, and particularly, if there neither civil nor criminal action will lie.

Employers are being kinder to their salesmen in what they say about their employees. A manufacturer well-known to me detected or thought he detected, one of his salesmen stealing from him. Without calling the man to the end of the road, he had him called in before his office force and reprimanded him in the most splendid way as a thief. The man denied it flatly and defied his employer to show that he had stolen anything. This the manufacturer was unable to do, in a way which amounted to legal proof. The employee at once sued for heavy damages and the manufacturer had to compromise for a substantial sum. It was wholly unnecessary. The employer should have waited until he knew he could prove what he said; then he would have been safe in saying it.

In another case the general manager of a jobbing concern left and started in business for himself. A bitter feud developed, in the course of which the ex-manager sent out a notice to the trade that his former employer had been guilty of short weight practices while he was with him. The jobber at once entered suit for damages and when the case was tried the former manager utterly failed with his proofs. He could not prove what he had charged, and a verdict for $3,500 was rendered against him. What he charged would not have been libel if he could have proven it.

Sometimes the statements of an employer about an employee, made under proper circumstances, are protected for another reason—because they are privileged. A is a bookkeeper for B, but is discharged for incompetency and dishonesty. He applies to C for a position and gives B as a reference, hoping C won't ask B about it. C does ask B and is told that A was discharged for incompetency and dishonesty. This if untrue is gross libel, and B would be in for all sorts of trouble. And even if true, B might be arrested for criminal libel, were it not that under such circumstances the statement was what the law calls privileged. In other words, B had a right to make it, and he can neither be arrested nor compelled to pay damages.

The law holds the reputation of an employee, or anybody in business, tenderly, and regards as a grievous offense any statement which unduly reflects upon it. This should be added to one's fundamental rules of business: never to say a seriously disparaging word about anybody else's honesty, or integrity, or credit, or competency, unless one has in his possession then, sufficient proof of its truth.

(Copyright, September, 1915, by Elton J. Buckle.)

Flower Market Reports

The end of roses and carnations has been rather light but the quality averages well and the best stock brings high prices. With the general shortage even second and third-rate carnations demand fair prices. Lily of the valley is scarce and firm, and orchids are not overly plentiful. Gardenias are in light supply also. As for the flowering plant trade an excellent Christmas business was enjoyed, but the offerings are still fairly plentiful, and the stock is fine for the most part. Fine cyclamen is shown and the late azaleas are in good demand, also heather, which appears in considerable variety. A few poinsettias are still to be seen and begonias and primulas maintain their popularity well. Free-sias were a little late in appearing, and the cold weather has set them back again, but a good cut is expected in a few days.

Business last week

WASHINGTON was very satisfactory. A large number of dinners and other entertainments have enabled the retailers to utilize such flowers and plants as were left over after the Christmas rush. The New Year's Day trade was reported as better than last year to a slight extent. Lily of the valley has been in large demand. The sale of American Beauties and Richmond roses fell off considerably and there are large quantities of these coming in. Pink roses have been scarce and these clean up daily. There is a large supply of violets. Carnations are not now moving very well. All of the local growers of roses seem to have had these on crop at the same time and there has been almost a glut.

PAN-PACIFIC PRESS ASSOCIATION, LTD.

San Francisco, Calif.

October 16, 1915.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Horticulture Jury, of which the writer was a member, awarded you a Gold Medal for your Insecticides, and when you take into consideration the fact that that Jury, outside of the writer, was composed of some of the famous experts of the world, you will realize the importance of this award. Verification of this may be obtained from Mr. George A. Dennison, Chief of Horticulture, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The writer has been requested to furnish a list of the articles which the Jury endorsed by their action in awarding prizes because of merit. This request comes from representatives of foreign countries and states.

Respectfully yours,

SCOTCH SOOT

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches, and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

We offer the genuine in original cwt.

Sunday, December 26, the greenhouses of Eugene S. Drake on Fairfield Ave., were badly smashed by the falling of a chimney weighing twenty tons. The falling bricks not only shattered all the glass in the four greenhouses, but also damaged the heating apparatus, so that it was necessary to use oil stoves and even bonfires to keep the flowers from freezing until they could be removed into other greenhouses. A force of 30 men were at work during a large share of the afternoon caring for the flowers, many of which were Easter lilies.This greenhouse which is being used for

It's the Same With the Greenhouse Business As It Is With Other Business

ONE of the really funny things about business is, that so many business men think that their business has nothing to do with any other business.

You and I, however, know that every business, in one way or another, effects every other business.

Of course, there will always be the so-called "Lucky Devil," or the man who accidentally falls into the soft things, and thinks he did it all himself. But more and more, success in business is being reduced to an exact science.

Take the bankers, for instance, they have the most exasperating way of shutting down on loaning a fellow money, at times when the sky seemingly never looked bluer or business better.

Then they also look on the bright side when business, for all you and I are getting out of it, is still very much to the bad.

Bankers know their business. Not only their business, but they have records and charts of exactly how all kinds of business have acted for years and years. That's one of them at the top.

They go by some such chart.

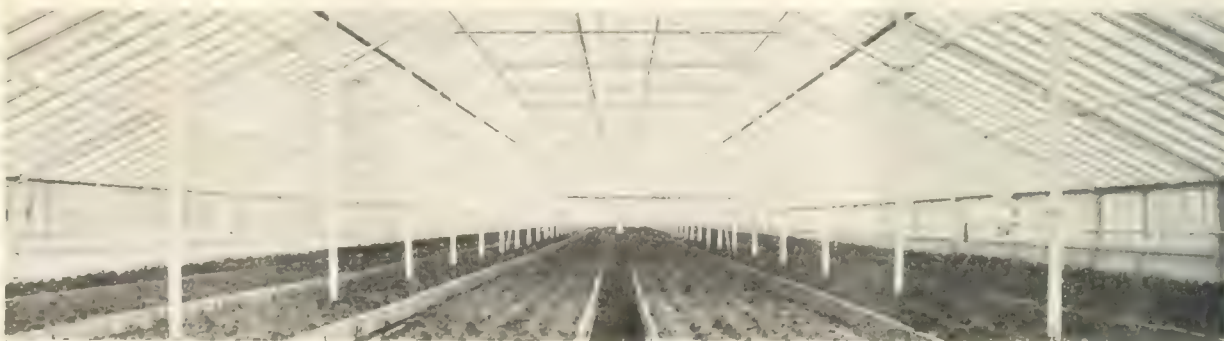

The July before the war broke out, the charts said better business was due, and nothing but war could stop it.

If war orders were cut off tomorrow, business would promptly adjust itself and go booming along.

It's due to be here, and it's here. Careful, conservative men like Mr. L. B. Coddington of Murray Hill, believed so firmly that it was to be here, that long before it actually was here, he ordered thousands of dollars worth of greenhouses from us. It was one of the largest single greenhouse contracts he has ever placed.

Why don't you get in on this business boom by building more houses? Forget all that hot air talk about there being "too much glass."

You know we go anywhere for business or to talk business.

Chas. Smith & Sons, Bound Brook, N. J., believed in better business. So early last summer they put their belief and their money into one of our Reconstructed Construction Houses 18 feet wide by 100 feet long.

FOR THE HOME GARDEN
by
GEORGE C. THOMAS, JR.

Elaborately Illustrated with 96 Perfect Reproductions in Full Color of All Varieties of Roses, and a Few Half-tone Plates. Octavo, Handsome Cloth Binding, in a Slip Case. $4.00 net. Postage Extra.

We have sold a number of copies of this sterling book. One purchaser writes as follows:

HORTICULTURE, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir: Some time ago we ordered a copy of Thomas' Book on Roses. We promised to send you postage as soon as we learned the amount. The book was so good that we forgot all about postage until today. Please forgive our lapse of memory.

We loaned it to a friend and he likes it so well we're afraid that we will have to buy another.

Respectfully,

New York. A. R.

A BOOK WORTH HAVING.

Dear Sirs:

The last letter we wrote you was an appreciation about Thomas' Book on Roses. We have had a lot of fun following his instructions this last summer and we consider the book worth much more than four dollars. On a test bed of about one hundred roses planted in April, 1915, we grew over thirteen hundred blooms and could have had at least one-third more if we had not pruned out a lot of shoots to give more strength to the bushes. We could write a volume on the value of Thomas' book, but enough said.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If rain our toll, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Adiantum Farleyense

For propagating divide into single crowns only and insert these into the sand in a propagating bench with brisk bottom heat and a house temperature of about 65 degrees. Let them form compact clumps of new roots and then pot carefully and again place the potted plants over bottom heat, later on separating them into several grades according to difference in growth. When these are firmly rooted they should be potted into 2-inch pots in a good sod soil to which fine gravel or coarse sand and some peat or leaf mold is added. They can also be propagated by division of the large specimens into clusters of several crowns and these potted in a very sandy and peaty soil, and placed on a bottom heated bench kept moderately moist and heavily shaded until well established.

Carnations

Attention should at once be given to the increase of such varieties as have proved the most desirable for one's trade. Looking ahead a whole year, as growers must needs do, the probabilities are that while the less productive sorts will bring about the same figure, the variety less in favor now will be held in still lower estimation next season. Trade conditions must govern all such matters, but if scarlet is to be grown, early propagation must be practiced, not only beginning operations in good season but putting into the sand in either one or two large batches not far apart.

General Propagating

Push along now on the heliotropes, sweet-scented verbenas, fuchsias, bedding geraniums, alternantheras, crotons, colored dracaenas, dillenbachias, tittemas and other warm-house plants. Do not forget a good batch of marguerites. Those carried over summer in pots will make the best possible plants for blooming another winter. If you want a late planting of snapdragons for Memorial Day, root the cuttings now. Keep the cutting bench well filled. The useful winter blooming Erica melanthera can be rooted in the bench which is used for carnations. Rub off short shoots with a heel for the best results. It is a good plan to root a quantity of coleus from the old stock plants carried over. Keep these old plants for another batch of cuttings and then throw them away as they get full of mealy bug.

Lorraine and Cincinnati Begonias

Early propagated leaf cuttings of these begonias should be kept growing right along now. Those that are rooted in the sand should be lifted without delay and potted. These plants like a light sandy mixture so give them a compost of about four parts good loam, two parts leaf mold and one part well-rotted manure with some sand. Keep them where the night temperature runs about 60 degrees and on the dry side rather than on the wet side, giving some shade when the sun is powerful. They will want a somewhat close and moderately humid atmosphere and as close to the glass as possible. Ventilation will have to be properly managed now so as to meet the many excessive changes in temperature.

Marguerites

Marguerites propagated last spring should now be in 6 or 7-inch pots and of good size. They like a temperature from 50 to 55 degrees during the night, with 10 to 15 degrees higher with sunshine, and plenty of fresh air when possible. In order to flower well they should become pot bound. As the pots are filled with roots they will require plenty of water and feeding twice a week. The present is a suitable time to put in a good batch of cuttings which will come in handy for late spring sales. These, if kept potted along, will make nice bushy stock in 6-inch pots by late spring. Give them any necessary repotting in a rich compost, and be sure to always give them an abundance of water at the roots. Plants that were struck during August or September should be kept potted up until they are in 6 or 7-inch size and these will make fine stock for Decoration Day.

Icy Blasts

Now is the time we all will have to watch out for the frigid northwest gales and not get caught unawares, with inadequate fuel supply, pipes bursting, boilers giving out, etc. See that the coal bunkers are filled, heating apparatus in tip top order. Take no chances.

Next Week:—Acacias; Dimorphotheca aurantiaca; Ferns; Grevillea robusta; Maurandias and Thunbergias; Feverfew for Memorial Day.

John J. Halle, a representative of a retired and retiring shipyard, was asked to be named as the collector, especially because, in his line, the amount involved can with greater propriety be ascertained. Flowers should be the result of the tool in the list of business in a businessable.

One of the direct results of the European war, affecting the florist trade, is the necessity for providing in some way the floral subjects and other goods formerly supplied by the old lands of the central European countries. Our wholesale importing houses did not take time to change this situation, so to preserve the possibilities of forming the closing of their long-established sources of supply. A ready-made domestic production of these goods was assumed as a matter of proportion, and yet the industry as an American institution is only in its infancy. Best of all, is the fact, not admitted to one, one "with half an eye," that the styles and originality in the goods being turned out here are far superior in both conception and artistic finish to the goods formerly imported from Europe. Everything seems to indicate that this industry is a permanent acquisition for our home trade and that, regardless of the outcome in Europe, the importation of this class of material for the florist trade is largely a thing of the past.

In our talk before the Horticultural Club of Boston last week, W. A. Manda urged that the propagation of hardy garden herbaceous plants by seed should be more generally followed by growers in this country in preference to the more common method of root division. The result, Mr. Manda believed, would be, in time, a substantial increase in new forms and a general advancement in quality over the long cultivated types. Once a "break" is started the progress of evolution would be startling. Many of our native plants, for example, still exist only in their primitive form although even in that stage they seem to suggest more promising possibilities than are apparent in the original wild chrysanthemum of China and Japan from which our highly cultivated varieties have all been evolved. One need not think long or deep to conjure up wondrous things in imagination. There are plenty of subjects within the reach of any budding Lemoines well equipped with the required zeal, judgment, patience and humility.

The Horticultural Trade Journal (England) is carrying some interesting communications on the question of rose improvement and the qualities which should now be striven for by the hybridist. Immunity from certain diseases or fungous attacks is one of the ideals favorably urged and the correspondents referred to seem to regard immunity from mildew, black spot and similar maladies as within the possibility of attainment. Resistance to black spot is certainly a quality worth striving for and since there are already sorts apparently immune, because of the texture or other character of their foliage, the goal seems not an impossible one. As one of the writers mentioned says—"The combination of the plant pathologist and the practical breeder has resulted in things hitherto strange and little understood, now beginning to take their place in an orderly scheme, and this new knowledge has, as one of its most important aspects, the control it will ultimately give the breeder over disease and deformity." It is suggested that disease-resistant character should be given a place in the judging scales for new roses.

Undoing progress

We are sorry to see the Harvard junior prom committee take the reactionary stand which they have in regard to the use of flowers at the various entertainments planned for the present season. They have officially requested those students who are to attend, to omit sending flowers to their feminine friends, as a matter of "economy." Those who know the small proportionate part which flowers fill in the expense account of the average student will smile at the suggestion. The

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Keeping Tab on Young Stock

It will be of great advantage to the grower to plan his next year's planting right now and propagate the plants for the different houses accordingly. If some of the houses are to be planted real late it is still too early to put the cuttings in, especially if all the benches are doing good, as the space the young plants would take will be too valuable. Then too the plants get quite big in the four-inch pots, and if it is not possible to give them all the room they will need they will not keep very well, as they are hard to syringe and water when they get too big. We like to give the cuttings four months to make plants large enough. Sometimes even less. This will keep them on the move all the time and there will be little danger of stunting. After the first potting we always allow one-tenth of the number for dead ones and another tenth of the number for poor plants that will not be perfect enough to use. In this way we have no trouble to have the required number on hand at the proper time. It is necessary to know when the houses are to be planted however, in order to work this scheme out well.

Keep the Young Plants Clean

See that there is no greenfly, spider, or mildew to hinder the young plants. If allowed to become infested now they will show the mark all through their life. It is difficult to spray the young stock unless it is done with a brass greenhouse syringe, as the fly will get under the leaves and it is almost impossible to get at them. Smoking will take them out however, and a little syringing following will clean whatever fly there may be if this is done once every week. This syringing will also take care of the spider, which should not appear as yet unless the wood used for cuttings was infested. Great care should be taken not to get any mildew on the young plants as this would prove a severe check to their growth and they would always be getting it even after they are planted into the benches. Should a speck of mildew appear here and there, see that a little sulphur is applied to the pipes, or that they are sprayed at once with Fungine. We would not dust the little plants with sulphur as this is likely to work into the soil, and it is likely to do harm. So do not dust them unless there is no other way out. It is also very important to keep the surface of the soil in the pots free from green stuff. If nice clean pots were used there will not be very much trouble from this direction until after the plants have been in the pots for quite a while. At any rate it should be removed with small scrapers as soon as it gets at all bad. All dead or poor plants can be removed while this work is done and at the same time all the tall plants set on the north side of the bench if the houses run east and west. The small plants should come forward to the south side so they will get more light and air and get a better chance to dry out. Placing the plants in this way will give all of them a good chance to come along, for if it were not done the taller and stronger ones would soon crowd out the smaller and weaker, which would fall to blackspot and other diseases, and these would likely spread to the stronger plants later.

Ventilation on Cloudy Days

It will be necessary to be very careful on cloudy days, for those are the days that mildew is bound to work in. Never run the houses up to more than 70. 66 is about right. If they are kept cooler than this they are liable to chill the plants, and a sprinkling of mildew will be the result. There are wet foggy days at times when it is best not to open the ventilators at all, except in the wide house. Much air should not be carried on days like these, a small crack being all that will be safe. If the house persists in going up turn off the heat a little and keep the temperature down. A clear day following a day or two or more of foggy weather will set the plants back into shape again if the houses are not allowed to get too warm. 70 or 72 will be plenty, and the plants will not feel the change so much. On the second or third clear day the temperature can be brought up to the regular heat for days, namely 76-78. The plants may wilt a little the first clear day but this will not hurt them any. If they are kept cool they will not wilt so badly. As near as we could ascertain this is caused by the inactive roots which get lazy during the cloudy weather, and when a clear day comes along, taking a good deal of water from the leaves, the roots are not right there to supply the necessary amount. They will soon get to work again though and with renewed energy as a rule. It will also be better for the plants if they are not syringed until the second clear day after a cloudy spell.

THE RIGHTS OF AN EMPLOYEE.

W. R. Fowkes of Cooperstown, N. Y., writes in appreciative and complimentary terms regarding the communication which appeared on page 60 of last week's issue of HORTICULTURE, on the practice of reflecting on one's employee without proof. "It often happens," says Mr. Fowkes, "that a man leaves an employer in a fair, honest manner to take a higher paid position. The employer, not seeing his way clear to pay the man a salary sufficient to retain him, yet is resentful and unwilling to give him the good reference he merits, while on the other hand another employer will give an employee an overdrawn reference in order to get rid of him." Mr. Fowkes cites an instance in support of the foregoing where the head gardener on a large estate after two years' satisfactory service incurred the jealousy of the superintendent and after resigning his position found the resultant animosity standing in the way of his obtaining another position.

Of course, such cases of injustice and malignity are all too common, but they are far from being the rule, and there are two sides to every question. The article which Mr. Fowkes commends was published to show those who consider themselves aggrieved or persecuted just what their legal rights are in such encounters and we are glad if it serves this purpose.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

President Weston's Inaugural Address.

Members of the New York Florists' Club:

It seems to me as you stand here at the start of 1916, that our public expression of appreciation of the honor you have done us is justified, due to the high office the duties of which it shall be my pleasure to discharge in a manner satisfactory to you, and in the best interests of the club. The work of our organization is well and favorably known not only throughout our own country, but abroad. It is known for the business-like features which characterize its management, and insure a continuous growth of its membership. It is known for the great harmony and good fellowship which exists within it, making its motto, "All one," truly a descriptive one. And it is known for the excellent work it has done and is doing for the uplift of floriculture and the welfare of all connected with the art. It is an organization to which all of us are proud to belong, and with whose work we feel honored to be connected.

The club's work has been so well organized and conducted, so well thought out, and opportunities for action so well conceived that little, if anything, can be suggested at the present time as likely to increase the usefulness of the club or work out to our advantage. Our greatest work at this time is, of course, to be found in the preparations for our forthcoming spring flower show in New York, and this work, I am glad to say, is in most capable hands, and the indications are that we shall score another great success, thereby enhancing the reputation of our club among our fellow workers the world over.

Last year we invited the S. A. F. and O. H. to hold its 32nd annual convention in our city this year, but, unfortunately, prior claims made by the southern city of Houston prevailed, and our invitation failed of acceptance. The desirability of making an effort to induce the National Society to hold its 1917 convention here is a matter which should early be discussed. I understand that the society will, at the Houston convention, also decide upon the city in which to hold its 1918 convention, in order that more time may be available for the establishment of the convention garden. This being the case, our chance for securing at least one of these conventions should be good.

In appointing our standing committees for the year, I have deemed it advisable to return to the custom of the years preceding last year, observing the same as regards the numerical strength of the committees. Ample trial was made last year of large committees, but they were not found conducive to the best interests of the club.

We have entered upon a year which

Saturday, Jan. 22.

Dobbs Ferry Gardeners' Association, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

it is fervently hoped will prove to be a good one for our trade, and there is every reason to believe that our hopes may materialize. Indications of a condition of prosperity among our great industries are not wanting, and when prosperity reigns the florist trade is sufficiently active to insure good business. From the bottom of my heart I wish you all a most happy and prosperous year, and I trust that at its close I shall take into retirement with me a remembrance of your loyal and unstinted help in the administration of the office you have reposed in me, and the assurance that we together have added another to the many successful years of our club's existence.

The Meeting.

The opening meeting of the new year, held on Monday evening, January 10, was a rouser. No less than 175 members were present to pay their respects to President Weston and his retinue of officers old and new, on whose shoulders rest the responsibilities of the coming year. The situation was also enlivened by the presence of two lively visitors from "way down east," A. E. Thatcher and John Stalford, of Bar Harbor, Me. The new officers were installed and those of them who were on hand, as well as several newly elected members, made most able addresses, evincing faithful attention to the interests of the organization during the coming year. President Weston made a most pleasing impression, his winning manners and happy methods gaining the attention and confidence of the meeting from the very start. The trustees' report indicated that the club had almost $10,000 in the treasury on January 1. A vote was passed providing that the profits from shows be put in a separate account to be known as Flower Show Fund.

A. L. Miller reported progress for the big Spring Flower Show in New York. Mr. Miller reported also on the work being done in preparation for "New York Day" at the National Flower Show in Philadelphia, expressing confidence that the number who will participate in the trip on that day will exceed four hundred. Mr. Stalford presented greetings and cordial good wishes on behalf of the Bar Harbor Horticultural Society and Mr. Thatcher followed with an enthusiastic talk on the Sweet Pea exhibition to be held in Bar Harbor next summer, offering a gold medal for the best exhibit of sweet peas sent to that show grown or exhibited by a grower from New York, New Jersey or Long Island. Mr. Stalford on his part agreed to pay expenses of the winner to Bar Harbor. Both these gentlemen were eloquently enthusiastic regarding Maine's floral attractions and the opportunity now presented for the Sweet Pea Society to broaden out and expand its activities. On motion of C. B. Weathered the sum of $25 was appropriated by the club as a prize for the best exhibit of sweet peas at Bar Harbor by a member of the Bar Harbor Horticultural Society.

Max Schling advocated the adoption of some plan whereby worthy unemployed gardeners might be assisted to obtain positions. Mr. Schling's kindly interest in the welfare of the young gardeners especially, was evident in his remarks and the sentiments expressed were very favorably received.

Dr. John S. Adriance, of Williamstown, Mass., gave a very forcible address on the subject of "How Shall the Soil be Prepared so as to Yield the Maximum Money Value?" The speaker was disappointed by the non-arrival of a lantern or curtain until 10 P. M., but notwithstanding this very serious handicap he made a fine impression. His talk was noticeably free from scientific technical matter, being a plain, common-sense presentation of a very vital subject and one of the most useful lectures the club has listened to.

A letter from Wm. Kleinheinz, of Ogontz, Pa., chairman of the exhibits committee of the National Flower Show, urging the united support of the club members and appealing for exhibits from this section was favorably received and Secretary Young was ordered to acknowledge same and assure Mr. Kleinheinz of the hearty support by the club of Philadelphia's great event by every means in its power.

Awards on exhibits were made as follows: John Lappe, cultural certificate for very fine freesia, staged by Phil Kessler. Peter Beurlein, highly commended for light pink and dark pink sports of Enchantress carnation. W. A. Manda, thanks for seedling carnation. James Duthie, certificate of merit for a most elegant display of Primula malacoides Townsendii. Andrew Schlevogt, thanks for a vase of very fine "pussy willows." Guttman & Raynor, thanks for rose Mme. P. Euler from the Florex Gardens, carnation Laura Weber from C. W. Weber and Peace from Frank Dinda.

J. Harrison Dick, W. C. Rickards and W. A. Sperling were appointed a committee to prepare resolutions on the death of W. E. Marshall's brother. President Weston made the following appointments: Exhibition committee—Robert Koehne, chairman; R. J. Irwin, Chas. W. Knight, Peter Beurlein and P. B. Rigby. House committee—George Hildenbrand, chairman; Joseph Vocke and A. N. Kinney. Legislative committee—W. F. Sheridan, chairman; W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., James McHutchison. Essay committee—J. H. Pepper, A. F. Faulkner and R. J. Lewis. Annual dinner—C. B. Weathered, chairman; J. B. Nugent, Jos. A. Manda, W. F. Sheridan, Emil Schloss, A. Kottmiller and T. B. DeForest. Awards committee—P. W. Popp, chairman; C. H. Totty, Julius Roehrs, L. J. Reuter, M. Matheron, W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., and Chas. Weber.

The commissary department, under Phil Kessler's able direction, made a new record of efficiency not only in the viands provided and the manner of their distribution, but in the addition of musical entertainment, buck and wing dancing, etc. It was an ideal program just suiting the occasion. Among the artists were Wm. Schilowsky of Woodside, the Coogan Quartette, Wm. Robinson and Mr. Otto.

Resolutions on Death of W. Atlee Burpee.

At a meeting of the committee appointed to take action on the death of W. Atlee Burpee, the committee, speaking for the members of the New York Florists' Club, desires to express in their humble manner, its appreciation of the life-long, untiring efforts of W. Atlee Burpee in the interest of horticulture. Gardening activities everywhere had his attention and support. His high standard of honorable business methods, all may well strive to follow.

Florists the world over have sustained an inexpressible loss in the death of W. Atlee Burpee. Those of us who knew him personally knew him as a cherished friend. Those who knew him only through business dealings felt the kindly influence of his nature in his business methods. In his death the members of the New York Florists' Club deeply feel the loss of their esteemed fellow horticulturist.

Resolved, That this resolution be spread on the minutes of the New York Florists' Club and a copy sent to the family.

E. C. Vick, chairman; Harry A. Bunyard, W. A. Sperling, W. C. Rickards, J. B. Deamud.

NEW YORK FEDERATION.

Following is the proposed program for the meeting of the New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, to be held at Ithaca, N. Y., on Wednesday, Feb'y 9, 1916:

HOUSTON CONVENTION GARDEN.

George E. Kessler of St. Louis, Mo., is acting in an advisory capacity for the S. A. F. convention garden, 1916, in Houston, Texas. We are very fortunate in having secured the services of Mr. Kessler in this work. He has supervised the construction of some of the largest parking systems in the country; having acted as consulting landscape artist for the park systems of Indianapolis, Ind., St. Louis, Mo., Ft. Wayne, Ind., Dallas, Texas, Cincinnati, O., Kansas City, Mo., Memphis, Tenn., Houston, Texas.

Kansas City is famous for its park system. Mr. Kessler laid out and carried to completion the parks and parking system of Kansas City, so we feel that our convention garden is already an assured success; with the advice of Mr. Kessler and the competent and efficient work of Mr. C. L. Brock, it makes me feel we are making a record-breaker.

R. C. KERR, Vice-Pres.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

There will be an exhibition of plants and flowers given by this society at the American Museum of Natural History on Wednesday, January 19th. Schedules are now ready and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York City. Premiums are offered for orchids, carnations, sweet peas, schizanthus and snapdragons. One of the uses of these monthly exhibitions is to furnish opportunity to gardeners to exhibit whatever they may have in fine condition at that time, and for this reason the exhibition committee is empowered to award special prizes for things not provided for in the schedule. Gardeners are therefore invited to bring in plants or flowers of unusual interest or of unusual excellence in cultivation. The medals of the society may also be awarded to the best vases of new varieties of carnations.

A meeting of the society will be held in the afternoon at 3.45, followed at 4 by a lecture by W. N. Craig, superintendent at Faulkner Farm, Brookline, Mass., on "The Home Flower Garden." This announcement insures an interesting and practical talk on a subject of much interest at the present time.

GEORGE V. NASH, Sec'y.

ROCHESTER FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

At the annual meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association, held Jan. 10th at their club rooms, Charles H. Vick was re-elected president, Harry E. Bates vice-president, Ambrose H. Secker secretary, and George T. Boucher treasurer. John Dunbar was re-elected as one of the three trustees, Jacob Thomann and Hugo Teute being the other two members chosen.

Ambrose Secker read a very interesting paper on newspaper advertising as entered into by florists of other cities, both jointly and individually. The florists of the Rochester Association have tried joint advertising in an experimental sort of way this past year and whereas of course results are very hard to trace directly in this kind of advertising, it was the general consensus of opinion that it paid. Mr. Secker's paper was received very enthusiastically, as it was of real merit.

George T. Boucher, chairman of the music committee provided an excellent musical program, being ably assisted by Prof. Wagner. We cannot say too much in favor and appreciation of the work Mr. Boucher has done along the lines of musical programs. It not only adds greatly to the entertainment of the members, but is a welcome diversion from the regular routine business of club meetings.

Chairman Nathan Graves with his able assistants provided a splendid buffet luncheon which was appreciated by all. We say "appreciated," not only from the fact that a lunch is always welcome after a protracted meeting, but genuine appreciation of the work of Mr. Graves and his committee, as there is no little work entailed in providing lunches for a good sized meeting.

The Association regretted very much H. B. Stringer's refusal to accept renomination for the secretaryship. Mr. Stringer's long service in this capacity with the Rochester Florists' Association has been a marked tribute to his sterling qualities and devotion to the Association. It is regretted by all that personal matters are taking the time which he feels ...the ... .. also ... .. the ... .. will ... ..

... .. released ... .. the ... .. in his stead. Mr. Keller also has per- ... .. in the capacity of treasurer for the Rochester Florists' Association, and the extra responsibilities, time, etc., entailed by flower shows have drawn heavily on Mr. Keller's time from his steadily increasing personal business. The association is deeply indebted to Mr. Keller and feel that he has justly earned a release from the exacting duties of treasurer.

The Rochester Florists' Association is starting out on a new year of its successful life and with Mr. Vick again at the head there is every reason to believe that this association will enjoy the advancement that it has steadily gained in the past. The Association stands very high with the city officials, the press and Rochesterians as a whole gaining this appreciated confidence by the excellence of its flower shows, its willingness to enter all public spirited movements for the betterment and beautification of Rochester, and its splendid co-operation with the Industrial Exposition.

It is expected that the bowling team will continue its splendid work this coming year, and will receive the hearty co-operation of the Association as a whole. There is nothing that will bring together and broaden the acquaintance of various florists' clubs and societies as much as the sportsmanlike rivalry in bowling tournaments, joint banquets, etc.

PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

At the meeting of this club in the Fort Pitt Hotel on the evening of Jan. 4th, nominations of officers for 1916 were made as follows: For president, Carl Becherer, Dixmont, Pa., and Neil McCallum, West End Park, Pittsburgh; secretary, A. Frishkorn, Pittsburgh, and H. P. Joslin, Ben Avon, Pa.; for the balance the present officials were renominated in a body. Election takes place February 1st.

From Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., was received a box of the Mrs. Bayard Thayer rose; fine deep pink, good texture, fragrant, stiff stems; a very fine rose, indeed. J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O., sent two plants of Glory of Cincinnati which made a magnificent showing. M. Curran, Sewickley, showed a fine plant of Buddleia Asiatica, and Thos. Sturgis, also of Sewickley, a basket of tempting mushrooms. To these last three exhibitors cultural commendation was awarded.

At 8.30 P. M. the club adjourned to the Norse room and listened to a lantern lecture by W. E. C. Todd of Carnegie Museum, on Travels and Adventures in Hudson Bay Territory. Mr. Todd spent three seasons in collecting birds in this territory for the Museum, and the lecture and the views of the strange scenery in this little-known section of North America were very interesting.

MASSACHUSETTS FORESTRY ASSOCIATION.

All arrangements have been made for the Thirty-Fifth Annual Conference of the American Forestry Association to be held in Boston at the Copley-Plaza, January 17 and 18. The meetings will begin at two o'clock on the afternoon of January 17. A banquet will be held at 7.30 in the evening and there will be an all-day meeting beginning at 10 o'clock on January 18. All meetings will be held at the Copley-Plaza.

National, state and municipal forestry will be discussed together with the problems concerning lumbering, fire protection and insect control. Many of the leaders in the forestry movement in this country will be on the program at these meetings.

Conservationists from nearly every part of the country will be present and all New Englanders who are interested in the care and preservation of the forests will find these meetings instructive and enjoyable. The meetings will be open to the public and seats at the banquet can be engaged through the Massachusetts Forestry Association, 4 Joy street, Boston.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF WASHINGTON.

The rooms of the American Institute of Banking were turned into an impromptu motion picture theatre on the occasion of the monthly meeting of the club, and the members were enabled to view scenes of the war in films taken at the front, as well as enjoy the comics that were furnished.

President Cooke appointed a committee of Harry B. Lewis, Milton Thomas and M. J. McCabe, to make plans for transportation for the local florists to the National Flower Show at Philadelphia. They were also instructed to communicate with florists in other places, such as Richmond, Va., with a view to having them join the Washingtonians in their special car.

It was announced that President Cooke had been selected as vice-president of the S. A. F. and O. H. for D. C., while William F. Gude, the treasurer, has been again selected as national representative and chairman of the legislative committee.

SOUTHAMPTON HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The above Society held its annual and general meeting in the Village Room, Southampton, N. Y., on Jan. 6th, when the following officers were elected for the following year:

President—M. MacLaughlin; vice-president—Mr. Malcolm; secretary—H. Wells; press sec'y—S. R. Candler; financial sec'y—W. Dickson; treasurer—J. Johnson.

It was decided to hold the annual dinner on Jan. 27th in the Commercial Hotel, Southampton. The regular meeting will be held on Jan. 20th at 8 P. M. in the Odd Fellows' Hall, Southampton.

S. R. CANDLER.

THE PARK INSTITUTE OF NEW ENGLAND.

The next meeting of the Park Institute of New England will be held at New Haven, Conn., with Superintendent of Parks F. X. Ambryn, Jan. 26th.

Mr. Percival Gallagher, associated with Olmsted Brothers, has consented to speak on, "Lines and Curves of Park Roads and Walks." After his talk will be a chance for further discussion of this subject by the members. Visitors are urged to get into New Haven by noon or before, and meet in the Park Office in the City Hall, opposite the Green.

G. H. HOLLISTER,
Manager, Hartford, Conn.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Cincinnati Florists' Society's meeting last Monday evening was well attended. W. Ray Murphy gave the final report of the Relief Committee appointed after the storm last summer. The first step toward a big flower show next fall was taken when Pres. Max Rudolph appointed preliminary committee consisting of C. E. Critchell, chairman, Jos. Hill, W. Ray Murphy, J. A. Peterson and Henry Shepperd to investigate and report at the next meeting of the Society. After the meeting refreshments were served.

R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Texas, has accepted a place on the program at the meeting of the Tennessee State Florists' Association to be held in Nashville, Jan. 24. Subject will be "What the coming of the S. A. F. to the South means to the Southern Florists." It is hoped that this will help to stir up quite an interest in the South in the S. A. F. between now and convention time. Mr. Kerr, as vice-president of the S. A. F., will make an effort to arrange meetings at some of the other important Southern cities, about the same time.

PERENNIAL LUPINS.

The accompanying illustration shows a plantation of Lupinus polyphyllus in the grounds of the Mt. Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me. These lupins are among the showiest and most robust growers in the hardy perennial border and in the pure tints of rose, white and purple make splendid mass effects. Within the past two seasons they have made their appearance in the cut-flower market in New York and have attained popularity as cut flowers already.

A PROMISING LATE CHRYSANTHEMUM.

At the regular meeting of the Buffalo Florist Club held on Tuesday, January 4th, Charles Guenther, whose greenhouses are located at Hamburg, N. Y., placed on exhibition a vase of very fine chrysanthemums. These were a pure white Maude Dean, not a particle of pink on any one of them. Mr. Guenther stated that they bloom the latest and have the best keeping quality of any variety yet grown and when they can be had at this time of season, especially when other stock is scarce, there would be an excellent demand and the price obtained would encourage the grower to produce them. The vase of blooms was later placed in the Kasting Company store and although they have now been cut ten days they look as good in every respect as if they were cut from the plants at this time. Mr. Guenther cut the most of this lot between Christmas and New Year, just the time when they could be used to good advantage.

VIEW IN SCHENLEY PARK, PITTSBURGH.

Schenley Park is one of Pittsburgh's proudest possessions. Our cover illustration shows one of its most pleasing outlooks. The Robert Burns monument and the Phipps Hall of Botany are the central features. But there is a fine herbaceous border in the middle background which is brilliantly effective in the summer time and a bit of modest scroll work in bedding plants may be indistinctly seen in the foreground.

THE PHILADELPHIA SPIRIT.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

In your issue of HORTICULTURE under date of January 8th, under the heading of "A giant turned loose" in the editorial columns, I note you pay a glowing tribute to Philadelphia's responsibilities and capabilities in handling the big show which we are to have with us in a short time. Philadelphia too, (quoting from another editorial, same issue) does not boast of what she can do, but give her a chance and "she'll get there too, and then some."

There is no doubt about it that the coming show will eclipse anything of the kind that has ever been attempted. We are getting support from everybody, everywhere. The horticulturist, floriculturist, and every branch of business connected with our profession will be represented as never before. Keep up the good work in your editorials and in your news columns so that the measure of success for this great show will be filled to overflowing.

Our stenographer tells me that you failed to mention in your editorial, that every bit of mail leaving our office carries a poster stamp of the coming great event. (So does all mail leaving HORTICULTURE'S office, Ed.) Of course we appreciate that this must have been an oversight on your part and that it won't occur again.

Wishing HORTICULTURE as full a measure of success as we contemplate for the great National Flower Show of 1916, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

WM. J. MUTH

Lansdowne, Pa.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

The National Flower Show, which has been in Philadelphia on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, is the largest indoor flower show ever held in the United States. It is the first time that the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce has been able to transfer to the National Flower Show committee for a certain consideration.

The full committee was present at the meeting of the local committee Wednesday afternoon. W. F. Kastig, Thomas Roland, John Young, P. Welch, George Agnew and W. E. C. C.

Reports were received from the chairmen of the various committees, which showed that remarkable progress has been made in completing arrangements for the National Show.

Mr. Kelly, secretary of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, offered the good offices of the Association to further the interest of the show.

Mr. Therkildson's report on Publicity was a very thorough and elaborate one, showing that the work of this committee is highly commendable. The National Flower Show Committee feel deeply grateful to the members of its local committee in Philadelphia for the work they have already accomplished and feel safe in saying that this National Show in Philadelphia will surpass all previous efforts by the National Society.

CLEAR OFF YOUR DESK.

You consider it very important to clean up the nursery after the fall season and put everything ship-shape and in readiness for the spring rush. How about the office, and that very important piece of furniture—your desk—with its load of musty, dusty papers, an accumulation from the past ages.

A mechanic cannot do good work without good tools and proper facilities. No more can you do good work with a desk littered with all sorts of things unassorted and of little value. Take up all these things, look them over, throw away the useless, properly label the useful so they are ready when needed. Surround yourself with such facilities for work that much of the detail is eliminated so that you may devote your time and thought to the big things.

Data on advertising, catalogues, stock, supplies, etc., when properly arranged and filed are ready the instant you wish to take up or consider any of these matters instead of wading through a miscellaneous accumulation a mile high. Orderly arrangement has cut out the detail and you are able to focus your attention at once on the all important items.

Likewise, clean up every nook and corner of the office; get rid of the useless accumulations, brush up your systems, study to make everything work smoothly and guard against error. Provide proper tools, blanks and stationery, that everything is attended to orderly. Have a place for everything and everything in its place; a right way and right facilities for doing work, and it will be done correctly.

"Order is God's first law," it is most apparent to every man of affairs in the stock he grows. If it governs natural things, it certainly is applicable to the artificial condition of desk and office.

Throw away the useless and arrange the useful so as to be ready at a moment's notice.

Ring in the New Year with new and modern methods.—National Nursery.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Birds Go Out. This is the title of a very pretty souvenir pamphlet, bound in orange and gold, which comes with the cordial good wishes of the President of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. It gives a brief account of the ceremonies of the last day and night on the Exposition grounds at San Francisco on December Fourth, 1915. This story of the simple yet memorable symbolic closing exercises of this impressive public event will long be prized as a souvenir of one of the greatest achievements of the genius and enterprise of mankind.

The Bird Book. By Chester A. Reed, S. B. The attention of our readers is called to this splendid work published in 1914 by Charles K. Reed. In its nearly five hundred pages, size 7x10, are illustrated in natural colors more than seven hundred North American birds, also several hundred photographic reproductions of their nests and eggs, natural size. The plates are beautiful works of art and the descriptions of the birds, their habits and haunts are very complete and scientifically accurate. At the present time when so much of public attention is being given to the birds and their place in the economy of nature and the checking of injurious insect increase, this book should receive a cordial welcome by nature lovers, especially those who read HORTICULTURE. The publisher's price of this superb volume is $3.15 postpaid. We are in a position at present to fill all orders for the book at the special reduced price of $2.35, express prepaid. This is an exceptional bargain. Order promptly to take advantage of it.

We have another bargain for those of our readers who are interested in North American wild animals—"The Animal Guide," by Charles K. Reed, published 1915. This is a pocket edition, 3½x5½, 256 pages, with 61 full page illustrations in color from original paintings by Harry F. Harvey, and full descriptive notes. The publisher's price is $1.00 and $1.25 in cloth or leather binding respectively. We can supply copies, postpaid, while they last for 65 cents in cloth and 85 cents in leather.

Silver Hill, Md.—Word has just been received by Henry Witt of the death of his brother, who was formerly connected with him in the flower business here, in a hospital in Russia. Just prior to the commencement of the war, Mr. Witt returned to his old home in Germany with his father, who had been visiting the boys in Washington. When war was declared he was enlisted and it was while in a battle on Russian ground that he received the wound which caused his death.

GROWING ARDISIAS.

J. H. FARR, Editor, Myrtle Beach, S. C.

Ardisia can be increased from seed and from cuttings. The seed can be sown any time after January and placed in a temperature of about 65 degrees. When large enough to handle they can be pricked out and later potted up. Cuttings of half ripened wood taken in January and placed in a warm propagating bed where they can have a bottom heat of about 80 degrees will soon root. They can also be increased by cutting the stem about half way through and covering the incision with some clean moss and tie with some raffia. Keep the moss continually moist and from 65 to 70 degrees at night. Roots will be emitted in about five or six weeks, when the tops can be taken off and potted. Keep moist and shaded for about ten days when they should be gradually brought out to full sun. All young plants should be kept growing right along and shifted as they may require it until you have them in 6, 7 or 8-inch pots. Scale, red spider and mealy bug must be fought with sponging and syringing. There are few plants that give more general satisfaction to the Christmas buyer than Ardisia crenulata. As the plants increase in size from year to year, the best time to do repotting is during February and March. Give them fibrous loam three parts, fibrous peat and well rotted cow manure one part each and some sand. From March to mid-summer raise the temperature from 55 to 60 degrees at night and from April and until the end of August they will require syringing on all bright days, and will take plenty of water at the roots. When they start to flower let up on your syringing so to give them a chance to set their berries. When the pots have filled up with roots they will need some liquid manure once a week and once in a while give them some soot water which will help to color up any pale foliage. By September they should be well furnished with berries and foliage. Give them plenty of sun but do not keep in too warm or overhumid quarters as they will send out a premature growth of foliage. Do not exceed 55 degrees at night, with about 10 degrees higher with sunshine. From October to Christmas careful watering is an important requirement. Examine each pot carefully and only water where and when it is really needed. Allow free room between the plants. The stems and foliage should be frequently sponged with some good insecticide such as Aphine, Lemon Oil, or Nikoteen for the removal as well as the prevention of brown scale which invariably troubles these plants. Those that are left over from the holidays can be given a cool house, say 48 degrees at night until the end of February. It takes from 3 to 3½ years to grow a salable plant from seed, while from cuttings 2½ to 3 years will be required.

JOHN J. M. FARRELL.

SEED TRADE

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y.; First Vice-President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Second Vice-President, F. W. Boigiano, Washington, D. C.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.; Assistant Secretary, S. F. Willard, Jr., Cleveland, O. Cincinnati, O., next meeting place.

American Seed Trade Association.

The Executive Committee of the American Seed Trade Association met in New York, Jan. 7th, with the following in attendance, viz.: President J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, N. Y.; Secretary C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.; Ex-President Lester L. Morse, San Francisco; Watson S. Woodruff, Orange, Conn.; Herman Simmers, Toronto, all members of the committee, and on invitation, Messrs. Henry Nungesser, M. H. Duryea and J. B. Deamud, representing the New York members.

It was voted to hold the next convention, June 20-22, 1916, in Chicago, headquarters to be announced later. A tentative program was arranged and the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the Executive Committee of the American Seed Trade Association in annual meeting assembled recommends to the Association that beginning Jan. 1st, 1917, this Association and its members use the central system exclusively by offering all grass, clover, garden and field seeds, potatoes and onion sets by the pound and hundred pounds and abolishing the listing or trading in quarts, pecks and bushels.

C. E. KENDEL, Sec'y.

Proposals for Government Seeds.

Proposals were opened on Tuesday last for the annual supply of vegetable and flower seeds by the Department of Agriculture, there having been sixty-one bids submitted. At the opening of the bids only items and prices were read, quantities quoted upon and other interesting information being held as confidential and not disclosed. A fairly correct list of bidders and prices is now available. The names of bidders on one or many items, as communicated to us are as follows:

Notes.

Greenville, O.—McCartney Bros. have taken over the seed business of Mace & Mansfield, 620 South Broadway.

Delaware, O.—J. H. Cunningham has purchased the J. C. Cox Seed store at West Winter St., to which he will add a cut flower department.

Keokuk, Ia.—The office and warehouse of the Gate City Seed Company was destroyed by fire December 28, causing an estimated loss of $27,500.

Northrup, King & Co., of Minneapolis, Minn., have written to Senator Nelson, of that state, urging him to use his influence against the passage of the Anderson bill (H. R. 636) which would change the postal rates on seeds. It is stated that, in view of the fact that all catalogues for the year are fully or nearly completed, with prices based on present postal rates, a considerable loss would be suffered by the dealers. There would also be an added labor cost incident to weighing and zoning packages of above four ounces in weight.

The value of horticultural importations at the port of New York for the week ending December 31, 1915, is given as follows: Red clover seed—France, $15,082; Italy, $32,430; England, $8,424. Grass seeds—France, $4,043; Spain, $6,258; Scotland, $1,216. Austria, $99. Bulbs—Austria-Hungary, $24; Belgium, $386; France, $84; Netherlands, $9,124; Sweden, $7,600; Japan, $5. Plants and trees—Austria-Hungary, $91; Belgium, $1,791; France, $2,631; Netherlands, $4,911; England, $1,202; Ireland, $854; Japan, $27. Muriate of potash—Dutch E. I. $28,967. Fertilizer substitute—Scotland, $29.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Gaffney, S. C.—Kirby Seed Company, capital stock, $10,000. Incorporators, A. B. Kirby, D. C. Ross and Maynard Smyth.

THE WORM TURNS.

We clip the following from a Brooklyn, N. Y., daily paper:

Charged with substituting artificial flowers for real ones in funeral floral pieces George Allen, 419 East 145th street,
The Bronx, was held under $500 bail for examination tomorrow by Magistrate Fol-well in the G. T. C. Court this morning. Allen is in partnership with Walter Curry in the floral business.

Allen, a few days ago, at the home of Percy Shay, 20, of 261 Lafayette avenue, whose father had just died, obtained an order for three floral pieces, costing $21.50.
Delivery was made on January 1 and Allen was paid. After he left it was found that about one quarter of the flowers were artificial. One piece was entirely artificial.
Allen said in Court that it was a rush order and there were not enough real flowers in stock to fill the order.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

BOSTON.

It is said that the Boston florist business is around again after a severe attack of shingles.

M. Aronson, the Crawford House florist, has entered the wholesale field and is handling the shipments of the East Sudbury greenhouses.

Harry Ward has severed his connection with W. Capstick of Auburdale and his goods at the Exchange are now being handled by George Cartwright.

The epidemic of gripe has not overlooked the florist business. Amongst those laid up are Chas. Robinson, A. Caplan, L. Sloane, A. H. Woods, Laurence Flynn and A. Spaulding.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. are preparing a catalogue of all the new and rare trees and shrubs in the Arnold Arboretum. There are no less than 1200 species and varieties in the list, which is still incomplete.

Tuesday evening, January 18, will be "Ladies' Night," at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston. The new officers will be inducted and there will be the usual entertainment, refreshments and dancing.

Richard M. Saltonstall, the new president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, in his inaugural address advocated two radical changes in the workings of the society. President Saltonstall declared, "I strongly recommend the formation of classes for instruction in the various branches of gardening, such as preparation of the soil, planting, making cuttings, pruning, exhibitions in the orchard of the best methods for the care of fruit trees, and field meetings at successful commercial nurseries. I personally believe open air classes are what are needed to revive and keep growing the interest in this society's work. I hope this work will not be held too closely to the old-time beaten track, but will branch out into broader fields. I also suggest the reduction of the number of large exhibitions held by the society. At present we hold twelve and I think this should be reduced to at least eight, with two annual shows—one in the spring and fall."

In addition to the havoc wrought by the storms two weeks ago as recorded in our news notes from various points, belated reports of damage of more or less severity have come in from Cromwell, Conn., where the greenhouse plants of A. N. Pierson and Magnus Pierson suffered damage, and Hartford, Conn., where John Coombs lost some 500 lights of glass. Charles Fullick of Natick, Mass., also reported considerable loss of glass.

PITTSBURGH.

Mr. John McKinley, of Randolph, has been confined to the house for the past fortnight with an aggravated form of la grippe.

Ray J. Daschbach has returned from a business trip in New York. Frank Kilgallon, a salesman in his Wood street shop is confined to his home with pneumonia.

While skating Charles Ottinger, aged 18 years, of Illinois, sank in 35 feet of water and was drowned in a pond of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Gibsonia, yesterday afternoon, while a girl companion was rescued by William Rabel, an employee of the flower company.

Harry E. Graves, who has had charge of the new branch shop of the Zieger Company, has resigned his position and gone to Los Angeles, California, owing to a nervous breakdown, which has been pending for some time. He is accompanied by his family and will remain indefinitely.

George E. Hallam of the North Side is in the Allegheny General Hospital for an operation for an abscess of the adnoids—the after effects of his recent attack of pneumonia from which he had seemingly recovered about Thanksgiving. Meanwhile Mrs. Hallam continues in charge of his business.

James Thompson, an employee of the E. C. Ludwig Co., who was seriously injured in a trolley accident on New Year's evening, has just been removed to the Presbyterian Hospital. His spine has been injured, precluding his recovery for at least two months. Charles Thompson, a brother employed in the shipping department of the McCallum Company, is convalescing from injuries received in the same accident.

Walter James, who has charge of the greenhouse of W. Henry R. Hilliard, of South Homewood avenue, has a house of surpassingly beautiful cyclamens and Farquhar's giant pink and white Primula sinensis. Mr. James also has the supervision of the house conservatory, which is probably the largest in the city. He is the youngest son of the late David James, the veteran commercial florist of Squirrel Hill, and a brother of Edward S. James, who for some years has been in charge of the Hotel Schenley grounds.

Dover, N. H.—Charles L. Howe, the florist, entertained a party of his employees at a turkey supper on the evening of January 4, at his home and each guest received a substantial souvenir of the occasion. They, however, turned the tables on their host by surprising him with a handsome set of Haviland china. It was a rare and happy occasion.

CHICAGO.

Florists here are receiving their letters from the East decorated with the flower show sticker, reminding them that it is time to plan for that event.

Two deaths have occurred among the retailers this week: one who has been engaged in business here over a quarter of a century, and the other but just beginning. Further notice appears in our obituary columns.

It is doubtful if Chicago parks were ever enjoyed in the summer as they are just now. The commissioners responded to requests to have the low places flooded, and good skating keeps the parks filled with happy youngsters.

Frank Oechslein's new and handsome dwelling house is now nearing completion. It is opposite his greenhouses, but Mr. Oechslein does not believe in keeping his work constantly before him, so he has faced his house around the other way.

D. P. Roy is now nicely located in a large airy room, where his growing trade can be handled more conveniently. Mr. Roy, who has just returned from a northern business trip, says the flower seed business is active now, also that hydrangeas are moving well.

The many friends of John Poehlmann will be pained to learn of his serious illness. After several weeks' absence from the store, he was still far from well and Jan. 7th an operation was resorted to in the hope of bettering his condition. The results were not satisfactory and his condition is regarded as critical.

The wholesale flower stores have such a deserted appearance that, upon entering, one is impressed with the idea that the occupants have moved out. The big tables that a few weeks ago were filled to overflowing, now hold a vase or two, or possibly nothing at all. Flowers disappear so fast that the tables are empty most of the time.

SAN FRANCISCO.

A committee of five was appointed at a recent meeting of the creditors of the Luther Burbank Co. to work out a plan for reorganization.

Frank G. Cuthbertson, with C. C. Morse & Co., is giving considerable attention to the preparations for the Sweet Pea Show which is to be held in this city in June under the auspices of the American Sweet Pea Society.

A new florist shop has been opened on F street in Eureka, Cal., by the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, of which C. W. Ward is head, but it is understood the present establishment is only temporary, and that a much better place will be fitted up shortly.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Plath on January 6th, and a very pleasant evening was spent playing cards and enjoying other forms of entertainment. Despite the stormy weather, various members were present from the East Bay cities and from down the peninsula as well.

W. Hoffinghoff of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. calls attention to the fact that a large percentage of gardens being laid out in California at the present time are typically Californian. He says there is a tendency to get away from the French, English and Japanese ideas of landscaping and to use native plants in natural surroundings as much as possible.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

William H. Covill has resigned as a member of the Park Commission to become a member of the Fire Commission, to which he was elected in a bitter struggle.

The salary increase recommended by the finance committee, passed by the city council, vetoed by Mayor Gainer, the veto over-ridden by the common council, was finally killed by the Board of Aldermen last week when that body sustained the veto by a vote of 5 to 5. Park Supt. Green loses an increase of $12.05 per week.

The Westminster Greenhouses, Incorporated, is defendant in two suits filed in the Superior Court in which the damages aggregate $2000. It is alleged that Giovanni Silvio was hit and injured by the defendant's automobile at the corner of Broadway and America street, Oct. 12, 1915. The injured lad is a minor. He sues for $1000 for his injuries and his father, Francesco Silvio, sues for $1000 as compensation for loss of his son's services.

Florists of this city and other sections of the State are guessing at this time how much they will have to pay for soft coal before the winter is over. The shortage of vessels because of the war has boosted the price of transportation of coal from 40 cents up as high as $3 per ton, and coal that cost $4.00 a ton at the beginning of the season is now costing $7.50. Providence dealers predict that the price may soar to $10 a ton by the first of next month.

PHILADELPHIA.

Chairman Cowperthwaite sends in the name of Dooner's Hotel, omitted through an oversight in the list of hotels available for visitors to the National Flower Show. Dooner's Hotel is located at 23 South 10th street and Convention Hall may be reached by taking the North 13th street car No. 53; about 30 minutes' ride. Rates are from $1 per day to $2.50, the latter accommodating two persons, with bath.

Philadelphia loses one of its best known floral artists, and Chicago is the gainer, by the jump of William Graham from Habermehl to Fleischman. Mr. Graham left Philadelphia on the 7th inst. for Chicago, accompanied by Mrs. Graham and family, where they will locate permanently. Few men have made their mark on big artistic floral decorations for civic, national and international celebrations as has William Graham. In fact it is generally conceded that he is unequalled in that particular line. We extend to him our very best wishes for success in his new sphere.

NEWS NOTES.

Westerly, R. I.—George L. Stillman has leased six acres of land on Beach street to be devoted to dahlia growing.

New York, N. Y.—George W. Cohen and M. Hiller have opened a florist supply house at 874 Broadway, under the firm name of Cohen & Hiller.

Biddeford, Me.—The Norwood vs. Hutchins suit, in which Mr. Norwood sues for a balance of $450 claimed to be due him on a contract for greenhouse construction for Mrs. Hutchins is being fought out with a persistency worthy of a greater amount than $450. Heating experts, glass men, lumber men and florists are all called in to testify to the efficiency or inefficiency of the construction details.

Cincinnati.—At the organization meeting of the William Murphy Company, W. Ray Murphy was elected president, Mrs. Luna Murphy vice-president, and L. L. Murphy secretary and treasurer. W. Ray Murphy was chosen manager and Miss Cora Pherison assistant manager.

Albert McCullough is reported to have recently undergone a serious operation at Christ Hospital.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Market conditions are about the same as the past three weeks. Carnations are a little more plentiful, still they sell rapidly. Jonquils are coming in in good crop but are not sufficient to supply the demand. Narcissus paper-white still holds up in price. The Boston market has not in years had such a long stretch of time where the growers have been unable to supply the demand. Exceptionally fine calendulas are being received, also sweet peas, Roman hyacinths, snapdragon, callas and lilies. The rose market is fairly well cared for, quality being excellent all through, and prices are holding quite regular, although reduced somewhat from the holiday level. Violets are good and move reasonably well. Yellow trumpet narcissi are being produced in acceptable quality considering the date, and they are selling at profitable figures. Freesias are very fine this season.

The unusual amount of floral work last week called for an extra lot of flowers. The supply was very short and at times it was hard to fill any order complete no matter what was ordered. Roses have been scarce since the first of the year, especially the "shorts," while the long and medium have not been too plentiful. Carnations have been on the short side and orders are only half filled. Everything else has cleaned up at end of the day.

A general shortage of stock still continues. Instead of the usual slump in business following the holiday season, trade has kept up steadily and prices are practically the same as were in effect at Christmas. Carnations are making a new record and the grower who has large cuts now will have money to build more houses next year. There is no use in specifying; all kinds of cut flowers are scarce and there are so many funerals that quantities of medium-grade stock are wanted each day and there is never enough to be had. On account of this shortage all kinds of green are in extra demand and bring prices accordingly.

While business as a whole is fairly good, still there are days when the market is rather slow. The opening and close of each week seem to be best, while in mid-week the demand is not very active. Shipping business is very good. Roses are good and plentiful. Carnation receipts, while not very strong, are sufficient. Lilies are very plentiful but lily of the valley is rather short. Narcissi sell pretty well. The dark weather is against sweet peas and the cut is not very large. Violets and orchids are very plentiful.

The condition of light — and in some respects insufficient supply continues without much change, although there is a tendency downward in the values of such things as were materially advanced in price for the holiday period, especially roses and carnations. Cattleyas are also taking a downward course and are overplentiful for the daily requirements of the market. Violets move slowly, the singles finding the better returns, and there is a surplus of both single and double at times. Lily of the valley is fulfilling the predictions of scarcity made earlier in the season and averages about 50 per cent. higher returns than in recent years. Other bulbous stock is faring well so far. This includes lilies longiflorum and rubrum, callas, freesias, paperwhite narcissi, trumpet daffodils, Roman hyacinths and a few scrubby tulips. Sweet peas are fine and sell at good prices, especially the Spencers. The variety of roses in market is the most extensive in the history of the flower trade. All tastes as to size, color, form and fragrance can be at once gratified and there are many more on the way for next season.

Flower Market Reports

The past week was seemingly the climax of this exceptionally brilliant social season, the entertaining taxing the artistic creative skill of the fashionable florists to the utmost. Many beautiful dinner table decorations have been made in which the newer roses figured largely. Apropos of the exceptional demand and scant supply, a retailer remarked the other day that "it would pay an outsider to go to one of the commission houses at eight o'clock in the morning to see the buyers fighting for stock," a condition unheard of in the history of Pittsburgh. One retail firm was compelled to close at three o'clock last Saturday owing to absolutely nothing to work on, and turned away approximately fifty dollars' worth of trade. Added to this, illness has depleted the working forces, making another serious handicap to successful business. A member of the largest wholesale firm here said early in the week, "We are not trying to fill our orders; we simply try to touch them up a little." One retail firm downtown was fortunate in receiving a consignment of two thousand carnations from Chicago.

At the beginning of the new year the San Francisco florists are optimistic over the prospects for a good year's business. With the closing of accounts for 1915 no complaints are registered, as most firms enjoyed the best business in their history. Flowers are far from plentiful here. The supply is usually light in January, but the shortage is a little more pronounced than in former years owing to the stormy weather which ushered in 1916 and has prevailed all week. Interest centers around roses and carnations and everything cleans up closely regardless of price or quality providing it is usable at all. Violets are recovering a little from the effects of the frost and wind last week, but the cut is still below normal and shippers are experiencing difficulty in filling their orders, the scarcity being accentuated by a very active local demand. To relieve the monotony a few daffodils are appearing, and a limited amount of freesia and narcissus finds a ready market. Some China lilies are offered and they demand high prices. Lily of the valley is very scarce and but very few callas are offered. The outlook for the latter is not very favorable as frost damage is reported in several localities. Gardenias are only in medium supply, while the cut of orchids is about sufficient for the demand. The great popularity of flowering plants is commented upon by various members of the trade. The cut flower shortage may be responsible to a certain extent for the strong position of plants but it would hardly account for the heavy increase in the demand. This class of stock was a bigger factor than usual in the holiday business, and the later arrivals are maintaining their popularity.

The market since New Years' has been short and the demand has been very large. The new year has

During Recess

Tarrytown Horticultural Society.

The nineteenth annual dinner of the Tarrytown N. Y. Horticultural Society was held in the Tarrytown Inn, Tuesday evening, January 11, and it was in every way equal to the former annual dinners of this well known and popular society. The dining room was beautifully decorated and tables looked very inviting. Proprietor Parke served an excellent dinner and above all he gave excellent service. The members of the society and the guests were welcomed by President Featherstone, who caused much laughter when he said that his position was not an enviable one as he had three clergymen on his right and an undertaker on his left, while he himself represented the cemetery. All that was needed to complete the scene was a doctor. President Featherstone welcomed the members and then introduced Charles Vanderbilt, the toastmaster.

President Frank R. Pierson was first called upon and he supplemented the welcome of President Featherstone and then spoke of the society. He said that it was a credit to the community, that he had seen many flower shows last year, but none better than right here at home. For quality, finish and general arrangement there was nothing to compare with it.

The Rev. J. J. Henry followed and Mr. Vanderbilt announced his subject as "Manhood." Pastor Henry said that he knew of no body of men who should be more in love with God than Horticulturists. He said that there could be no agnostics among them, for they delve into the earth and they bring forth beautiful flowers and they know that God's law must be back of it all.

Dr. Carroll Dunham of Irvington, was the next speaker. His purity of English, his choice of words in expressing horticultural terms and the treatment of his subject, were a delight to his audience. He said that the test of the success of a plant was not in its rarity, shyness or refusal to be happy, but rather in what it does. Dr. Dunham then told of his experiments with plants from the western coast, and also from Japan and Asia. He said that he had greater success with plants from eastern Asia.

Other speakers were W. R. Bull of Port Chester, Judge Young, Supervisor Willard, Comptroller Patten and Rev. Lucas Boeve. Corporation Counsel Davison, also had a few words to say.

"Auld Lang Syne" was sung at 11.30 and all voted it one of the most enjoyable affairs the society has ever held.

New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers.

The eighth annual banquet of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers will be held in the Hotel McAlpin on February 23rd, 1916, at 7 P. M. Tickets are $5.00 per person. There will be an abundance to eat, drink and smoke. Good music will be provided and the tables will be so arranged that those desiring to do so, can smoke during the dinner and thereafter to their hearts' content. Those desiring tickets should apply at once to the secretary, William H. Siebrecht, Jr., Queens Plaza Court, Long Island City, N. Y.

The annual meeting of the Association was held on January 4th, at which time new officers were elected, as follows: President, John H. Flesser; vice-president, Alfred L. Zeller; treasurer, Herman C. Steinhoff; secretary, William H. Siebrecht, Jr.

The next meeting of the Association will be held at the Hotel McAlpin on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 1st, 1916.

W. H. SIEBRECHT, JR.,
Secretary.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

E. E. Stewart, Brooklyn, Mich.
Wholesale Price List of Gladioli.

Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co., Hoboken, N. J.—Wholesale Price-List of Grass and Clover Seeds.

F. H. DeWitt & Company, Wooster, O.—Catalogue and price list of Pelargoniums. Printed on fine paper and illustrates some splendid novelties.

Stark Bros., Louisiana, Mo., Fruit Catalogue, announcing the 100th year of this firm's existence. Apples and other fruits in natural colors are well illustrated.

S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich.—Seed Annual for 1916. Devoted largely to vegetable garden and field seeds of which a full variety are listed with profuse illustrations. Covers in brilliant dress.

Good & Reese Company, Springfield, Ohio—Spring Trade List—1916. For Florists, Nurserymen and Dealers Only. The rose lists in this catalogue are very extensive. Gladioli and other specialties are also covered.

Arthur Cowee, Meadowvale Farms, Berlin, N. Y.—"The Glory of the Garden." A descriptive Illustrated Treatise on the Modern Gladiolus as selected and grown at this well known place, including a list of the "cream" of the world's very best varieties.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.—1916 Floral Guide. A publication that will be the basis for many gardening day dreams between now and rose-planting time. Cannas, too, are presented in tempting array. Covers in colors, well-designed and very effective.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—1916 Wholesale Catalog of "Seeds That Grow," for Seedsmen and Dealers only who buy to sell again. This is a standard publication well appreciated by the retail seed stores who handle the Burpee seeds in sealed packets. Known for years as the "red list."

L. Merton Gage, Sunnyside Gladiolus Gardens, Natick, Mass.—Price List for 1916. The genial ex-secretary of the American Gladiolus Society "knows" gladioli and his catalogue is just what we should expect—a discriminating selection of the finest varieties extant in the different classes, to the exclusion of the vast mass of mediocre or superseded sorts.

J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.—1916 General Catalogue. This must be pretty close to this firm's 100th catalogue as the house was founded in 1818. The title page is devoted to an illustration of a field of the John Baer tomato in colors. "Long Lost" lettuce has the back cover, in a gorgeous oriental setting. The book is finely illustrated and well printed.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass.—Garden Annual for 1916. This is one of several leading houses that have broken away this year from the customary cover tin colors, and substituted a chaste and dignified exterior of pure white. Inscriptions and illustrations are in dark green, the first cover page showing a field of Lilium myriophyllum at the Dedham Nurseries and the back cover displaying some graceful new irises. There are no colored inserts but the pages are profusely illustrated with excellent half-tone cuts, including a number of interesting novelties and specialties. Several pages are devoted to the new plants collected in China by E. H. Wilson, which are now offered for the first time.

NEWS NOTES.

Worcester, Mass.—Habor Ball, florist, of 167 Russell street, and Miss Martha C. Anderson were married on Saturday night, January 8.

Portland, Me.—Mrs. Sadie Knight Palmer has accepted a position as bookkeeper in the store of E. J. Harmon & Co., florists of Portland.

When renewing a few days ago I forgot to ask for a copy of Index to last volume. Please put me on your permanent list for index to each volume, as issued. I have every copy of HORTICULTURE from the first issue, and would as soon think of destroying a very valuable horticultural book as to destroy a volume of HORTICULTURE.

PAN-PACIFIC PRESS ASSOCIATION, LTD.

San Francisco, Calif.

October 16, 1915.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Horticulture Jury, of which the writer was a member, awarded you a Gold Medal for your Insecticides, and when you take into consideration the fact that that Jury, outside of the writer, was composed of some of the famous experts of the world, you will realize the importance of this award. Verification of this may be obtained from Mr. George A. Dennison, Chief of Horticulture, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The writer has been requested to furnish a list of the articles which the Jury endorsed by their action in awarding prizes because of merit. This request comes from representatives of foreign countries and states.

Respectfully yours,

Signed: J. A. BUCHANAN, Gen. Mgr.

Obituary

Mrs. H. C. Doescher.

Mrs. Doescher, wife of H. C. Doescher, of New Orleans, La., died on January 1 after two days' illness with pneumonia, leaving a three-weeks-old baby.

James H. Lagan.

James H. Lagan, for the past twelve years employed as a florist in Hartford, Conn., died on Saturday, January 1, at St. Francis Hospital in that city, of pneumonia. He was 41 years of age.

Alfred W. Baxter.

Alfred W. Baxter, a florist of Waterloo, Iowa, died suddenly in Brooklyn, N. Y., while visiting some friends at 139 Hoyt street, on Tuesday, January 4. The remains have been sent to Waterloo for services and interment.

Charles W. Smith.

Charles W. Smith, who for thirty-two years served as secretary of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, died suddenly at the home of his son, in Providence, on January 7, aged 86 years. Mr. Smith was born in Dighton, Mass., in September, 1830. For many years he rendered devoted and invaluable services to the R. I. Horticultural Society's exhibitions and the State Fair exhibits at Narragansett Park.

Clare V. Tierney.

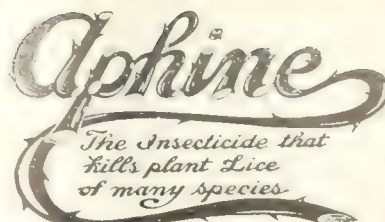

Clare V. Tierney passed away Jan. 3rd at the home of his parents, 4242 Jackson Boul., Chicago, after an illness which began on Christmas eve. He was one of the newest in the business, having commenced only last Thanksgiving, when he and Edw. Leslie bought the retail flower store of J. Fuely at 4035 Madison street, known as the West End. He showed an aptitude for the business and was doing nicely when he took a cold which developed into pneumonia.

H. F. Halle.

Hagbarth F. Halle passed away at the home of his wife's sister, Mrs. H. N. Bruns, Chicago, Jan. 7th. He had been a retail florist in Chicago for many years and was located at the time of his death at 4753 Broadway. Mr. Halle was born fifty-six years ago in Viborg, Denmark, where he learned the florists' business. He came to this country when a young man and settled at once in Chicago, where he remained till his death. Mr. Halle has not been a strong man for years and his death was not a surprise to those who knew him best. Interment was at Graceland. The business will be discontinued and Mrs. Halle will make her home with Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Bruns.

Washington, D. C.—During the fiscal year of 1915, which ended with June 30, there were but four violations of the plant quarantine law reported to the attorneys of the United States, according to Attorney-General Gregory in his report for the Department of Justice, and from these were collected fines amounting to $415. There were, however, nine cases that were still pending on July 1 which constituted violations of this law.

big demand. Everybody is well satisfied.

There was a

WASHINGTON marked change in local flower market conditions following the conclusion of the holiday season. Business fell off and prices dropped. Stock is very good. American Beauty roses are over-plentiful and their sale is draggy. Richmond roses are in some little demand but at prices about half those which prevailed two weeks ago. The stock is good but stems are droopy. Carnations are in fine shape. There seems to have been a shortage of lily of the valley at nearby points for large orders were sent into Washington for out-of-town shipment. Orchids are more plentiful than they have been.

ON GUARD!!

No Greenhouse Man can afford to take the risk of leaving his place unprotected against the possibilities of overheating or frost, when absolute safety against either of these contingencies can be assured by installing the faithful, sleepless, watchman, whose portrait appears herewith. All you have to do is to set the hands—one at minimum and the other at maximum temperature limit and the Thermostat will give instant warning if temperature goes above or below.

All This for $5.00

How West Got Out of the Greenhouse Building Business

ONE day last August I was sitting in the lobby of a Cleveland Hotel, when who should come along but Chauncey West of Irondequoit. Of course, I was jolly glad to see him; everybody is. You just can't help being glad to see a man who wears a rare Sunny Jim smile like West; and always hands out such a hearty hand shake.

West has done considerable greenhouse building of one kind and another (lately it's been all one kind). So I asked him, off-hand like, how he ever came to put his money in Lord & Burnham houses. "Well," he replied, "we started to build your houses because we wanted to get out of the greenhouse building business and get into the growing business."

We figured out that we didn't have time to stop our growing every few years, and rebuild our houses." Then, up he jumped and gave the glad hand to a couple of Ashtabula growers.

But I sat still and thought over what he had said. As near as I could figure it out, J. H. West & Son will be out of the building business anywhere from a quarter to a half century, may be longer.

No one knows yet how long our iron frame houses will last.

If you want to permanently get out of building; and into growing; we are ready to talk with you.

Just say when and where and we will be there.

The New Rose, Mrs. Bayard Thayer

that we are offering this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front since we introduced Mrs. Charles Russell of which the new claimant is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink, inside of petals a shade lighter. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society medal over a strong class of competitors at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Life.

Acacias

As Easter is so late this year acacias intended for that occasion must be kept as cool as possible; anywhere above the freezing point or about 35 to 40 degrees at night will do. During the day give plenty of ventilation. See that they do not dry out at the roots and on all good days give a good syringing overhead. Before the young growths start take off a batch of cuttings and place them in sand in a cool propagating house. The majority will root and if kept growing on, as is easily done, plants equal in quality to any you can buy will be produced. When rooted pot up into 2 or 2½ inch pots using a mixture of loam, fibrous peat and sand in equal parts.

Dimorphotheca aurantiaca

This is an extremely showy annual from South Africa. It belongs to the daisy family, so will grow where other daisies grow. Now is a good time to sow three or four seeds in a three-inch pot using compost of leaf mold and sand in equal parts in a temperature of 60 degrees. When they come up place where they will have full sun and from 45 to 50 degrees. They do fine when planted out in a bench. The flower is rich golden orange with a black center. It is commonly called the orange daisy and South African daisy. The plants will flower within ten weeks from seed sowing and continue to bloom for several weeks. The flowers close on dark days and at night, but, after being picked thirty-six hours and in a warm room, they will remain open.

Ferns

Now is a good time to sow spores. Use a porous soil with good drainage. Cover with a glass and keep shaded until growth appears. Keep the soil moist by sinking the pans up to the rim in a tub of water when they need water. Place well up to the glass. When they have made growth enough they should be pricked out in a new compost. A good compost for the little ferns is fresh loam two parts, leaf mold and sandy peat, one part. For 4-inch pots a heavier soil should be used. Ferns do not like to be potted too firm. After potting a reasonable amount of atmospheric humidity should be kept up, but never to the extent to cause dripping moisture on the plants. A temperature as near as possible to 60 degrees with a slight rise through the mid-day hours will do for mixed varieties but, of course, to have them good the treatment as regards temperature, moisture and soil must differ as to varieties.

Grevillea robusta

Now is a good time to sow some seed of this very useful plant. Sow in a little bottom heat and they will germinate quickly. They can be placed in a temperature of about 60 degrees at night. Keep shaded and moist until they begin to show, when they should be given full sun. When large enough they should be potted into 2 or 2½-inch pots. When established they will grow fast enough in a temperature of 55 degrees at night. When large enough they can be shifted into 3 or 4-inch pots. Grevillea robusta or "Silk Oak" is a most useful plant for the retail grower to have.

Maurandias and Thunbergias

When the spring time comes we florists often find ourselves short for trailing plants to fill baskets, vases, window boxes, etc. Now is the time to give these attention so as to be well supplied when spring arrives. The trailing lobelias, maurandia and thunbergia are all beautiful when well grown and should be found at every retail grower's establishment. The maurandia and thunbergia should be sown at once. Only fresh seed of the latter is of any account, and no bottom heat nor other encouragement will make old seed germinate. Seedlings of either want a warm house and when they are allowed to become stunted in a cold house, you have a hard time to get them into shape again. A house where the temperature stands at about 60 degrees at night will grow them along all right. They should be sown in pans in a mixture of equal parts of soil, leaf mold and sand. Keep shaded until they show signs of coming up when they should have full light.

Feverfew for Memorial Day

Now is a good time to put in some cuttings of the double feverfew. They will root fine in a moderately warm propagating bed. When rooted they can be potted into 3-inch pots and as these pots become well filled with roots they can be planted in a bench where the temperature does not run higher than 48 degrees at night.

We are sorry to learn that the Journal of Horticulture of London, England, has been obliged to cease publication. For many years we have read it with interest and profit. The Journal of Horticulture was established in 1848 with George W. Johnson, author of The Gardeners' Almanac and Modern Gardeners' Dictionary as editor, under the title of "The Cottage Gardener." In 1855 Robert Hogg became joint editor. In 1861 the title was changed to "Journal of Horticulture, Cottage Gardener and Country Gentleman" and in 1881 Dr. Hogg became sole editor. The present editor is Horace

J. Wright. The career of the Journal has been one of unbroken firmness to date, and it is greatly to be regretted that the cause of horticulture must lose as faithful a champion. The suspension, we are told, is "for the duration of the war." We hope this year (1916 and that in due time we may have the pleasure of greeting our contemporary once more.

influence

These annual banquets are now rare. Nevertheless they always are and, whether with formal or informal arrangement, in our opinion, they take a very useful place in the life of the florist, the gardener and their friends. Old friendships are there rejuvenated and new ones created. The better, smaller side of one's disposition is brought out at these gatherings as nowhere else, the little weeds of personal prejudice and antagonism which have sprouted and begun to take root in the garden of fraternal good will are all easily plucked out and eradicated in the benignant atmosphere of the banquet hall. In these brief intermissions of refreshment between the long and wearisome periods of labor one imbues hopeful inspiration for the work of the coming days, and a fresh zeal for the problems that continually beset the life of the business man is engendered when we sit shoulder to shoulder and face to face around the flower laden tables and listen to words of wit, wisdom and experience from our fellow workers. So don't miss the banquet. It has a glory all its own.

 An important event for May

The announcement by the secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which appears on another page of this paper, should prove interesting reading and excite enthusiasm among ambitious plant and flower growers. It will be recalled that, in deference to the plans being made for a great National Spring Flower Show in Philadelphia at the end of March, this year, the trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society decided to somewhat minimize the importance of their customary Boston Spring Exhibition in March and to concentrate effort and attention on a May display. A perusal of the list of special premiums offered for this event by eminent local patrons of horticulture will give some idea of its unique importance and the progressive lines on which it will be carried out. The innovation will attract unusual attention on account of the date and other distinctive aspects of this show. Not least among the commendable features of the undertaking is the liberal spirit shown in arranging the Society's spring activities so that they would conflict as little as possible with the coming National Flower Show.

unrestrained

The murder of an estimable young lady, daughter of a prominent flower grower, by a young man, jealousy-crazed, as related in our news notes this week, is an event full of pathos and awful realism. No family, under present social conditions is immune from the possibility of such a tragedy as there recorded. In many sections of this country, laws, sometimes well-intended but often oppressive in their enforcement, make it illegal if not impossible for one to obtain, except with an original physician's prescription, a few ounces of brandy or a few drops of paregoric to relieve a suffering member of his household. Yet, in most communities, there is practically no restriction against the sale of fire arms and ammunition and nothing to prevent a frenzied, irresponsible, half-fledged boy from buying deadly weapons

The Zero Weather

With the thermometer down to ten all day, and down to nearly or below zero at night the boilers will be called on to put in their real work of the season and the whole heating system will be put to a test. If there are no pipe clamps, wooden plugs large enough to plug up the different mains should this be necessary in case of a break, see that these are ordered at once and kept on hand. An extra grate or two will also come handy should one break on a very cold night. See that all slipped glass is pushed up, and securely tacked. It is too late to wish that it was done last summer but should serve as a good lesson for the coming summer. It may be too cold to work on the roof of the houses but a long stick can be used to push the slipped glass back into place where it will stay until the next windstorm, when it will slip again no doubt, but it will be better than having the cold wind blowing in on a zero night. See that the coal bins are kept full. If the supply runs low during a severe blizzard it is no fun for anyone to look around for wood, especially as it is carelessness on someone's part not ordering the coal on time. If there are any places where the water mains are exposed to the weather see that these are covered with manure or straw. These mains may not be exposed altogether but may not be very deep in the ground. The cost of covering this ground is little compared to what it would cost should the cold weather continue and the ground freeze deep, freezing the water mains with it.

Watering

With plenty of artificial heat under the benches these are apt to dry out faster than is customary, and often from the bottom up, so it will be well to look over the benches daily and note the condition of the soil all the way down. If this is inclined to be dry at all a good watering will be necessary, as the warm dry soil will damage the roots a good deal and may result in a severe check to the plants. Beauties will be the very first to feel this and if it happens too often they will go completely blind. Where the water comes out of an elevated tank outside, which as a rule is full of ice, it will be too cold to use on the plants, although many growers use it. We find it best to run the water main right with the heating mains and this will take enough of the chill off to make the water better for the plants. The colder the weather the warmer will the mains be, and will thus heat the water all the more. When the weather is warmer the mains will be cooler but then the water will not be so cold.

Repotting the Young Stock

Plants that were potted along the middle of December will soon be in need of larger quarters in order to keep on growing all the time. For this work soil of a richer mixture can be used, not so much in fertilizers as in plenty of well decayed manure. A little more bone-meal can be added to this soil than what was added for the first potting and if it can be had, a least touch of soot. The amount of this should not be excessive as it is very strong and would on coming into contact with the bonemeal liberate a good deal of ammonia which the bone contains, and this would be apt to make the plants sick for a while. The pots for the second potting should be three-inch if the space for the plants is limited. If there is plenty of room, potting directly into three-and-a-half inch or fours will be best as there will be no further work with the plants outside of scraping and resetting them as they grow. Have the pots clean and well crocked. A little charcoal added to the crock will help keep the soil sweet but of late we have used only a little coal ashes, screened to remove the real coarse cinders. Make sure that the plants are potted deep enough for the old ball should never stick out of the soil in the new pot. It is also necessary to see that the plants are wet enough before they are repotted as it would be difficult to water them properly after they are in the larger pots, as the water would drain through the new soil and the old ball would remain dry. Any poor plants should be either thrown away or set aside to be given another chance if the variety is a valuable one. With plenty of wood and cuttings, however, it is best to discard all poor cuttings first and then again discard all poor plants on the second potting. Make sure that the pots are not filled too much with soil. The nature of your soil will have to determine just how much space should be left at the top for water. To make watering easy this space should be deep enough so that when filled with water the amount it will hold will saturate all the soil in the pot very nicely. This will make watering easy and eliminate all guess work as a grower will know just how wet his plants are after watering. Then too, with foreign help watering, at times it is difficult to make a man understand just how much water is necessary but it is simple to tell him to fill all the pots up full. In watering, the outside rows should always receive a watering first and then the whole bench had better be watered evenly all over. This will insure the outside rows being as wet as the rows further in.

on the rash impulse of a disordered mind with the full intent to commit murder and perhaps suicide. The case in point was not one where it could be charged up to "rum" or "drugs" or any other of the stereotyped causes of moral delinquency. There are many more cases of a similar character of daily occurrence the difference here being only that this tragedy concerns a member of our craft and so comes directly home to us with startling effect. It should not be so easy for such things to occur.

The great interest shown already by the Philadelphia people in the Show is most gratifying, and augurs well for a splendid success.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The Executive Committee meeting of the American Rose Society was held in New York City on January 10, at which time the proof of the Annual for 1915 was carefully gone over; same is to be illustrated in colors and to go to every member of the Rose Society. The prizes agreed upon for a display rose garden at the coming exhibition in Philadelphia are—$500 for the 1st prize, $300 for the 2nd prize and $200 for the 3rd prize. Forty-one special prizes have been offered for rose prizes beside the regular schedule.

A motion will be brought before the annual meeting as to what action is best to take in regard to renaming all roses carrying established names, and the committee upon the standard length of rose stems for commercial sale will also report at the approaching annual meeting. The next meeting of the Executive Committee will be held February 1st in Philadelphia to go into the details of preparation for the annual show.

Special prizes offered for the Philadelphia Show, March 25 to April 2, 1916. Special prize for "Rose Garden," etc.

Convention Garden, Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, at Houston, Texas, 1916

PREPARED BY GEORGE E. KESSLER

The accompanying plan of the proposed Convention Garden at Houston, Texas, is reproduced from a blue print kindly supplied by Vice-President Kerr, who says: "Note one particular part of this print is designated as city blocks; this is to show the relative distance from the Rice Hotel, Convention Hall and the Garden. That part of the city park in permanent use will not be used by the Convention. The other portion that is laid off in dotted or peppered spaces is to be used for our display. Our plans are now complete. All beds are about prepared and are ready to receive reservations. All nurserymen and florists who have hardy stock to plant can turn in their reservations immediately to Mr. Young and he will in turn send them to Mr. Brock, the superintendent, and as you understand all hardy stock should be planted before the first of April and there is little more time to get busy with the planting. Please lay special stress on the fact that the spaces for all hardy stock should be reserved immediately and they will be properly taken care of.

"All exhibitors who are doubtful about the stock that can be grown in the South should write either Mr. Brock or myself and we can tell them just what will do well here. We thought first that it would be best to publish a full list, but there are so many things that we would be liable to overlook that we think it best that the exhibitors tell us what they have to exhibit and we can easily tell them whether or not it will grow in the South.

"However, there are very few items that will grow well in other climates that will not do well here in the summer. I will have some other data following this shortly."

SEED TRADE

Chicago, Ill.—The Chicago Seed Trade Association has issued a seed store in New York.

A. T. Boddington Co. have got partially settled down in their new quarters in Chambers St., New York. With reduced space, as compared with the large area occupied in 14th street, the problem of fitting up has taken some time, but now all departments have been nicely accommodated and the store interior has an excellent appearance.

Batting, Mont.—The Batting Seed & Nursery Co. have been started with a capital of $10,000.

Waco, Tex.—The Waco Seed Company, seed store, was burned out Jan. 11, but the loss, it is understood, is well covered by insurance.

A. T. Boddington Co. have got partially settled down in their new quarters in Chambers St., New York. With reduced space, as compared with the large area occupied in 14th street, the problem of fitting up has taken some time, but now all departments have been nicely accommodated and the store interior has an excellent appearance.

There is to be a hearing before the House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures at Washington on Thursday, January 20th, to consider Congressman Dillon's Bill (H. R. 150) relative to establishing standard weights of commodities, including peas, beans, etc. The seedsmen and Curtis Nye Smith, attorney for the Seed Trade Association, expect to be present.

Senator Ackerson has filed in the New Jersey Senate a Bill (S. 11) to regulate the sale of agricultural seeds and to provide standards of purity and germination. This is the old Iowa type of seed bill, discarded for the label law of more recent seed legislation. The bill affects all classes of seeds and is highly objectionable to the seed trade and of little protective value to purchasers of seeds.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

The Old Shop has continued to be a strong pull for the Valentine trade. All sorts of novelties including something new in baskets will be brought out.

Guy French had his wife and three children all down with gripe at the same time and they are now convalescing. Henry Weiss, of the Philadelphia Press, is still quite ill with the gripe.

William Graham has arrived from Philadelphia to accept the management of Fleischman's, at the Railway Exchange Building. Mr. Graham finds the place pretty hot. Dan Kline, who has just come from Philadelphia to take charge of the Flower Growers' Association and who has become an ardent admirer of this city.

T. Waters, manager of the supply department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., says that the scarcity of flowers is favorable to the business of the supply houses. All kinds of substitutes are selling to relieve the situation. The office and show rooms in this department have been re-arranged so as to afford the buyers a better opportunity to make stock selections.

State street has not had an exclusive flower store since Canger & Gormley removed, following the death of Mr. Gormley, about four years ago. The high rental has been considered prohibitory to this business but a venture has been made by the Chicago Floral House at 144 N. State street with G. P. Constantino, proprietor, who has another store at 39 W. Randolph street. The location is opposite Marshall Field's.

Chicago shippers are having something to contend with. Twice since the New Year came in has the thermometer made a sudden drop of nearly 60 degrees in twenty-four hours and the result was frozen shipments galore. As one prominent shipper says it is not enough to pack your goods so as to protect them from the temperature that exists when you make your shipment but you must pack to protect from the cold that may overtake them in a few hours after leaving you.

Kroeschell Bros. are receiving the usual rush orders for boilers to replace old ones which have given out under the stress of heavy firing for the extreme cold weather. These hurry-up orders are planned for and so systematic are their shipping arrangements and so perfected are all the details connected with them that a 4 P. M. order results in a boiler being on the way before the office closes that night. During no similar length of time have more orders been received than during this winter to date, and business here is very satisfactory.

Gus French, of French & Salm,

A good table of plants at Union Grove contains 75,000 sq. ft. of glass, all of which is devoted to growing the MacNiff roses. Mrs. Russell says that flower is doing splendidly with them and they shall grow nothing else next year. His good report is backed up by the stock he is cutting which is all handled by A. C. Aming Co. The 35,000 plants produced 18,000 blooms during the five days of Christmas week, flowers ranging from 18 in. up. Those who know how the Chicago market averaged that week can draw their own conclusions as to the financial outcome. Christmas prices have prevailed ever since.

NEW YORK.

Arthur Herrington of Madison, N. J., has been called suddenly to Iowa City, Ia., by the serious illness of his mother, who resides there.

"Tommy" Martin, for many years well known, well liked and efficient as a salesman in the wholesale establishment of Trandly & Schenck, is very seriously ill. W. P. Ford and Walter R. Siebrecht are among the recent victims of gripe in the wholesale district.

The MacNiff Horticultural Company has leased another building in addition to the buildings heretofore occupied. This new addition is No. 52 Vesey St., and is a five-story and basement building, so that when alterations are completed the business will occupy 52, 54 and 56 Vesey street. One building will be occupied by the seed department, and the other two buildings will be devoted to plant auction business.

BOSTON.

New victims of the gripe are Mrs. Brown, of J. W. Rogers, and S. Cravath, of Houghton & Cravath.

We regret to announce the very serious illness of Mrs. Thomas A. Cox, who suffered a shock two weeks ago.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar is booked to deliver a lecture before the Garden Club of Cleveland, Ohio, on Wednesday, Jan. 26.

J. A. Budlong, of the Budlong Rose Co., has the sympathy of the florists of Boston on the loss of his daughter, who was murdered Monday, Jan. 17, by a rejected suitor.

The sympathy of the retail and wholesale florists of Boston is extended to Archibald Harrigan, of the W. H. Elliott crew, on the death of his mother on Monday, Jan. 17, of pneumonia. Mr. Harrigan also lost his brother three weeks ago.

HORTICULTURE Publishing Company:

Gentlemen—Enclosed please find one dollar, currency, in payment for subscription to HORTICULTURE for the year 1916. I think much of this paper and believe that it comes as near giving me the worth of my money as anything that I buy.

Very truly yours,

PITTSBURGH.

Edna W. Linder is confined to her home with a severe attack of influenza. Her nephew, DeForest W. Ludwig, is also ill in the same manner.

Joseph G. Geary, an attache of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company, has the distinction of being the champion ten pin roller of Western Pennsylvania.

Since the departure of Harry E. Graves for California, Oliver J. Beet has been in charge of the branch shop of the Zieger Company on North Highland avenue.

Thomas Edward Tyler, the "orchid man" for Charles Dickey Armstrong, has developed a new double Primula malacoides which he is contemplating putting on the market later.

Ernest Guter recently supervised the removal of a fine old liquidamber tree from the Westinghouse estate to that of Richard Beatty Mellon. The tree measured fifty feet in height and trunk fourteen inches in diameter.

Merlin Harris, who has charge of Dr. John Fremont Shaffer's orchid houses, now has in flower a Cypripedium insigne bearing two blooms on one spike, the texture of the blooms being much heavier than the type. Mr. Harris is just convalescing from a serious attack of influenza.

Samuel B. McClements has returned from a sojourn at Atlantic City, where he went to recuperate following the holiday trade. Frank Stafford, one of his salesmen, has a severe attack of gripe. J. Murray McGrew, a salesman for G. P. Weaklin & Company, also has the gripe.

Edward S. James, who has been for some years in charge of the Hotel Schenley grounds, has severed this relation and accepted the charge of the roof storage greenhouse of the new service house for the joint use of the Fort Pitt and the William Penn Hotels, the latter now in course of construction.

The Highland Floral Company is the name of the new wholesale and retail commercial enterprise recently assumed by James Watt, superintendent for Alexander R. Peacock, on his estate, "Rowanlea." Mr. Watt leases the show house, a handsome structure of five sections on the residential grounds, and the propagating house just across the way which includes eight sections. Henry B. Keillor, who for some time has been Mr. Peacock's head gardener, will continue under Mr. Watt's regime as the greenhouse foreman.

CINCINNATI.

Ben George, Jr., has been seriously ill for the past week.

C. E. Critchell, J. A. Peterson and R. Witterstaetter will attend the Carnation Society's meeting at St. Louis.

The preliminary flower show committee met on Tuesday afternoon. They will have a complete report ready for the Society at its next regular meeting.

Obituary

John J. Ehrhardt.

John Jacob Ehrhardt, for many years a florist on Conway street, Brooklyn, N. Y., died Jan. 12, aged 49 years. He is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Edith Moulton

Miss Edith Moulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Moulton, died at her home in York Village, Me., on January 8, aged 40 years, after several months' illness with tuberculosis. For many years Miss Moulton assisted in the florist business of Moulton & Son and had many friends among the summer residents as well as York people.

Melissa Budlong.

Miss Melissa Budlong, aged 21 years, daughter of James A. Budlong, rose grower and market gardener, was shot and instantly killed at her home in Auburn, R. I., on Monday morning, January 17, by a young man 21 years of age with whom she had been keeping company. The murderer then turned the weapon upon himself, inflicting wounds from which he died a few hours later at the hospital.

W. B. Du Rie.

William Brittin Du Rie, a well-known florist of Rahway and member for many years of the S. A. F. and the New York Florists' Club, died on January 16 at his home in Rahway, aged 75 years. Mr. Du Rie served as principal of a Jersey City school for 35 years. He was a veteran of the Civil War, serving as a non-commissioned officer in Company B, Thirtieth New Jersey Volunteers, and later in the Thirty-ninth N. J. Regiment. He is survived by a widow, two sons, Samuel C. and William Brittin Du Rie, Jr., of Rahway, and one daughter, Mrs. Frank of Marlboro.

Albert McCullough.

Albert McCullough, president and manager of the J. M. McCullough Sons Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio, died on January 13th after a short illness. He was in his 65th year. During his lifetime he took an active interest in many affairs both public and private, and at the time of his decease was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, of which he was also a former president; of the Queen City Club, The Business Men's Club, a director of the Fourth National Bank, as well as an active member in several fraternal bodies. Mr. McCullough was a pioneer member of the Society of American Florists. In the American Seed Trade Association he was a very active member, serving from 1886 to 1889 as secretary-treasurer, in 1890 as president, and again in 1900 as president after two years as 2nd and 1st vice-president. His widow, a son Harrie B. McCullough, and two daughters survive him.

Flower Market Reports

The Boston wholesale market remains unchanged. Although the weather has been a little brighter, with a small amount of sunshine coming in occasionally, it hasn't changed the size of crops or market values very much. Carnations are a little more plentiful, but are selling at as good a figure as before. Bulb stock is also more abundant, but the quantity is not large enough for the demand. Roses are off crop and prominent growers claim that the prices that they are bringing reminds them of the old times when they were bringing in their little boxes and cleaning out at any price that they asked.

Market good, supply short, prices high, is the story of the market for the past week and by all indications things are to so remain for a while. Zero weather has added to the troubles of the merchant and some stock already had been received in frosted condition and at just the time when it could have been used to advantage. Roses are still scarce, carnations coming a trifle better, and other stock not abundant. Wholesale stocks are cleaned up daily.

No relief has come to this market since our last report, a week ago. Stock remains so scarce that practically all out of town orders are cut to the least amount that will answer the purpose. It is hard to say whether a few more flowers of any one kind are cut than last week, for the amount still keeps so far below what ordinarily comes into the wholesale houses and below what the demand calls for. The sunshine has been up to the average, though the thermometer has registered low, but weather conditions are not considered the cause of the shortage. A very heavy crop was on for the holidays and that crop having been cut, the only solution is to wait with what patience we may have till the next one comes. Bulbous stock is up to the usual January supply and quality is considered good, but the scarcity of other flowers causes this supply to appear smaller than in other years because it is sold so quickly.

The sudden cold and cloudy weather has reduced receipts and brought the daily supply down to the lowest point of the year in almost every line of stock. In the meantime the demand was active and brought about a rise in prices. At the time of this writing the supply of roses is very small. It includes, however, some very fine American Beauties. The cut of carnations has also decreased. Lilies, plentiful right along, now are coming in only limited quantities. Lily of the valley are also rather scarce, and daffodils and jonquils have been proving good property. Violets are fairly plentiful. Wild smilax and galax are meeting with a heavy demand.

During the many Januarys through which we have been privileged to follow the flower markets we have never known a period of such in New York so pronounced as the present. The total receipts of the wholesalers on 28th street in any one day might be handled by a single establishment. The consequence is that Christmas prices have in the past been continued up to the present time. One item alone seems to have been excluded from these general conditions are many of fine quality but for which the call is very light and prices correspondingly depressed. Another item which is in really insufficient supply the variety Gov. Herrick, with its exceptionally good color, fragrance and keeping qualities, is almost unobtainable at less than one dollar per 100.

Flower Market Reports

standard rate for other singles. The carnation market has changed around since the holiday so that the whites outclass the reds in demand. The call for white flowers has, further, given a sharp impulse to the price of lilies, callas, paper white narcissi, etc. All bulbous stock sells without a word of protest against the stiff figures as compared with those which prevail ordinarily. The retail stores are carrying almost no flowers in stock or for window display. A few ferns, palms and flowering plants constitutes the bulk of the outfit. In design work, galax, leucothoe and other expedients reduce the actual number of fresh flowers used to the smallest limit.

Flowers a little scarce at present and prices in growers' favor—take the market all around. Beauties have been rather plenty, but are now getting off crop a little. Other roses scarce—not enough to go around—especially in the shorter grades. Last week there was a drop in carnations, but the market has recovered and good prices are now being realized. Cattleyas are among the few things that are in good supply, some very fine Trianaes arriving. Sweet peas are extra good and sell well. A few daffodils, tulips and Roman hyacinths are to be seen, but nothing to make any stir in the market. A fair quantity of paper whites are arriving and bringing prices away above normal years. Lily of the valley is scarce and bringing more money. Lilies are also scarce and higher in price. Violets, particularly doubles, are rather sluggish. Mignonette has improved in quality considerably and is bringing very good prices.

With the death rate averaging almost double the usual toll hereabouts, the enormous demand for flowers continues, with the supply worse and worse. Roses and carnations, especially, are scarce. The social demands are less heavy than for some weeks past, however, and the zero weather has practically precluded so-called "traffic trade."

The conditions of the wholesale market have not changed much from last reports and the scarcity in almost anything seasonable still keeps up. The most notable scarcity is in roses, which was unexpected. Carnations, too, are scarce with high prices. Other stock cleans up daily.

Stock of all kinds is very scarce with few exceptions and prices are very high. The demand for lily of the valley, high-grade roses and carnations has been very good. Carnations are not enough to go around, particularly the whites and pinks. American Beauty roses are in good demand and the price stiffened materially. The sale on Radiance and Mock is very good. There are plenty of New York double violets to be had but there is something of a shortage of locally grown single violets and the prices on the latter are somewhat

THERE'S a good chance on the Main Line-suburban Philadelphia for a live wire raising and selling flowers. Near station. Two acres, worth $5000 an acre. Five glass houses (one of them cost $2000 two years ago), stable, outhouses, horses, wagons and other appurtenances. Also the good-will of a business running successfully for 20 years. In all, counting the site, value 10—the horses, wagons and things, 5—the good-will, 5. I should say $20,000 the real value. I believe you could buy it for much less right now. Reason: the owner is in bad health and would like to see some live young one take a hold of it even if owner has to give him a bargain. I know something about the business myself—and this is no fake! I think it is a splendid chance for a young man with a little backing. It isn't a case of all cash, so long as the backing is good the rest can be arranged. Address G. C. ## CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON

The dinner given in hall last evening, Jan. 11th, was a most successful one, and was well attended by many guests. The dinner was served in the hall, and the entertainment was most enjoyable. Officers were installed, all being present except Vice-president Patterson and Misses Peter Miller and W. C. Rust. Resolutions of sympathy on the death of W. Allen Burbee were presented by the committee. W. N. Craig, Duncan Finlayson and Robert Cameron, Orl. officers' and committee reports were made, Treasurer Craig's report for the year being very pleasing.

Reports of merit on the rose Mme. P. Euler (Prima Donna), and carnation Laura Weber and honorable mention for new carnation Peace, all exhibited by Guttman & Raynor of New York, were made by the exhibition judges. Nine new members were elected.

President Methven announced the following committee appointments: Entertainment committee—George W. Hamer, W. J. Collins, John McIntire, Wm. Mix, Harold Edgar, Wm. Watson, A. E. Eisenhardt, P. A. Gavin and D. J. Crighton. Membership Welcome Committee—John F. Briry, D. J. Reid, J. R. Ness, J. L. Russell, Edw. Rose, John Reid, R. E. Montgomery and Frank Murray. Committee on Exhibits—Kenneth Finlayson, R. Cameron, Jas. Wheeler, Wm. Downs, S. J. Goddard, F. E. Palmer, T. H. Westwood, D. Finlayson, Julius Huerlin, Alex. McKay, Donald McKenzie, A. A. Pembroke, W. H. Judd, Charles Sander and Eber Holmes.

There was a very classy entertainment of music and vaudeville, followed by ice cream, cake and coffee, after which the company engaged in dancing. The sum of $20 was collected as a New Year's gift for Joe, the ever-obliging janitor of Horticultural Hall.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

The opening session of the year was held, as usual, in the Carnegie Library. President David Fraser presiding. James Scott, of Elmsford, N. Y., spoke at some length on the important differential points of chrysanthemums grown for private and exhibition purposes, and those raised in view of the commercial output. The latter subject was specially appropriate, as the business meeting which preceded his talk decided definitely to have a chrysanthemum show next autumn. Cultural certificates were awarded to the following: Mr. McNamara, for a collection of vegetables; Mr. Murphy of Sewickley Heights, cyclamens; Neil Forsythe, "Lyndhurst," Spirea Venus. Farquhar's giant pink and white Primulae sinensis and Lorraine begonias; Thomas Edward Tyler, Calanthes, Cypripedium Leeanaum Clinkaberryanum and Odontoglossums.

SOUTHAMPTON HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of this society was held in the court room of the Municipal Building on January 6. The treasurer's report showed a good balance in the bank. The flower show of the past summer was a decided success financially and in all other respects. Election of officers resulted as follows: President, Martin McLaughlin; vice-president, William A. Malcolm; secretary, Herbert H. Wells; financial secretary, James Dixon; treasurer, John Johnson; corresponding secretary, Stanley R. Candler; executive committee, U. G. Agar, Ormiston C. Gardner, George Campbell, William A. Frankenbach, the president being chairman ex-officio. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the annual banquet which will occur on the evening of Jan. 27th at the Commercial Hotel. Entertainment and music will fill in the time after the dinner is served.

Please find enclosed one dollar, renewing my subscription for HORTICULTURE another year. In regard to HORTICULTURE, will say that it is first-class in its special field, and in particular its market reports are up-to-date and reliable.

NASSAU COUNTY (N. Y.) HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

A well attended meeting of the society was held in the Nassau County Courthouse, Jan. 11th. A resolution on from the National Association of Gardeners, offering to supply essays to be read at our monthly meetings, was unanimously accepted. The subject for this meeting was "Gardening a Profession?" It was thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated. The judges made the following awards: freesias, 1st, Harry Goodbrand; 2nd, Robert Jones; lettuce, 1st, Robert Jones. Primula malacoides, by John Everitt, cultural certificate. James Duthie exhibited six plants of Primula malacoides Townsendii, which were awarded a certificate of merit. This primula, which originated with Mr. Duthie, forms a much more compact plant than the older type, while the individual florets are much larger and the color is a most distinct and pleasing shade of pink. Mr. Duthie reports that the seed of this variety which he has saved and sown comes almost uniformly true to type, the percentage reverting to the old type being so small as to be almost negligible.

Mr. Johnson of R. & J. Farquhar & Co. of Boston, and Mr. Earnshaw of the Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J., were visitors. The annual dinner will be held at the Oriental Hotel on January 25.

JAMES MCCARTHY, Cor. Secretary.

HOLYOKE AND NORTHAMPTON FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

The regular monthly meeting of this club was held Jan. 11th at the residence of George Rockliffe, Holyoke, Mass. Aubrey Butler, the newly elected president, presided over a somewhat smaller attendance than usual, several of the members being gripe victims, but there was no lack of vitality amongst those present. After an unusually interesting business session, H. Sinclair of Smith's Ferry gave a graphic account of his experiences in the rose growing department of Poehlmann Bros., Chicago. The club was honored by a visit from S. S. Skidelsky of Philadelphia, who spoke of the forthcoming National Flower Show in that city, and expressed the hope of meeting some of the members there.

ST. LOUIS FLORIST CLUB.

This club held one of the best, most interesting and largest attended meetings they ever had. The committee which has the coming Carnation Society meeting in charge reported everything in readiness. Prof. J. C. Whitier, of the Columbia University of Missouri, gave the members an interesting talk. There were seven new applicants for membership. The trustees are reported to have a big surprise in store for the next club meeting. Treasurer Smith made a pleasing financial report and the question box brought out some interesting discussions. The next meeting will be held Feb. 10 at 2 o'clock.

October 16, 1915.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Horticulture Jury, of which the writer was a member, awarded you a Gold Medal for your Insecticides, and when you take into consideration the fact that that Jury, outside of the writer, was composed of some of the famous experts of the world, you will realize the importance of this award. Verification of this may be obtained from Mr. George A. Dennison, Chief of Horticulture, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The writer has been requested to furnish a list of the articles which the Jury endorsed by their action in awarding prizes because of merit. This request comes from representatives of foreign countries and states.

Respectfully yours,

Signed: J. A. BUCHANAN, Gen. Mgr.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Tennessee State Florists' Association will meet in Nashville, on Monday, January 24.

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers' Association held its winter meeting in Reading, Pa., on January 18, 19 and 20.

The Annual Dinner of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society will be held at Piper's Hotel, Morristown, N. J., on Thursday evening, January 27.

Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard, retiring secretary Ladies' S. A. F., wishes to extend thanks to HORTICULTURE'S Editor for favors during her nine and one-half years' service, also all members who have aided her personally in the work.

E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, lectured on the flora of Japan before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 18. The stereopticon pictures and Mr. Wilson's graphic descriptions were enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience.

The Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association is opening its convention in Boston as we go to press. Fruit growers from all parts of New England will gather at Horticultural Hall this afternoon for the opening session. They will witness an exhibition said to be the largest of its kind ever attempted, and will listen to addresses by authorities on the fruit-raising business.

At the seventy-first annual meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, held in the Public Library, Providence, on Wednesday, Jan. 19, Dr. Burt L. Hartwell, Director of the Experiment Station, Rhode Island State College, lectured on the Chemistry of the Garden, covering such topics as, "How the plant feeds," "How to add plant food to the soil," "The effect upon plants of certain chemical elements," etc.

The Missouri State Horticultural Society held its annual meeting at the Planters Hotel, St. Louis, on Jan. 12, 13 and 14, with a good attendance. Thursday, the 13th, was Florists' Day, and the local florists came in goodly numbers to listen to interesting papers by Jules Bourdet, W. W. Ohlweiler, A. Jaenicke, H. C. Irish and Frank Weber, all members of the Florist Club. At the election of officers H. C. Irish was chosen president.

On the 13th inst., Alfred Flowers read an interesting paper before the New London Horticultural Society on the Principles of Transplanting, which was followed by a big discussion on the best way to move large trees. Treasurer S. L. Ewald gave a report on the expenses and receipts for the past year which showed a good balance. The secretary announced that Chas. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., would speak on hardy chrysanthemums at the next meeting, Feb. 10.

Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Please send me 25 record plates like the enclosed sample, and I want to say that the machine, bought a good many years back, is keeping up its good work right along. I think it a very useful adjunct to good plant growing, and it should be in every greenhouse, as reference to it may often tell what is wrong with a batch of plants.

Very truly yours, ALBERT M. HERR.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

HAPPILY for the bank balances, the flower growers are going over into the preserves of the vegetable men, and walking away with nice clean profits.

We say, happily, because it has resulted in a decided improvement in vegetable growing, and brought about improved market conditions.

The florists' training having been along the lines of that constant care and ever-alertness necessary to grow successful flowers; brings to the growing of vegetables that same handling.

Quality, as a result, has greatly improved.

With the advent of the long-stemmed varieties, the beautiful long-stemmed sweet peas jumped into instant demand.

To fill the houses with a crop on the off-peak-months was the problem. Tomatoes, thriving as they do, in direct planting, proved to be just the thing.

Of the growing conditions required by both these subjects, we have made a most painstaking study, resulting in our building several houses that have proven a great success.

Our Reconstructed Construction seems to be particularly adaptable for the purpose.

At no expense, you are welcome to take full advantage of our experience.

We have a notion it will save you many a dollar.

You know we go anywhere for business, or to talk business.

Burpee-Quality Seeds Help Solve the Market Problem

It is our pleasure to record a greatly improved market condition, and we confidently predict that 1916 will prove a most prosperous season for the Market Grower.

Many causes contributed to the unsatisfactory vegetable market of 1915, and it is also true that these same causes created a most profitable market for Staples, such as Wheat, Corn, Oats, etc.

During 1915 we attended many meetings where market growers gathered to formulate plans to overcome the then prevailing unfavorable conditions. Much good resulted from these conventions, as they have proved beyond question that inferior produce in large quantities, dumped without thought of quality or condition, has done more to demoralize the markets than any other factor.

The discussions at these meetings have brought the invariable conclusion that Quality Produce did sell—and sell well—at the highest price obtainable.

Quality Produce can no more be the harvest of inferior seed than high-bred cattle can be the product of inferior or diseased stock.

Burpee's Seeds are known the world over as the American Standard of Excellence. When you buy Burpee's Seeds the element of doubt is removed so far as is possible by human care.

A careful canvass of our Market Grower friends has brought this answer: "Yes, we certainly grew first-class crops from Burpee's Seeds."

The conclusion is inevitable: Burpee's Seeds grow Quality Produce, and Quality Produce brought good prices. Burpee's Seeds help solve the market problem.

Did you use Burpee's Seeds in 1915? If not, we earnestly solicit your orders for 1916. The profit is mutual.

Burpee's Annual for 1916, our complete retail catalog of 182 pages, has already been mailed. If you have failed to receive it, please write us at once and a duplicate copy will be forwarded.

Sincerely yours,

Burpee Buildings.

New Carnation COTTAGE MAID

A Sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward

---

Did you go to the Carnation Show at St. Louis? If so, did you see our beautiful new "Cottage Maid," Queen of the Novelties.

The public here in New York is crazy over the color of this beautiful new carnation! It is a clear shell pink, deep in the center and lighter toward the edge. It is a color your trade demands.

Its plant is identical with its well known and widely grown parent "Mrs. C. W. Ward" and it has the same wonderful keeping and shipping qualities as this variety. In fact at the Cleveland Show this fall, "Cottage Maid" besides the first prize in its class, won the prize for the vase of carnations in the best condition at the end of the Show. And these flowers were shipped from New York.

We have grown this variety for six years and tried it out thoroughly. It is not our policy to let buyers of our novelties do the experimenting.

We believe in "Cottage Maid" and we are going to back up our belief by planting 50,000 of it next year for blooms besides the stock plants.

It will be sent out next winter. Send in your order early.

And keep your eye on "Crystal White," our sensational pure white, which is larger and more productive than "Matchless." It will probably be disseminated in 1917-18.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Carnation Cuttings

Cuttings should be taken in the morning while they are fresh and crisp. Dip them in cool water and trim up in a cool place. Insert as soon as possible in the propagating bench. Spray lightly early every bright morning to keep the foliage moist during the day, but try to have it dry by night. Before potting harden them up a little by gradually giving more sunlight each day, until the roots have pushed far enough to enable them to stand full sun. Cuttings thus treated will take hold much quicker as there will be less wilting after potting. As soon as a cutting is well rooted it does not improve by remaining in the sand any longer. Use new soil that has been exposed to the action of the weather. Screen through a half-inch mesh and it is important to have it moist enough. Pot firmly and water thoroughly as soon after as practical. Shade for a few days and then give full sunlight.

Chrysanthemums

It may seem quite early to begin propagating, but where there is any intention to grow show blooms or plants now is the time to begin. Again it is not at all unusual for a new variety to be condemned the first year because the buyer has propagated it late and to the utmost limit, and the plants have not had a chance to prove themselves. Stock plants of the older varieties should have good care to assure good stock when the main batch needs to be propagated. Plants cannot be expected to throw healthy cuttings if they are hidden away from the sunlight. Stock plants should be brought up to the light at once, even if you have to throw something else out. As soon as the cuttings have roots half an inch or so in length get them out right away and pot into soil. Many cuttings are permanently weakened by being left in the sand and allowed to make a weak, attenuated growth and long spindly roots.

Odontoglossums

Plants that have not yet been repotted should be attended to without delay. There is no question that autumn potting is the best. A good compost is fern fiber and live sphagnum chopped, with some charcoal intermixed. Be careful as to watering until they make new roots into the compost. Give plenty of air, but avoid draughts. Of course judgment will have to be used as to outside conditions in giving air. Syringe on bright days, but take care in dull weather not to have the atmosphere overcharged with moisture. Better keep a little more fire heat so as not to entirely cut off ventilation, or produce a stagnant atmosphere. The temperature through the winter should range about 50 at night and 60 to 65 with sunshine. They will stand as low as 45 degrees without injury, but less water and syringing should be given under such circumstances.

Stock Left Over

Stock left over from the holidays will need attention right away, especially that needed for stock for another year, such as poinsettias. Provide stock plants of these by lifting with as much of the soil adhering as possible and set closely packed in boxes, covering the intervening bare spaces with soil from the bench. These should be rested under a somewhat dry warm bench until March or later. Save as many stevia plants as will be needed, cut down and place in a light cool house for future cuttings. Azaleas should be placed in a very cool, light house. Anything above the freezing point will do. See that at no time they are allowed to get extremely dry. Ericas will take the same treatment. All such flowering plants as Begonia Lorraine, cyclamen and primroses should be given the minimum temperature with plenty of ventilation until sold, but if the stock is unsalable don't let it occupy valuable bench room.

Solanum Cuttings

Berried solanums make a very fine Christmas plant. Now is the proper time to work up a nice lot of stocks for the next holidays. They will root in any moderately warm propagating bed. When rooted, pot into 2½ or 3-inch pots. They can be grown on in a temperature of from 50 to 55 degrees at night. See that they have plenty of sun and syringing on all good days.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Keeping Well

Although some of the growers will be careful to keep their roses and other plants in perfect health all the time, they are none too careful in taking care of themselves. With an epidemic of grippe all over the country greenhouse men can be none too careful. The main thing in the greenhouse is to keep the feet dry and as it is very difficult to syringe in rose houses and stay dry, all wet clothes should be removed as soon as the work is done, and clean dry clothes put on again. A good deal of suffering from rheumatism can be avoided by keeping dry. Never run outside, or go home through the cold with wet clothes on. Do not dress too warm while in the greenhouses, but make sure you wear sufficient clothes while out. These few lines may not be rose growing but a week's confinement with grippe may cost the grower heavily in real good money through harm to roses. This may be found so especially among the smaller growers.

Feeding

With February here, and the days getting longer there will be little danger from overfeeding, as the plants will feel the spring as much as anything and will grow very fast if they are given half a chance. Liquid manure can be used at least once a week, and if the plants are especially robust and growing real good, twice a week will do no harm. Tankage, sheep manure, and other fertilizers can be used in addition to the liquid manure, the only thing to caution against being not to have the houses get too warm mornings. The sun will be much stronger from now on and will heat up the houses much quicker than during the short days of December. See that the houses are aired on time in the morning, and that the heat is taken off as soon as they are warm enough.

Mulching

Be sure to see that the plants are kept mulched all the time, so that there will be no bare earth exposed to the rays of the sun anywhere. Plans that are allowed to suffer in this respect will not do so well, for they will at times have trouble getting all the water they need, and the rays of the sun will kill a good many tiny rootlets which fill the surface of the soil and supply a large portion of the plant food. It will not be necessary to have the mulch very thick, and it should never be broken up too fine. Lumps about the size of walnuts are ideal, as they allow all the water to soak in, and will also let all bone, tankage, etc. drop between them to the tiny roots which these lumps protect. Cow manure makes ideal mulch, but where none is to be had, coarse sods chopped up to the proper size will do. These if spread evenly over the benches will keep the soil from washing around when the plants are watered. To save time it is necessary to use a little more pressure than was customary, but with the benches protected by proper the soil, it can be done without any harm to the plants.

Lime

As soon as the leaves on any of the plants become very soft and with a sickly yellow color, it means that they have been over watered and will be greatly helped by a dose of lime and a little drying out. Use fresh air slacked lime, and no agricultural lime or ground limestone. There are so many different kinds of lime sold under "agricultural" that the only way to know what is what would be to have the manufacturer guarantee the material, and then have it analyzed at some experiment station. We like to use the common lump lime which comes packed in barrels. We buy three or four and dump these into a box made for the purpose on a platform in the manure tank. The damp air here will slack the lime naturally and we have all we need as a rule without slacking any. Should it not slack fast enough, a can of water sprinkled over it will do the trick. The amount to apply to the benches should not be excessive. Enough to whiten the surface of the benches will be plenty. This can be watered in at once or allowed to lay on the benches for a little while. If allowed to lay there it will cake and the plants will not get all of it at once. It will be necessary to go over the benches and scratch these caked places up so that they will not keep air and water out of the soil. If the grower is careful the plants will not be allowed to get bad, and taken in time, it will be an easy matter to get them back into their proper condition. As soon as the plants show signs of improvement, a little more water, and a little more plant food will send them right along.

Bonemeal

Unless the old soil that comes out of the greenhouses can be used to good advantage, or the plants are to be run over, we would not use any more bonemeal from now on, as the plants will not get the full benefit of it. We would prefer to use tankage sheep manure, or any of the quicker plant foods, as the roses are sure to get most of the food that there is in these. Use bone only for the potted plants when potting, and on benches that are to be run over, without transplanting.

Some Rose Troubles

MR. RUZICKA,

Dear Sir: I wish to ask your advice again—about my rose house this time. This house is exposed to the north-east and is on very high ground. I have always had some trouble with the roses on one of the benches, and am led to suppose that it is due to one or more of the following causes: (a) The bench is too warm owing to its being sheltered by the palm house, being on the main direct flow from the boiler, and the brick wall at the back which reflects the sun, and the plants become too soft; (b) the ventilator being on one side only, too much cold air gets in in some directions of the wind. Can you tell me of a rose, preferably a white one, that will be likely to do better in this bench than White Killarney? Possibly some of the older sorts, like The Bride or White Ivory. I want to say that the mildew is not bad at all, but this is where it always starts. I have to grow a general line of plants and cannot give any one variety my entire attention, but am happy to say that by following your weekly notes I have been greatly helped, and shall be grateful if you can help me in this difficulty. If there is a White Sunburst or White Ophelia, it would just suit, Conn. Very truly yours,

 J. E.

I would suggest that you try to give the Killarneys more water. Water them two times for every watering that the other roses get. My experience with Killarneys is that they will get a speck of mildew here and there as soon as they are allowed to be a little dry while they are growing. The bench they are in would be the driest in the house if your house behaves as ours of a similar type. You can also use air-slacked lime to find out which way the air currents run, and if you find that a cold current of air descends on this bench you could turn your heat into pipes under this bench, and if necessary take it off elsewhere in the house to change the current if possible. If this does not remedy the trouble, perhaps it would be well to try some other white rose. The Madison is a white rose, an improvement on the Bride as near as I can tell, having a bud very similar, with a stiffer stem and foliage, the latter resembling holly, but of course it is nowhere near as heavy. It is supposed to be mildew proof so it may be of value to you. I would hardly recommend the Ivory, as years ago we could never get it to bear perfect buds. You could try White Shawyer; although many growers complain of mildew on this we have grown the Pink Shawyer for quite a while without any trouble. There is no white Ophelia that I know of and anyone discovering one with all the good qualities of the present variety, would certainly be able to make a neat sum of money. The rose Madison was put out by the Brant-Hentz Floral Co., Madison, N. J., and the White Shawyer by Charles H. Totty, also of Madison, N. J. I would be glad to hear if these suggestions have been of any use to you.

Buddleia

The Buddleia is an excellent subject for the young shrub border. It will transform an otherwise uninteresting border to a gorgeous mass of color and beauty. It has been called "the butterfly bush" and it has been justly called so, for its numerous panicles of flowers are irresistible to the butterflies.

The propagation of the Buddleia is of the easiest possible. All that needs be done is to cut off pieces of the ripened wood in late fall and store them away in a cool, but not cold place. They may also be propagated by seeds and by greenwood cuttings. Seeds should be sown in early spring with a little bottom heat.

They should be protected during the winter and, although killed to the ground, they will send up abundant young shoots from the roots in the spring. The best varieties that will survive the winter here are B. japonica, B. Davidii, B. Lindleyana, and B. intermedia. The handsomest outdoor variety is B. Davidii, also known as B. variabilis. This produces numerous, fragrant, lilac-purple flowers in late summer. A variety of this—Veitchiana—is more commonly grown. While young this variety has an erect habit of growth, but later the branches gracefully arch over. The flower panicles are denser and larger than the type and of a light lilac color. It begins to bloom early in August.

Do not plant them too close together for they are rampant plants and need lots of space and plenty of sun. The best soil is one that is rich and well-drained.

B. asiatica is a greenhouse variety. The flowers are white and very fragrant and appear in winter. They should be propagated early in the spring and shifted on or planted out during the summer.

Jackson Dawson's Exploits

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Sir,—When your last issue arrived, and the portrayal of Magnolia salicifolia appeared on the outside cover, the story of its introduction came to mind at once, and on opening the pages there was Jackson Dawson being vouched for by Mr. Wilson.

To fully appreciate the work of the Arboretum, one has to go away—the farther the better—for it had become a by-word in the past, that the Institution was far more appreciated abroad than at home, and the pity of it is, that it was true. The not being in touch with the work through distance, makes at least an annual pilgrimage all the more necessary, for the wealth of new woody plants now to be seen there will revolutionize our gardens for generations to come.

Reverting to the Magnolia salicifolia, Professor C. S. Sargent when in Japan, met Mr. Veitch, and they travelled together and gathered seeds. Among these was this Magnolia, none of which germinated from those sent to England, and so all the plants in cultivation today are from seedlings raised by Jackson Dawson. These men mentioned are making horticultural history, and should the annals ever be written, it will be the most interesting of our day and generation.

There is one phrase which Mr. Wilson uses, that Dawson has "some occult understanding," that might be taken exception to. There is no wizardry or necromancy such as we have heard so much of in other directions, mixed in; it is all pure sympathy and a love of the plants themselves that has brought about the successes of Jackson Dawson. One might tell of the Acacia pubescens grafted by him just to prove it could be done when it was supposed to be impossible, of his success with all the new Chinese Rhododendron seeds, that had travelled half way around the world before coming to his hands, and under the best of conditions ever prone to damp off in the seedling stage, and of his propagation of Epigaea repens from cuttings when most of us were wasting time trying to establish the "Mayflower" by collecting plants, but most of all Dawson will live on because of his modesty, and willingness to impart to others from his fund of accumulated knowledge if they were willing to learn. "Life is short," and when over twenty years ago Dawson advised the writer to sow seeds of certain trees and shrubs to get the same, there being no other way at that time, it seemed a long way to results, and yet under really adverse conditions these are still being obtained by the evergreen Jackson Thornton Dawson.

 years

After twenty five years that a similar event in a previous issue of St. Louis, the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the American Carnation Society. The twenty-five years that have elapsed since the memorable annual meeting at Philadelphia seem, to doubt, a long period to the younger followers of the fortunes of the "carnation flower," but to those who were present or interested in that event, the time seems not long and the changes that have taken place in the personnel of the Carnation Society's active adherents seem disproportionately great. Of the signers of the original call, over seventy-five per cent. have either passed into the great beyond or have lapsed into oblivion, so far as carnation activity is concerned. The American Carnation Society's history is a record of usefulness and we hope to have the pleasure of seeing it still prosper for another quarter century.

 document

President Joe Hill's address at the St. Louis meeting of the Carnation Society is an admirable document and should be carefully read and its sentiments and advice taken to heart by every one engaged in the carnation industry. Especially will it be well to thoughtfully consider the intimation that a revival of serious purpose, unselfish devotion and some sacrifice of personal interests, is in order if the present generation are to creditably emulate the zeal and achievements of the Society's pioneer workers. There is an undercurrent of suggestion in Mr. Hill's earnest appeal that the carnation specialist must bestir himself if his favorite flower is to hold its relative position in the commercial flower markets under the increasing competition of alert rival interests, and direct practical advice on how best to proceed is not lacking. President Hill evidently believes in the old proverb that standing still is dangerously near to retrogression.

To break
 habit

The remarks of F. J. McNeil at the meeting of the Massachusetts Fruit Growers in Boston, last week, on the iniquity of the sending out of nursery stock not true to name, struck a responsive chord among his audience and there is no doubt that the plan of publicity for offenders as proposed by him would prove a salutary remedial measure. Florists, too, have suffered from the same trouble as the nurserymen complain of but perhaps to a less degree for many classes of florists' stock are more easily distinguishable as to varietal character and the time wasted before the discovery of a substitution is not, as a rule, so long as in the case of fruit varieties. Previous to the organization of the Society of American Florists it was alleged that fraudulent substitution was very often practiced by florist plant dealers, but the agitation and demonstration which the S. A. F. kept up for years brought about an unanimity of sentiment and a degree of vigilance coupled with uncomfortable publicity for offenders, which has had a very wholesome effect. For this moral and material improvement the S. A. F. has been the primary motive power.

HORTICULTURAL SPORTS

The bizarre, garish, unconventional individuals that are referred to among humans as "sports" have their counterparts in the plant world. One may be introduced to you by a friend, the other by a nursery catalogue. You will find that some have a thin veneer of color or an eccentricity of form or action that may be very amusing, but that have no real merit or permanent value; while on the other hand there are some sports that have such substantial and worthy qualities that they find a permanent place of honor among your friends, or in your gardens and landscapes.

It is to certain of these plant sports that we shall hereafter refer, such as the purple, golden, cut-leaved, pyramidal, table-form, table-topped, and weeping forms that have developed among species of Beech, Birch, Maple, Elm, Catalpa, Elder, Hazel, Dogwood, Pine, Hemlock, Spruce, and other groups. These have become pretty well established in nurseries, gardens, and lawns, by reason of their vigor, health, distinctive foliage, or habit of growth. They have been mostly used, however, as specimens, or to give brilliant spots of summer color in the conventional patchwork quilt shrub plantations, not as elements of broad landscapes.

Before considering their use in landscapes we should recognize that such sports are not always fugitive accidental freaks that can be reproduced only by grafting or by cuttings. It has been found, for example, that the seedlings of a conspicuous specimen plant of Wier's Cut-leaf Maple, Purple Beech, or Golden Spirea will produce so large a percentage of cut-leaved, and purple or golden offspring, that the progeny of an old seeding plant would be likely to establish in time a wide-spreading distinctive group, in which there will be much foliage like the parent, and color transitions due to variations in seedlings, and these would gradually merge the group into the surrounding trees. The Purple Barberry has already escaped from cultivation, and made these distinctive groups in open pastures.

Much of our broad landscape beauty comes from the deep shadows and the high lights of hill and valley, and of foliage as seen under various atmospheric moods. Individual trees count but little in distant landscape. It is the mass that counts effectively in foliage color and in outline, as shown in the contrasts between the spired cone-bearing evergreens and the rounded outline of deciduous foliage, or the towering Lombardy Poplars; or again between the dark and solid masses of the Burr Oak foliage, the flickering and glistening sparkle of the Aspen Poplar or the Silver Poplar, or the soft, fleecy, grayish foliage of the Willows.

The really worthy sports of the vegetable world may well have a place that has never been given them in broad landscapes that are seen from a distance. The deep shadows in the valley, or at the ends of a long vista might be given greater emphasis by the use of such long-lived vigorous forms as the Purple Beech or Purple Maple, that are used in principal masses and outline groups with a suitable backing, flanking, and interlacing of dark green foliage that would merge the purple into the surrounding landscape, to give the deeper shadows and not be unpleasantly obtrusive.

At other points the high lights of the landscape in glades through vistas or under arching trees may be given greater emphasis and brilliancy by the use of such plants as the Golden Elder and Spirea, or the Golden Poplar and Hop-tree.

The cut-leaved form of the Birch, Beech, or Maple would give a distinct variation in the texture of the foliage, as seen from a distance, if a sufficient quantity were used to count effectively, and they could be very properly associated with the type.

There are many places where it would be very desirable to establish a ground cover that will not grow high enough to interfere with the view, that will have good healthy foliage, and that can be more readily kept in restraint than can be most vines. Why should we not use the Weeping forms of the Mulberry, Mountain Ash, Elm, Beech, Dogwood, Pine and Spruce for such a purpose? Some of these forms, such as the Weeping Mulberry and Camperdown Elm, are trailing sports of upright trees, with little tendency to form a leader. They are usually grafted on high stems to make them suggest the umbrella-like form.

Other varieties, like the Weeping Beech and the Norway Spruce, have a distinct tendency to make a leader. Such forms, grown on their own roots, or grafted so low that the graft can be buried in the ground, to form roots above the union, would have a tendency to scramble over the surface. As such plants as the Mountain Ash and the Mulberry have fruit that the birds like, they would help to form the ideal bird cover. One can conceive of an exceedingly interesting and attractive phase of landscape so treated, for there is enough variation to give high and low foliage masses.

There are other places where the cushion-shaped trees, such as the Dwarf Catalpa, the several dense forms of the Norway Spruce and American Arborvitæ, could be massed together to form a distinctive landscape treatment of this type.

Is there any more reason why the brilliant crimson coloring of the Schwedler's Maple should not be used to give color effects in a large way in the spring, as we now secure color effects from the Maples, Tupelos, Sumacs, and Birches in the fall? These are all interesting propositions for those who have the courage to break away from the conventional use of material; but they must recognize the danger of such suggestions, because it will be very easy to produce a garish and disordered effect in landscape, just as is now produced in so many gardens and lawns when too much color material are used.

BRITISH HORTICULTURE.

Retrospective.

In reviewing the trend of horticultural matters in Britain in 1915 it is not necessary to adopt the pessimistic attitude taken by many writers in the British yellow press in discussing the present outlook. Although everything has not been normal there is consolation in the fact that the position of affairs might have been worse. The Royal Horticultural Society has certainly done its best to keep things moving. Except for a short period when the society's hall was in the possession of the military authorities the fortnightly shows, always a popular feature amongst the world of fashion, have been continued, and have attracted the usual amount of attention. Despite the fact that the nurserymen have had their staffs seriously depleted by the call to arms, they have done their utmost to maintain the high standard of the exhibitions. The society rendered a timely service in appealing to the public not to neglect their gardens during the present crisis, with a view to obviating a grave decline in the trade of the nurserymen and seedsmen. The importance of paying increased attention to the raising of vegetable crops, in order to add to the home food supplies, has also been emphasized. The Council has likewise sought to give opportune and much needed succor to the unfortunate Belgian nurserymen and seedsmen who are amongst the victims of ruthless invasion. Practical sympathy has in addition been afforded to the agriculturists of Serbia. In fact the Royal Horticultural Society has rendered a memorable service, maintaining its proud name as the valued helper of horticulture, and in doing this has taken a broad view of its duties. Useful work is still being done by the National Rose Society, which was able to hold successful exhibitions, the National Chrysanthemum Society—temporarily deprived of its usual show place—the National Dahlia Society, the National Sweet Pea Society, whose trials are still a very useful adjunct, the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society, and the other special societies. In some instances there was, as might be expected, a falling off in the number of exhibits, but in every case the committees have shown a firm determination to adhere to the prevalent motto, "Business as usual."

Jottings

At the annual meeting of the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society, officers were elected as follows: President, Lord Howard De Walden; chairman of committee, J. S. Brunton; vice-chairman, Mr. Wallace; treasurer, L. J. Cook; secretary, T. A. Weston, Orpington, Kent; show superintendent, E. P. Jones.

The British Government has prohibited the import of lilies of the valley from Holland, it being suspected that many of the so-called Dutch pips were really of enemy origin. Before the war many tons of crowns were imported from Germany.

The Royal Horticultural Society has arranged to conduct trials at its Surrey gardens with late potatoes, godettias, annual carnations, Indian pinks, mignonette, larkspur, sunflowers, mid-season pears, tomatoes, celery, celeriac,

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY

Twenty-fifth Annual Meeting and Exhibition Held in St. Louis January 26th and 27th

The twenty-fifth annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society was held at the Planters' Hotel, St. Louis, Mo., on Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 26 and 27. The meeting was well attended and opened with much enthusiasm. Mayor Kiel of St. Louis, cordially welcomed the society in a pleasing address and was ably responded to by C. S. Strout of Biddeford, Me. President Joseph H. Hill presented his address as follows:

ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT JOSEPH H. HILL.

Ladies and Gentlemen—Members of the American Carnation Society:

As your presiding officer I bid you welcome to this our 25th annual meeting. Just a quarter of a century ago in the good, old Quaker city of Philadelphia, a small body of earnest carnation enthusiasts saw the possibilities of the flower from which we derive our name, and issued a call which was sent broadcast over the land. All who were interested in carnation growing were invited to join them in organizing a permanent society. With your permission I will read their call of 1891:

"We, the undersigned, do hereby call for a meeting to be held at Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, on Wednesday, January 26, 1916, at 2 P. M. for the purpose of organizing a permanent society for the promotion of carnation growing in America. All those who are unable to attend kindly send their names for enrollment. The object of this society shall be to benefit Carnation Growers and to advance the popularity of the Divine Flower so that it shall stand second to none. Let us all step to the front and put our shoulders to the wheel."

Signed: C. W. Ward, Geo. Creighton, C. E. Allen, Wm. Swayne, R. T. Lombard, Fred Schneider, Chas. T. Starr, C. J. Pennock, Geo. Hancock, A. M. Herr, Ed. A. Scott, W. B. Lonsdale, J. M. G. Allen, W. L. Allen, M. B. H. E. Chitty, Isaac Larkin, Edwin Lonsdale, W. B. Lonsdale.

From every section of the country, East, West, North and South, came applications for membership and at the close of that memorable meeting in Horticultural Hall there were enrolled 49 staunch champions of our fair flower. And thus was conceived and ushered into existence The American Carnation Society.

It is fitting to mention at this time the name of Mr. Edwin Lonsdale, the first presiding officer of our body. During the past year he has answered the call and leaves a place in the ranks that is difficult to close. It is with regret and sadness that we are compelled to note the dropping off one by one of the Old Guard of pioneer florists to whom we all owe so much.

J. P. AMMANN

President-elect, American Carnation Society

Now, gentlemen, are we, after an elapse of 25 years, putting the same amount of push and of strenuous effort into the work of our Society as did the charter members? Are we carrying forward the work cut out for us with the same earnestness and unity of purpose that marked their early endeavors? To accomplish our work and to keep up interest in the Society it is necessary for us to attend its conventions and its meetings, even though to do so means a personal sacrifice. Wm. Scott once said at a carnation meeting: "These conventions are productive of the greatest good; we learn to know each other better, and one of the greatest pleasures of life is an exchange of ideas with our intelligent fellow man." It is a noticeable fact in our profession that the man who attends conventions, flower shows, and associations of florists, is the man who is successful and progressive in his business.

Your president would suggest to the Society that we adopt a badge of neat design to be worn at our conventions upon which can be written the name of the wearer. In this way we can more readily identify one another and get acquainted. This method was used at the Cleveland Flower Show last fall with success and satisfaction to all. Our Secretary has suggested that we print the name of individual address on each of our exhibits after the judges are through with their work. It is true that in rearranging the vases the cards are often lost or misplaced on some one's exhibit. We invite the Society's deliberations on this point.

The cardinal principles of this Society are to materially benefit carnation growers and to advance the popularity of the carnation. To do this it is absolutely essential that we co-operate, if so requested, with any well-managed flower show, and towards this end the following are given by your presiding officer as suggestions:

1st. That any flower show management desiring our support must give us a positive guarantee that the premium money in the carnation section will be paid to exhibitors.

2nd. That the exhibition management choose two from our list of duly elected judges to serve with the third, who may be selected by them without restriction. Poor judging by inexperienced men tends to make dissatisfied exhibitors and consequently reduces the number of entries at succeeding shows.

3rd. That they be allowed to use the Society's vases with the understanding that they reimburse the Society for all loss and breakage and pay all the expense for packing, carriage, etc. These simple rulings will safeguard the Carnation Society. Let us resolve to lend a helping hand to all flower shows no matter where held, and dismiss the idea of self-aggrandizement from our minds and let us exhibit with the definite idea of bringing the carnation out of the background, and of putting it on the same high plane as the rose and the popular chrysanthemum.

It is an admitted fact that in most parts of the country the carnation is marketed in a crude way as compared with the rose; the idea seems to prevail in many quarters that a carnation is a carnation regardless of variety, but it is not so with the up-to-date commission merchant; he knows the different varieties by name and can explain to the buyer why one variety has a higher market value than another or vice versa; so can the live retailer, and he in turn advises his customers to select the kinds that have texture and that last and give satisfaction.

It would seem that the grower is in a measure responsible for the fact that some of the largest retailers sell a comparatively small quantity of carnations because the grower insists on holding to the idea of quantity instead of quality. Stock that will not hold up in the retailer's display case will surely hurt the cause of the carnation generally.

To the grower who depends upon figures for facts the apparently shy blooming varieties sometimes exceed in money returns the prolific kinds with their serious shortcomings. Let the varieties be known by their names and their characteristics and their good qualities will eventually enhance their value and make regular buyers of intelligent customers.

In closing I would like to say a few words regarding the National Flower Show to be held in Philadelphia this spring. In addition to the generous cash premiums offered for carnations by the management, the Society will award in a good many classes silver Jubilee Medals to commemorate the 25th anniversary of our founding. Let every grower here make up his mind to put up an exhibit at Philadelphia so that the Carnation section of that grand show may be a credit to our favorite flower, and that our reputation of being the "Live-wire Society" of all the affiliated societies of the S. A. F. will not be open to question. We must with renewed vigor put our shoulders to that same wheel mentioned in the Call of '91 sent out to the American Carnation Growers by that honored band of enthusiastic men in Philadelphia who saw the hidden possibilities of our Divine Flower—the Carnation.

SECRETARY A. F. J. BAUR'S REPORT.

Secretary A. F. J. Baur then read his annual report as follows:

Mr. President and Members of the A. C. S.

Your Secretary begs leave to submit the following report.

While our membership has not shown as large an increase in the past year as in the previous twelve months there have been added to the roster 22 new members, and besides these 6 delinquents have been reinstated. So that our membership now stands at 325 annual members and twelve life members, a total of 337 and an increase of seven over last year. No life members have been added during the past year. Death has claimed one of our members, Wm. Murphy of Cincinnati, O., having passed away on Sept. 27th. Edwin Lonsdale, who was your first president, has also passed away at his home in California. We ordered a floral wreath sent to the funeral at Philadelphia.

The books of your secretary and treasurer have been audited, as has been customary. We are pleased to state that the society's finances are in a sound condition. All bills are being met as they fall due and all accounts are being collected without loss. The secretary's books, up to Jan. 17th when the audit was taken, show collections as follows: Membership dues, $531.00; advertising, $326.72; Miscellaneous, $98.18; making a total of $955.90; all of which has been turned over to the treasurer and his receipts taken therefor.

We are pleased to report that 24½ pages of advertising space in the premium schedule was taken by our members and friends. The schedule appeared a few days late owing to the lateness of the Board of Directors' meeting. The annual report was also printed and distributed at the usual time.

Eleven new varieties were offered for registration by American growers and some twenty-three European varieties were added to the list. The name "Peace" was offered by both American and European growers. It having been offered first on this side, the European registration was withdrawn.

The arrangements for this meeting were in the hands of our worthy Vice-President, Mr. Ammann, who has worked diligently for the success of this convention. The entries for this exhibition are rather lighter than usual, due no doubt to the scarcity of flowers and the high prices realized on high grade stock in the cut flower markets. The society owes a debt of gratitude to those growers who were willing to sacrifice their personal interests to help make this exhibition a success.

We suggest that in the future no display cards be permitted on vases entered in the competitive classes; that display cards on non-competitive mission.

The collection of the... tailors along this line is to be com-

Our regular members... members are also members of the S. A. F. and O. H. We therefore continue to be represented on their Executive Board.

The Board of Directors held the usual post-convention meeting at Buffalo last January. The midsummer meeting was postponed to November and was held in Cleveland, O., on November 12th.

Arrangements were made to hold the Silver Jubilee at Philadelphia, at the time of the National Flower Show. The $1,500.00 appropriated for carnation premiums, by the National Flower Show Committee, was spread over a schedule of premiums, which was submitted to the above named committee and approved by them. It was decided to have a special Silver Jubilee medal struck and to award one of these medals to each winner of one or more first premiums on carnations. Messrs. W. L. Rock and F. C. W. Brown have been invited to assist in judging the retail displays at the Philadelphia show and have both accepted.

The Board recommends that this society co-operate with local organizations in promoting local flower shows and suggests the following conditions, i.e. a flower show, which desires the co-operation of the American Carnation Society, agrees to submit its schedule of premiums and the selection of its judges, for the approval of the President and Secretary of the A. C. S. They shall further agree to satisfy the above named officers of the proper underwriting of the show.

The trade press has kindly given space for all matter sent in for publication. To them is due our thanks.

A. F. J. BAUR

Secretary, American Carnation Society.

William Vesey of Fort Wayne, Ind., gave the members of the society a pressing invitation to come to Indianapolis next year.

Nomination of Officers.

Nominations for officers were made as follows: J. F. Ammann of Edwardsville, Ill., president; William Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., vice-president; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary; F. E. Dorner, La Fayette, Ind., treasurer.

New England was as usual well represented and made a fine showing at the exhibition, S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., winning nine prizes; C. S. Strout, Biddeford, Me., eight; A. Roper, Tewkesbury, Mass., two, and Ernest Saunders, Lewiston, Me., four.

F. E. DORNER.

Treasurer, American Carnation Society.

MASSACHUSETTS FRUIT GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

The fruit growers of the Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association attended their annual convention in Horticultural Hall, Boston, last week, under the presidency of Fred C. Sears, of Amherst. A complete line of trade exhibits was shown in the main hall. President Wilson H. Conant of the Oxford Bears Fruit Growers' Association, Buckfield, Me., read a paper on "Factors Which Influence the Annual Bearing of Fruit Trees."

"It is not so much a matter of the particular method employed," he said, "as it is of the man behind the proposition, and of the way in which he lives up to his methods. By pruning, spraying thoroughly, checking growth at the right time, conserving moisture through the early part of the season, and seeing there is not excess at the close, we shall assist nature to promote growth and produce fruit."

F. J. McNeil, of Maloney Bros. & Wells, Danville, N. Y., gave a talk on "The Raising of Nursery Stock by the Grower." Incidentally he alluded to the disappointments sometimes met by growers through getting stock from nurserymen that did not come out true to the name given by them.

"No greater wrong could be done," he said, "than to let a man who has got the wrong stock go to the expense of purchasing, planting, spraying and pruning for a number of years, all the time looking forward to the day when he hopes to realize on his product." The speaker urged that the best remedy would be for the association to appoint a committee of two or three of its officers and members to make a thorough investigation of the nurserymen and agents and prepare a book containing the results of the investigation for the use of members.

Other speakers were George D. Aiken, vice-president of the Vermont New England Fruit Show, Putney, Vt.; Secretary Wilfrid Wheeler of the Massachusetts board of agriculture; Prof. P. J. Parrott, entomologist of the experiment station at Geneva, N. Y., and John J. Dillon, commissioner of the New York State department of food and markets.

MEDFORD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the monthly meeting of the Medford (Mass.) Horticultural Society on January 18, William Colton, City Forester of Newton, gave a very interesting lecture on the History of the Mosquitoes, and what has been done in Newton towards their extermination. He also gave an interesting account of the shade trees, under his care, and what is being done to keep them in good condition. Mr. Colton is evidently an enthusiast in his profession, and a close student of nature, readily answering all questions that were put to him. He made a strong plea for the better care of shade trees in cities and towns, proving their economic value by facts. Lectures of this kind are of great value, arousing local interest, in something that is too much left in the hands of the local politician, who gets the position, not for his knowledge of trees and their care, but as a campaign reward. ## CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

PARK INSTITUTE OF NEW ENGLAND.

An interesting meeting of this young organization was held at the Kaiserhof, New Haven, Conn., on Tuesday, January 26. Seventeen members were present. Following luncheon Mr. Gallagher of Olmsted Bros., Brookline, Mass., gave an instructive talk on Lines and Curves in Park Roads and Walks, illustrated with photographs and diagrams, showing the relation of roads and walks to the conformation of the ground and showing how ideals are effected by modern demands for seeing a long distance ahead on driveways.

Fred C. Green, superintendent of Parks of Providence, R. I., read some entertaining notes from records made jointly by himself and Theodore Wirth during the four-weeks' trip of the Park Superintendents to the Pacific Coast last summer.

After the meeting a visit was made on invitation of Superintendent Amrhyn to East Rock Park, where the nursery and zoo departments and the new service building and repair shops—said to be the finest in the United States—were inspected and Mr. Amrhyn's new residence admired.

FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB OF RHODE ISLAND.

The newly elected officers of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island were inducted into office in connection with the annual banquet of the society held Monday evening in the club headquarters at 96 Weybosset street, Providence. President Cornelius Hartstra opened the meeting, and then the responsibility for the club's success for the next 12 months was turned over to James Dillon who assumes the presidency. William Steele and William E. Chappell ushered themselves in as their own successors. The veteran James Hockey of Pawtucket is treasurer. The banquet followed and a programme of entertainment, including vocal and instrumental music formed a continuity of pleasure that extended well into the evening. During the evening Robert Johnston presented a handsome umbrella to retiring president Hartstra, a gift of the club in appreciation for his faithful devotion during the past year. The committee

LANCASTER COUNTY FLORISTS' CLUB.

The third Thursday of each month and the one o'clock trolley car seem synonymous terms. This time it was for Strasburg, the home of good carnations and the first stop made at Amos Rohrer's, where we found his stock all in good shape and he with a preference for White Wonder over Matchless. Mr. Rohrer grows quite a bit of mixed stock to supply the local needs of his borough. The next place was that of Charles Herr, the one place to see first-class plants and first-class flowers under any and all conditions. It was no exception right now—good clean stock and good quality blooms; not so many of them as under good sunshine, but enough to satisfy any grower. Mr. Herr is just the opposite from Mr. Rohrer and is enthusiastic over Matchless and will plant no other white for the next few years to come. Enchantress Supreme is so satisfactory that he does not want any other one in this color, and a very good looking bench of Alice is likely to be filled with Supreme instead for next season. Champion is being tried out and gives good results but is not to be compared to Beacon as done at this place. It was the intention to visit the establishment of J. Wade Galey, a short walk from Strasburg, but the weather was hot, the clouds dripping with moisture and the road muddy, so we trolleyed back to Lancaster. We had with us as visitors S. S. Pennock and Ernest Hoehl of Philadelphia, James Brown of Coatsville and J. L. Lockard from Mountville and formerly of York, Pa.

The meeting was called to order by President B. F. Barr at 7:30 P. M., and after the usual routine the election of officers was taken up, resulting as follows:

President—Harry A. Schroyer; vice-president—Elmer J. Weaver; secretary—Frank L. Kohr; treasurer—Harry K. Rohrer.

With the usual formalities and the use of considerable flowery speech, the retiring president turned over his office to the incoming president and Mr. Schroyer in accepting it asked the hearty co-operation of each member, making the claim that Lancaster County grew as good stock as any place in the United States and sometimes a lit-

the better than any other time. This was corroborated by Mr. Thos. Hoebl of the S. S. Pennock Co., who took off his hat to the carnations growers, and of course as a mere matter of side issue later on took their orders for stock. The incoming secretary made his bow to the public and hopes to be an earnest contributor to the Club (what a job!). L. Landis, the old-time secretary, had served the Club since its organization and helped to put it on the good solid basis it now is. The treasurer, we all know, is one of those faithful chaps who says little and does much, and guards the funds of the Club with a watchful eye and a strong hand.

On the exhibition table, through the courtesy of S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., we had displays of Alice Coombs, Nancy, Rosella, Miss Theo, Aviator, Belle Washburn, Nebraska, Old Gold and seedling No. 360 of Roper's, all of which will be heralded at the meeting of the American Carnation Society in St. Louis, and none of which deserved any unfavorable comments, but Alice Coombs seemed to lead in favor, with Rosella as a possible successor of Mrs. C. W. Ward, which seems to be deteriorating with many growers.

S. S. Pennock gave us a short but pertinent talk on the newer carnations and gave a boost for The National Flower Show in Philadelphia in March, and on the strength of these remarks it is likely that there will be worked up "Lancaster Day" for the show and a special train run from this point. Mr. Hoebl told us of his trip through the east where he saw some of the newer carnations growing and several members discussed carnations pro and con. It was voted to allow employees to come into the Club as associate members at $1.00 per annum.

The President appointed his committees as follows:

Program—H. K. Rohrer, Thos. Fries, W. B. Girvin, W. A. Hammond.

Show—A. M. Herr, M. J. Brinton, A. F. Strickler, Walter Denlinger.

Glad Hand—J. H. Linky, E. P. Hostetter, John Shreiner, J. Ralph Hess.

Membership—B. F. Barr, J. C. Siebold, J. L. Ranck.

Visiting—Elmer Weaver, Chas. Herr, Wm. Aherne, Ira Landis.

Sports—David Rose, Rudolph Nagle, C. S. Loeffler.

The next meeting, Feb. 17th, will be a Lord & Burnham lecture, illustrated with lantern slides on greenhouse construction, and every florist within reach of Lancaster on that date is invited to attend and meet the Glad Hand Committee. The visit will be to the establishment of W. B. Girvin at Leola, and the time from Lancaster 3 P. M., Thursday, Feb. 17th.

NEW JERSEY FLORICULTURAL SOCIETY.

A regular monthly meeting of this society was held in Orange on Jan. 17. Installation of officers took place as follows, W. A. Manda officiating. Henry Halbig, president; Max Schneider, vice-president; Edw. A. Manda, treasurer; Geo. W. Strange, secretary. Max Schneider received the following points on his exhibit: Carnations, 80; vase of cut flowers, 70; violets, 70; cyclamen, 85 points. W. A. Manda received a first class certificate for a seedling carnation resembling Delhi but brighter in color. GEO. W. STRANGE, Sec'y.

HOUSE OF THE NEW ROSE PINK CARNATION MISS THEO.

NEW HAVEN COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The New Haven County Horticultural Society begins the year 1916 with the following officers: President, Wm. J. Rathgeber, New Haven; vice-president, Alfred E. Doty, Morris Cove; secretary, W. C. McIntosh, New Haven; treasurer, David Kydd, West Haven.

The board of managers, who have special charge of the annual exhibition, are as follows: Alfred E. Doty, chairman, Morris Cove; Herbert F. Clark, West Haven; Robert Paton, New Haven; A. W. Davidson, Ansonia; T. H. Dewhurst, Milford; Nathan A. Miller, Branford; J. H. Murray, New Haven; Jno. Bocking, New Haven; Edson L. Bradley, New Haven; L. B. Linsley, West Haven; Charles C. Barnes, New Haven; C. Louis Ailing, West Haven.

The newly elected officers have mapped out a vigorous campaign for the coming year. They have taken a new hall in the heart of the city, one flight up, well heated and lighted. The old hall was three flights up. And the new hall is given to the society free of charge. "Progress" is the motto of the society and the members have decided to live up to this motto for the year 1916. Already they are taking in new members. This year will see the membership doubled.

At the last meeting the discussion was "Fertilizers." Those who took particular part in it were Jno. H. Murray, superintendent botanical gardens, Yale University; John H. Slocumb, florist; Robert Paton, gardener for Thos. G. Bennett, Winchester Repeating Arms Co.; and the following growers: Nathan A. Miller, Wm. J. Rathgeber, L. B. Linsley, Alfred E. Doty and Edson L. Bradley. A very interesting report was made on the damage caused by the late storm in this section. W. C. MCINTOSH, Sec.

NORTH SHORE (MASS.) HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

This society held its regular meeting Jan. 21. Vice-President Wetters had a collection of primulas on exhibition, the result of a cross between Primula stellata and P. chinensis plants, having the habit of the former and flowers of the latter type, colors being mauve, white, red and pink.

W. N. Craig gave an instructive lecture on perennials and bulbs and also gave a very interesting account of the aims and ambitions of the National Association of Gardeners.

At the previous meeting William Till read a paper by W. W. Ohlweiler, The Profession of Gardening, after which it was voted "that the offer of the N. A. G. to provide other papers for discussion be accepted."

The Executive Committee have organized with A. E. Parsons as chairman and report progress on the proposed new building. Next meeting February 4th. WM. TILL.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

This society held its first regular meeting in Hartford for the new year on Friday evening, January 14. J. F. Huss exhibited a fine collection of primroses including Kewensis and others. A first-class certificate was awarded. A paper was read by the secretary, entitled "Profession of Gardening, by W. W. Ohlweiler, Missouri." The president named the following executive committee for 1916: W. W. Hunt, Hartford, George B. Baker, New Britain, John F. Huss, Hartford, Alex. Cumming, Jr., Cromwell, and Fred Boss, Hartford. The publicity committee consists of Alfred Dixon, Wethersfield, Ed. A. Brassill, Hartford, and J. C. Willard, Wethersfield. ALFRED DIXON, Sec'y.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Harlan P. Kelsey, Salem, Mass.—Spring List of Hardy American Plants.

C. H. Brewer, Riverside Farm, Rahway, N. J.—1916 Annual List of Vegetable and Flower Seeds.

Forest Nursery and Seed Co., McMinnville, Tenn.—Wholesale Trade List of Forest and Shade Trees.

Martin Kohankle, Painesville, Ohio—Wholesale List for Spring, 1916. With portrait in color of Red Marvel Mallow.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York.—Wholesale Catalogue for Market Gardeners and Florists. Selected varieties of standard merit. A very useful list.

Roman J. Irwin, New York.—Florists' Wholesale Catalogue of Plants, Cuttings, Bulbs, Flower Seeds and Supplies, for 1916. An up-to-date list of up-to-date material for up-to-date trade. Useful as well as ornamental.

American Seed Tape Co., New York City.—Flower and vegetable seeds presented in the form of fertilized tape on which the seeds are spaced for accurately planting in rows. An interesting booklet very prettily illustrated.

L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., Odense, Denmark—Wholesale Catalogue and Price List of Danish seeds. Two fine color plates of Cinerarias and Pansies are inserted. Axel Knudsen, Minneapolis, Minn., is American representative.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—"Blue List" for 1916. This well-known edition of catalogs prepared for Market Gardeners, Florists' and Farmers. Choice and quoted wholesale prices accordingly. 150 pages of "the real thing."

Stearns & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.—Spring 1916 Catalogue of the offerings of Painesville Nurseries. Flowers and vegetables in colors are used to adorn the cover. Choice hardy and tender garden material of all classes is fully presented in the contents.

Walworth Manufacturing Co., Boston, Mass.—"The Walworth Log," not technically a catalogue but serving the same purpose, in calling attention to the quality of the goods manufactured by this long established concern. The present company was founded in 1842.

Wm. Elliott & Sons, New York—"Seeds Famous for Over Seventy Years." This is the Annual Spring Catalogue of this well-known house, and a beauty it is. The covers carry two lovely garden pictures in color and the make-up of the contents is all that could be desired.

Wm. Henry Maule, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.—The Maule Seed Book for 1916. Radishes in all the appetizing forms on front, and Nasturtiums and Pansies on back cover, in natural colors are the headlines in this catalogue. This house still adheres to the wood engravings in its illustrations.

E. G. Hill Company, Richmond, Ind.—1916 Catalogue. The Rose in 1916 in all its beautiful divisions of habit and character, Carnations that have won highest honors, Chrysanthemums in established varieties and classy novelties, Japs and Pompons,—these are all fully exploited in this expert selection of well-proven specialties for the florist.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, N. Y.—Everything for the Garden, 1916. This 206 page manual of hardy and tender garden material contains an immense amount of matter and useful information of interest to the amateur and professional gardener equally. The arrangement of illustrations is particularly effective. The covers are richly adorned with garden views in embossed panels and there are several full-page pictures in color.

Joseph Breck & Sons, Boston—High Grade Seeds for 1916. Everything for Farm, Garden and Lawn. This new catalogue of an old house is sent out in a very youthful and joyous dress, quite unique in its way, with festoons and garlands of roses in color and brilliant garden views. Large clear type and good arrangement of its 160 pages make a very readable book, even for the old 40 to 60-year friends of the house, whose portraits are shown on the "Roll of Honor" page.

MASSACHUSETTS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE NOTES.

A spring flower show at the college is under consideration by the department.

Professor A. H. Nehrling is to give a new course in perennials and annual bedding plants beginning the second week in February.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Horticultural Directory and Year Book for 1916, London, Eng. This is the 57th year of this indispensable hand book for the trade which, however, is in this edition minus the German and Austrian addresses listed heretofore. As to the American addresses given, a radical revision would be very desirable as the lists for this country are confused, inaccurate and of little value to anyone seeking information as to the representative concerns here.

Sweet Peas Up-to-Date. Revised Edition, 1916, with appendix, published by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia. The author of this valuable manual, George W. Kerr, is an eminent authority and has no superior in knowledge of the Sweet Pea, its improvement and its culture. The contents of this book are the result of observations made at Fordhook Farms Trial Grounds during the past eight seasons and previous experience in England. A complete description of all known varieties, including novelties for 1916 is given and all questions of soil preparation, planting and culture outdoors in summer and under glass in winter are fully and instructively covered. There is a useful chapter on the construction of trellises.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Great Falls, Mont.—Felden Flower Shop, capital stock, $10,000.

Nashville, Tenn.—Howell Nurseries, capital stock, $50,000. Incorporators, Bruce, S. R., C. B. and C. S. Howell and C. R. Trotter.

Sidney, O.—Alton Seed Co., capital stock, $15,000. Incorporators, W. L. Allen, B. T. Bull, L. E. Marrs, H. E. Bennett and E. L. Alton.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

A new form of carnation, Enchantress, has been developed by the Chicago Flower Growers' Association. It is a pure white, and is cut with stems 14 inches in length.

C. B. Knickman is making his semi-annual visit this week in the interest of Enchantress & Co. New York. He is on his way to the Pacific coast. Mr. Knickman says his firm is having an

Among the largest carnations seen at E. C. Amling's this week are some of light pink Enchantress. That this variety is holding its own with many growers is evident, for some stock is seen now which equals any sold here in the past.

Friends of Albert Cole, American Beauty salesman at E. C. Amling's, were startled to read, Friday, of the death by gas of some one bearing the same name and living on the same side of the city. The Albert Cole, florist, is very much alive.

One of the things that finds favor this year, more than last, is the pussy willow. The Chicago Flower Growers' Association seems to be headquarters for this stock which brings suggestions of spring, regardless of temperature, and the last shipment of 200 bunches was disposed of in 24 hours. They add a touch to window and house decorations that nothing else gives.

The Chicago Woman's Outdoor Art League is doing much practical work for this city. Since the move was made for free gardens two bungalows were built and maintained for the gardeners who directed the work and a shelter for the children while the parents worked, and now they have taken over the maintenance of the field house at the Foster Avenue Gardens. This same league has been determined in its fight against the bill board nuisance and with good results.

A sudden change in temperature and a steady downpour which resulted in a flood, turned the strenuous work of keeping up steam in the greenhouses to keeping out the water. With the thermometer many degrees below zero, a sudden leap upward, with the heaviest January downpour ever recorded by the Chicago weather bureau, greenhouse men had a severe test of their ability to think and act quickly in emergencies. Chicago, Davenport and Kansas City florists were hardest hit.

Presidents of the women's clubs of Chicago have received notice of the intention of the Department of the Interior to distribute portfolios of nine picture pamphlets, under the title of "Our National Parks." A few copies are to be sent to each club in the National Federation. The announcement closes with the following: "To become acquainted with our national parks is one of the greatest needs of the American people today. The Department of the Interior is providing a splendid opportunity.

Let us do our part in this patriotic work."

Growers of bulbs here are having their troubles on account of the overheated condition of the bulbs last fall. As the representatives of the Holland bulb houses arrive, seeking orders, the subject becomes at once a vital one. Talks with the Chicago growers bring to light the fact that the bulbs which crossed on the Ryndam are almost invariably worthless. One grower had 150,000 bulbs prove failures and in that order were 50,000 Golden Spurs and 50,000 Prosperity, the latter being an improvement over Lorraine and were to have been used for cut flowers. The high prices of bulbous stock is partly caused by the heavy losses in bulbs.

BOSTON.

Herbert Sloane, of the New England Florist Supply Co., was married Tuesday, Jan. 25, to Miss Frances Gris-haver, of Winthrop, and left immediately on a wedding tour of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Amongst the party that left Boston for the carnation show at St. Louis were S. J. Goddard and William Nicholson, of Framingham, Mass., A. Roper, of Tewksbury, C. Strout, of Biddeford, Me., and Ernest Saunders, Lewiston, Me.

Penn The Florist has given up the store on Bromfield street which he has long occupied and will make the new store recently opened on Tremont street his exclusive headquarters. This week the show window of the new place has been devoted to Scotch topics in honor of the anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns. A statue of the poet, figures dressed in tartan, quotations from Burns, ericas and other appropriate material make a notable scene and large crowds surround the window.

PHILADELPHIA.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burton of Chestnut Hill are enjoying the sea breezes at Atlantic City for a week.

Edwin J. Fancourt, of the Pennock-Meehan Co., went on the sick list on the 25th. His physician reports that it is a bad cold complicated with rheumatism.

George Anderson continues to improve a little although he is not able to walk much as yet. The physicians are at present relying on the osteopathic treatment in order to improve the circulation. Everything that can be done is being done and we hope to see his sturdy figure in the usual spheres of activity at an early date.

Beginning on January 1, William Saville, lately with Charles L. Stanley, Plainfield, New Jersey, took charge as superintendent of Henry F. Micheli Co.'s growing establishment at Andalusia, Pa. The firm has just completed three new houses 25 x 125 ft. for pot roses for spring trade, also a connecting house 35 x 143 ft., into which thirteen other houses open. A Kingriches system has been installed to heat all the houses from a central point. A new office building and garage will be built this spring. The firm is also buying a three-ton Packard truck to run from the growing establishment to the store in Philadelphia, and has leased an additional 10 acres of land, which now gives it 60 acres under cultivation.

NEW YORK.

Urban & Wells, formerly with D. C. Arnold & Co., has gone into the wholesale commission florists' business for himself at 106 West 28th St.

The carnation is doing its little turn at St. Louis this week, and New York will be as usual creditably represented there. Among the larger growers of the divine flower in this section Henry Weston, the new president of the New York Florists' Club, stands in the front rank, and his place at Hempstead is always interesting to visit. Carnations are only one of several special crops grown there, but the number of carnation plants alone must be well up to 40,000. There is one large house of Mrs. C. W. Ward which has been making good money this season. Particularly admirable is a pink seedling, Enchantress Supreme type, but decidedly ahead of that variety in form of flower and purity of tint. Two fine variegated seedlings will stand high in their class if their promise is fulfilled. One, named Mrs. J. H. Pepper, is sharply striped, in the way of Benora but with more color than that popular sort. The other is only sparsely striped but bears an enormous bloom. Spencer sweet peas fill a house 46 x 300. They are planted in eight rows lengthwise and the vines are now 10 ft. in height and bearing heavily—a sight well worth a visit. Among the interesting things are a bench of lupines and one of annual larkspurs, both of which are gradually attaining a place in the winter cut-flower market. Antirrhinums, callas, ferns, kentias, and promiscuous material needed to supply the local cemetery trade are among the other crops that find room and attention in this prosperous establishment.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Theodore R. Peterson of the Hogg Greenhouses, this city, who went to California last fall has not returned home and nothing has been heard from him. During his absence, Miss Marshall, his bookkeeper, has been in charge of the plant.

Several of the larger growers in this city and vicinity have begun an investigation into the advisability of installing oil burning machinery to replace the coal boilers and are going to determine whether or not it is practical for their purposes. If the plan is found to be a practical one, new houses will be equipped with oil burning boilers. The present high price of coal has convinced the larger growers that some step in this direction is imperative.

Obituary

Alfred Barnes.

Alfred Barnes, an old-time nurseryman of Cincinnati, died at his home near Mt. Healthy last week, in his seventy-sixth year. The burial was at Bevis, Ohio.

James M. Frye.

James M. Frye, nurseryman, of Winchester, Va., died last week after a long illness, aged eighty years, and is survived by his wife, a son and three daughters. He was a veteran of the Confederate Army.

John Shield.

John Shield, the oldest gardener in Glen Cove, N. Y., died on Tuesday, January 18, aged 85 years. Mr. Shield was for a long time at "Elsinor," the original show place of Glen Cove, now the Ladue estate. He was possessed of much talent for the laying out and planting of grounds.

Maxine L. Pelletier.

M. L. Pelletier, a South End florist, died on Wednesday, Jan. 19, after a short illness, at the age of 40 years, and leaves a wife, son and daughter. He was a member of the St. Louis Florist Club and many fraternal orders. The funeral took place from his late residence, 730 Geyer avenue, on Friday, Jan. 21.

Mrs. Louise Witterstaetter.

Mrs. Louise Witterstaetter, the mother of R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, died at the latter's home in her eighty-eighth year. The interment was at the mausoleum in the new St. Joseph's Cemetery on Monday of this week. Many beautiful floral tokens were silent tributes of sympathy for the deceased.

Mrs. Thomas A. Cox.

On Saturday, January 22, Mrs. Susan Cox, wife of Thomas A. Cox, passed away at her home in Olney street, Dorchester, Mass., aged 76 years. Mrs. Cox was for many years a well-liked participant in the social life of the older members of the florist trade in Boston. For some time past she has been in failing health.

Edward Welch.

Edward Welch, one of Hartford's best known florists, died at his home, 31 Annawan street, Hartford, Conn., on Wednesday, January 19, following an illness of four days of pneumonia. He had been for 33 years a florist in Hartford and was prominent in fraternal circles. Mr. Welch was born in Simsbury, April 8, 1862. At an early age he engaged in the business of flower growing and when 21 years old he came to Hartford and established the business of "Welch, the Florist." For many years he conducted a florist's shop and greenhouses in Windsor avenue, moving his flower shop to Asylum street, next the Hotel Garde, about twelve years ago. Two years ago he sold the store to his son, Andrew W. Welch, who moved to the Majestic Theatre building. Mr. Welch continued to have charge of the greenhouses.

He is survived by his wife and four sons, Edward J. Welch, Andrew W. Welch, G. Francis Welch and Donald Welch, all of Hartford.

Gentle and affable in manner, he always had a kind word or a joke for everyone. His broad charity was one of his well-known characteristics.

Henry J. Huesman.

Henry J. Huesman, the oldest and one of the best known florists in Reading, Pa., passed away, on January 19, aged 71 years. His death was due to asthma and heart disease. He had been suffering for the last four months and was confined to his home since last Monday evening. Mr. Huesman had hosts of friends in Reading and was well known among his fellow craftsmen throughout this section of the country. He was a native of Brooklyn, N. Y. When a young man he came to Reading and for a number of years worked for the late Michael Houser, who conducted a greenhouse establishment, which site is now occupied by the Centre Avenue Greenhouses. For a short period he managed the greenhouse of James Ritchie, a camellia specialist, of Philadelphia. Thirty-seven years ago he entered into business for himself here at Schuylkill avenue and Greenwich street and remained at that location until the time of his demise. Before he assumed control of the business it was conducted for some time by the late John C. Helper, former superintendent of Charles Evans cemetery, for whom he acted as manager.

Deceased was a member of the Reading Florists' Association.

Gunnnett L. Holbrook.

Gunnnett L. Holbrook, whose death is announced in Amsterdam, N. Y., at the age of 93 years, was one of the early pioneers in the flower business in Boston.

In 1872-1873-1874 Mr. Holbrook conducted the Wales Conservatories on Columbia street, Dorchester, in company with Mr. Tompkins, under the firm name of Holbrook & Tompkins. They had a retail store corner of Winter and Washington streets, where they sold their products. It was at that time the only store of any pretension in Boston.

In 1875 Mr. Holbrook severed his connections with Mr. Tompkins, who was then proprietor and manager of the Boston Theatre. In 1875 his lease for the Wales Conservatories expired and later he built a greenhouse 20 x 100 on Warren street, in the rear of his residence close to where the Bowditch establishment is at present located. For years Mr. Holbrook did a thriving retail business at this location until he moved to Amsterdam, N. Y., where he became interested in business and where he lived and became a much respected citizen to the date of his death.

Mr. Holbrook took up the florist business simply from the love he cherished for flowers. He had remarkable taste in designing and decorative work and was one of the few men who could make a wreath without the aid of a wire design. His work always showed in it the touch and finish of the real artist. I remember when I went to work for him in 1874. The many acts of kindness displayed by him, always willing to instruct and guide his men, never severe or exacting but ever kind and considerate. One of the old school who are fast passing away.

Flower Market Reports

PHILADELPHIA Trade conditions here continue excellent. The demand is good with supplies on the short side, so that prices hold steady at the high figures ruling for some time back. American Beauty roses are scarce and running off crop very fast—which is to be expected at this time of year. Russells are very good although not so plentiful as some other roses. Killarneys and others of that class are more plentiful than they were as most growers of these were off crop in December and early January but are now coming in with increased supplies. Carnations are very good quality indeed—just beginning to show their meridian splendor and are in excellent demand. Among the leaders are Pink Delight, Enchantress, Ward, Matchless and White Wonder. What few Gloriosa there are are also very fine. Orchids are good and plentiful and the selection of varieties to choose from is larger than usual. Lily of the valley is scarce and is going to be scarcer. Lilies are also scarce. Sweet peas were never finer. Splendid quality and selling well. And notwithstanding the liberal supplies the prices hold their own in good shape. The fine weather and the longer days are having their effect of course and supplies generally are bound to increase during the next few days so that by the time this appears in print there will be a much easier feeling in the market.

The clear sunshiny PITTSBURGH days have developed more flowers. As the irony of fate will have it, society work has suddenly practically ceased. Roses are still scarce and there are yet no sweet peas to any extent. Carnations are coming in more plentifully, and are of very good quality. Tulips are up to the top notch. Already both the wholesale and retail trades people are anticipating an unusual St. Valentine season.

A strong spurt in PROVIDENCE the trade which began last week still prevails and the growers and retailers are busy. There has been a more plentiful supply of flowers and prices remain firm.

Market conditions ST. LOUIS were bad the past week as stock of all kinds was scarce. The demand was heavy all week and the trade suffered somewhat. All of our five commission houses reported a shortage in roses with demand very large. Carnations are becoming more easy and as predicted the glut has come. Bulb stock is showing fine at present. Sweet peas and violets are fine and becoming more plentiful. Plenty of greens.

Flowers of all WASHINGTON kinds, with the exception of white lilac and orchids, were very scarce last week and high prices prevailed. There is a marked shortage of colored carnations which has sent the price up. There are none of the poorer grades of roses to be had. American Beauty roses are scarce and in very good demand.

for New England position. One who understands propagating, has good record and is not afraid of work, can get good position. "F. A.," care HORTICULTURE.

WANTED—Experienced foreman for general landscape work, with knowledge of hardy trees, shrubbery and herbaceous material, road building, grading, etc. Address "R.," care of HORTICULTURE.

man in large wholesale cut flower establishment. "S.," care of HORTICULTURE.

WANTED—Bright, intelligent, faithful salesman in Metropolitan flower store.
"N.," care of HORTICULTURE.

SITUATIONS WANTED

SITUATION WANTED—By single man experienced under glass and outdoors, both on private and commercial places. For last two years has been in charge of pot plant department of a large concern, where fancy stock is grown. Wishes position as first assistant on large private or commercial place in order to become acquainted with new methods. Never uses liquor or tobacco in any form and a hustler. Best of references; age 26. R., care of HORTI-CULTURE.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

THERE'S a good chance on the Main Line suburban Philadelphia for a live wire raising and selling flowers. Near station.
Two acres, worth $5000 an acre. Five glass houses (one of them cost $2000 two years ago), stable, outhouses, horses, wagons and other appurtenances. Also the good-will of a business running successfully for 20 years. In all, counting the site, value 10—the horses, wagons and things, 5—the goodwill, 5. I should say $20,000 the real value.
I believe you could buy it for much less right now. Reason: the owner is in bad health and would like to see some live young one take a hold of it even if owner has to give him a bargain. I know something about the business myself—and this is no fake! I think it is a splendid chance for a young man with a little backing. It isn't a case of all cash, so long as the backing is good the rest can be arranged. Ad-

During Recess

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The annual dinner of the society, at which one of the winter events of the New Year season is celebrated, was held at the clubhouse of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, January 25. The dinner was very pleasantly conducted by James H. Ricketts, Esq., with a program of the most interesting and varied nature. Eighty members and guests sat at the tables, a small number being absent owing to the gripe epidemic, the president of the society, James Macdonald, being among the victims. Vice-President Joseph Adler introduced C. H. Totty of Madison, N. J., as toastmaster, and that well experienced gentleman filled the position with marked brilliancy. The toasts and speakers were as follows: "Our Country," Supervisor Cox; "Our Society," J. F. Johnston, who voiced a joyous welcome to the visitors; "Our City," Frank Bowne; "Sister Societies," James Duthie, for the Oyster Bay Society, Thomas Lee for the Tarrytown Society and William Duckham for the Morris County, N. J., Society; "The Horticultural Press," W. J. Stewart; "The Seed Trade," George Burnett, followed by Messrs W. A. Sperling, Don and W. J. Collins; "Allied Trades," Andrew Wilson. Other speakers were J. Austin Shaw, who recited some original verses to the ladies, who, unfortunately were not present to hear them; Lawyer McCarthy, who spoke for the North Side of Long Island, and proposed a toast to President Wilson; J. B. Deamud, who recited poetry, and Dr. Connolly. A letter was read from M. C. Ebel regretting his inability to attend. Mr. Gillen entertained with stories and recitations from time to time throughout the evening and W. J. Collins sang a Scotch song in fine style. An interesting incident was the presentation of a pair of fine gold sleeve buttons to the retiring president, Ernest Westlake.

Peter Henderson & Co. Employees' Dinner.

On Wednesday evening, January 19, the annual dinner tendered to the heads of departments and those of the travelers' staff of Peter Henderson & Co., who were at home, took place at Mouquin's on Fulton street, New York City. There were twenty-six at the table and everyone enjoyed themselves. All felt that the outlook for the coming year was very good, from a business standpoint.

Bowling at Roslindale, Mass.

A very hotly contested bowling match was played on the Regal Bowling Alleys, Roslindale, Mass., January 21, between the team of R. & J. Farquhar's nursery employees, captained by John VanLeeuwen and a contingent of private gardeners from Brookline, captained by Donald McKenzie, the result being in favor of the Farquhar team by a score of 1295 to 1202. Both teams were well represented by enthusiastic rooters. A return match has been arranged when

SUBSTANTIAL ADDITIONS TO THE DREER NURSERY.

Dreer's new warehouse and table at their Riverton Nursery are now completed except a few minor details. The warehouse is 140 feet long and 40 feet in width, located in a central position and easy of access from the greenhouses. The construction is of hollow tile with slag roof and the structure is fire proof, floors being also of hollow tile, steel and concrete. The outer walls are finished in rough concrete stucco upon the tile, giving the building a neat and substantial appearance.

The interior arrangements have been carefully planned for the purposes for which the building will be used. One end of the first floor, covering a space of 30 x 40 feet, has been made absolutely fire-proof and will be used for storing the Dreer fleet of automobile trucks and cars. The cellar and first floor are now being used for the storage of such bulbs as gladioli, dahlias, tuberous-rooted begonias, amaryllis, cannas, etc., while the upper floors will be used for the storage of packing materials.

In designing this new building special attention was given to light and ventilation, as will be noticed by the numerous large windows shown in the picture herewith. The building is heated by steam furnished from the central boiler plants of the greenhouses, so that there is no fire in the building and the hollow tile has been found very efficient in maintaining an even temperature, this being shown during the recent spell of cold weather, when with the outside temperature at 10 degrees, the two runs of 1½-inch pipe (280 feet) held the temperature uniformly at 43 degrees on the first floor, while the basement, without any artificial heat, did not drop below 42 degrees. There is now being installed in the building an improved system of hydraulic elevator and also electric lights. The new stable which replaces an old frame barn, is also of hollow tile and stucco, and presents a very pleasing appearance in its location at that portion of the nursery in which the rock garden and lily ponds are located. It is fitted up with every convenience and thoroughly up to the times.

the Brookline boys promise to reverse the score.

CARNATION COTTAGE MAID.

This new candidate for public approval, which is the subject of our cover illustration this week, is a flesh pink sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward. The Cottage Gardens Company has been exhibiting Cottage Maid for the past two years and this year have been shipping a large number of blooms to the New York market. The variety is therefore well known and enterprising growers are placing advance orders for stock. Its fine keeping qualities and other good traits were well demonstrated at the big Cleveland Flower Show last fall. The trade is all ready for Cottage Maid.

Personal

Roger W. Peterson of the firm of J. A. Peterson & Sons, was married to Miss Isabelle C. Reemelin, at Westwood, Ohio, on Wednesday, January 12.

Nelis Christensen, the market gardener at Wilson's, Hartford, Conn., was seriously burned and two rooms in his house were badly damaged by an explosion of gasoline, on January 20.

Albert K. Gardner, state horticulturist, of Lewiston, Me., has resigned to take up farm extension work under Dean Leon S. Merrill, of the State College of Agriculture, and will make his headquarters at Farmington.

William Duckham and Mrs. Duckham expect to start next Monday on a three-weeks' vacation in Florida. Mr. Duckham has been engaged during the past year in laying out a new park system for Madison, N. J., in addition to his regular duties and has well earned a rest.

Alexander Lurie, in charge of the division of floriculture of the department of horticulture, University of Maine, has just resigned his position, and on March 10 will go to St. Louis, where he will be horticulturist in the Missouri Botanical Garden. Mr. Lurie, who is graduate of Cornell, came to the University of Maine in 1914.

PAN-PACIFIC PRESS ASSOCIATION, LTD.

San Francisco, Calif.

October 16, 1915.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Horticulture Jury, of which the writer was a member, awarded you a Gold Medal for your insecticides, and when you take into consideration the fact that that Jury, outside of the writer, was composed of some of the famous experts of the world, you will realize the importance of this award. Verification of this may be obtained from Mr. George A. Dennison, Chief of Horticulture, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The writer has been requested to furnish a list of the articles which the Jury endorsed by their action in awarding prizes because of merit. This request comes from representatives of foreign countries and states.

Respectfully yours,

Signed: J. A. BUCHANAN, Gen. Mgr.

WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The regular monthly meeting of this society took place in their new home in the Isaac Hubbard Hall, Greenwich, Ct., on Jan. 14. The principal features were the installation of officers and the competition for the prize offered by Mr. Grierson for the most meritorious exhibit. The honors were carried off by Thos. Ryan with a fine vase of Pink Sensation carnation. The other exhibits received the thanks of the society; the most important were display of carnations, violets and cauliflower from Wm. Graham; Narcissus Grand Soliel d'Or from P. W. Popp; Euphorbia Jacquinæflora from Jas. Stuart. Mr. Stuart had on a previous occasion received the highest honors for Euphorbia. It was voted to hold the usual summer and fall exhibitions as in the past. We take this opportunity of thanking our many kind friends who financially and otherwise have enabled us to make such a fine record at our exhibitions the past year, and we hope to merit a continuation of the same hearty support in the future.

Resolutions of sympathy were adopted and ordered sent to the bereaved family of the late Geo. Lander, Jr., of Greenwich, Ct., in whose death the society suffers the loss of an esteemed honorary member and a good friend. A communication was received from Mr. Wm. Kleinheinz urging the members to be represented at the big show to be held in Philadelphia in March. Also one from the National Association of Gardeners offering copies of the essays read at the Boston convention. The offer was unanimously accepted.

During recess Jas. Stuart, assisted by P. W. Popp, entertained the members with an account of their recent trip to Boston, voicing also the appreciation of others of our members who were present, of the hospitality of the gardeners and horticultural interests of Boston, and the A. N. Pierson Co., of Cromwell, Ct., for the splendid entertainment and horticultural treat.

For the next meeting A. J. Rickards, of New York, offers 1st and 2nd prizes for the best flowering plants. There will be a Sociable Session in connection with the meeting. A committee has been appointed to arrange for the annual entertainment to be held in February. Next meeting Feb. 11. Officers for ensuing year are: President, W. J. Sealey; vice-president, Owen A. Hunwick; secretary, J. B. McArdle; treasurer, Robt. Williamson; cor. sec'y, P. W. Popp; executive committee, Wm. Whitton, Thos. Ryan, John T. Burns, Oscar Addor and Anton Peterson.

How West Got Out of the Greenhouse Building Business

ONE day last August I was sitting in the lobby of a Cleveland Hotel, when who should come along but Chauncey West of Irondequoit. Of course, I was jolly glad to see him; everybody is. You just can't help being glad to see a man who wears a rare Sunny Jim smile like West; and always hands out such a hearty hand shake.

West has done considerable greenhouse building of one kind and another (lately it's been all one kind). So I asked him, off-hand like, how he ever came to put his money in Lord & Burnham houses. "Well," he replied, "we started to build your houses because we wanted to get out of the greenhouse building business and get into the growing business."

"We figured out that we didn't have time to stop our growing every few years, and rebuild our houses."

Then, up he jumped and gave the glad hand to a couple of Ashtabula growers.

But I sat still and thought over what he had said. As near as I could figure it out, J. H. West & Son will be out of the building business anywhere from a quarter to a half century, may be longer.

No one knows yet how long our iron frame houses will last.

If you want to permanently get out of building; and into growing; we are ready to talk with you.

Just say when and where and we will be there.

New Carnation

COTTAGE MAID

A Sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward

Cottage Maid cleans up at St. Louis besides winning first in its class. This Queen of novelties won the Sweepstakes for the best vase in the show.

The public here in New York is crazy over the color of this beautiful new carnation! It is a clear shell pink, deep in the center and lighter toward the edge. It is a color your trade demands.

Its plant is identical with its well known and widely grown parent "Mrs. C. W. Ward" and it has the same wonderful keeping and shipping qualities as this variety. In fact at the Cleveland Show this fall, "Cottage Maid" besides the first prize in its class, won the prize for the vase of carnations in the best condition at the end of the Show. And these flowers were shipped from New York.

We have grown this variety for six years and tried it out thoroughly. It is not our policy to let buyers of our novelties do the experimenting.

We believe in "Cottage Maid" and we are going to back up our belief by planting 50,000 of it next year for blooms besides the stock plants.

It will be sent out next winter. Send in your order early.

And keep your eye on "Crystal White," our sensational pure white, which is larger and more productive than "Matchless." It will probably be disseminated in 1917-18.

ROCHESTER WHITE GLADIOLUS

THE ONLY PURE WHITE OF COMMERCIAL VALUE

The color of this variety is the color. The purest white ever offered. Its general growth, vigor and erectness give it first place among the standard varieties.

There is no question about this variety being not only the best white, but the only white Gladiolus of commercial value today.

The fact that the petals are pure white clear into the throat and that the anthers and pollen are white, place it in a class superior to any other so called white variety. In usefulness this variety will answer perfectly in the place of any solid white flower, and can be used for every purpose heretofore exclusively supplied by Lilies.

The plant is strong and vigorous and grows very erect. The spikes are well supported and large, averaging three feet in height. The green foliage is broad and clean. Productive in bulb and flower.

Rochester White has won all the premiums offered for the best white, wherever exhibited, for the past four successive years.

First Size Bulbs - Dozen, $1.00; 100, $7.00; 1000, $65.00

The New Rose, Mrs. Bayard Thayer

that we are offering this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front since we introduced Mrs. Charles Russell of which the new claimant is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink, inside of petals a shade lighter. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society medal over a strong class of competitors at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the Editor of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Prope.

Carnations

Disbudding must now be looked after more frequently. To destroy aphids give light fumigation at least once a week. It is now time to begin liquid feeding especially with those benched earliest. The light mulch that was put on a month or six weeks ago will have disappeared by this time and the benches, being well filled with working roots should have a moderate mulch of either cow or sheep manure or bone meal. Mix one part of manure to two parts of soil and spread on about half an inch thick. When using sheep manure use it lighter. It is better to run the manure through a screen. The bone can be mixed in with the mulch. Look over the sides and ends of beds carefully on bright mornings and water wherever the soil is dry. As the season advances watering will require closer attention.

Foliage Plants

Now that we are coming into the longer days and with increased sunshine, foliage plants should have a good syringing on all clear days, with a strong force of water, getting well under the leaves which will keep the plants from becoming infested by insects to any great extent. Should they become badly infested a thorough sponging should be given with some good insecticide such as Aphine or Lemon Oil. They now will stand more water at the roots as the under heat from the pipes and the stronger sun will soon dry them out. See that they have ventilation when outside conditions will permit; this is important. Some plants will want some shade now, but not too much; only enough to keep them from burning.

Cattleyas

From now on all orchids will be showing more active growth. Those newly potted will want frequent syringing and plenty of moisture in their surrounding. Give strict care as to watering, but never overdo it. Ventilate on all possible occasions and keep the plants clean by frequent sponging. When potting cattleyas always be sure that they have an abundance of drainage of crocks and charcoal, are potted firmly, and staked if necessary until they become well established. I think there is nothing better for potting material than fern fiber but there are quite a few who still cling to live sphagnum moss. Both have good points.

Note: Stock:—Euphorbia fulgens; Dracaenas; Gardenias; Saxifraga; Smilax; Salvia

Lily of the Valley

Lily of the valley pips can be planted either in the bench or in flats. When grown in flats or boxes they can be removed to a cooler house. The cleanest and most used material is sand about 6 inches in depth and the pips can be planted in it quite close together. They can be forced in any house that runs from 55 to 60 degrees where a bench can be cased in with boards over the heating pipes so as to maintain a bottom heat of 85 degrees. Always be very careful to have the water the same temperature at least as the sand, but from 5 to 8 degrees warmer would be still better. Any negligence or oversight all through their culture will very soon show. It is necessary to keep the top temperature from 55 to 60 for the successful forcing of lily of the valley. They will need to be heavily shaded to draw the flower spikes well up. Afterwards admit a little light by degrees to harden them up and give substance to the leaf-growth. It will take from four to six weeks until they are ready for cutting. Plant a succession of batches.

Tuberous Begonias

When these begonias are given half a chance they are truly superb both in flower and foliage. Seed should be sown now for the coming season. Sow in pans using rough soil on the bottom and filling up with finely sifted loam two parts, leaf mold one part, and sharp sand one part. The soil should be then thoroughly moistened and pressed firmly and even. They will want some bottom heat—at least 70 degrees—and 75 would be better. In about 8 or 10 weeks the seedlings will be ready to prick out into flats using the same compost as that in which the seeds were sown. In May they should be ready for 2½-inch pots using a mixture composed of soil, old manure, and leaf mold with sand one-third each. At this stage they will be better in a temperature of 60 degrees with a raise to 75 with sunshine.

Watering

During this month and next all plants will stand more water at the roots. A few hours neglect may spell ruin to pot-bound plants. When a plant is watered see that it receives enough to run through the bottom of the pot and also when planted out on a bench.

Important decision on tulip tariff

Announcement is made in our news columns this week of the fact that the Court of Customs Appeals in Washington rendered a decision on the 27th of January that tulips should have been assessed at fifty cents a thousand instead of one dollar a thousand, since the revision of the tariff, thereby obliging the Government to make a refund to all importers of fifty cents a thousand on tulips for the last several years since the tariff has been in effect. Of course, the Government has thirty days in which to ask for a re-hearing before the rebate will be effective. We doubt very much, however, that this will be done.

A bad habit

Press despatches from St. Louis at the time of the session of the American Carnation Society in that city told the world that over 150,000 carnation blooms were staged in the exhibition there. At the standard of prices prevailing in all sections at that time for carnations this would imply a business of not far from $100,000 in cash value of carnations shipped. Proprietors' expectations to monopolize representation, as we have often remarked in many ways and a great injury to the flower business. The public are concerned to know at whatever season arrived and through the distorted and exaggerated stage which is so frequently dealt out to justify this making the carnation collection of an industry which perhaps more than any other, would attain its greatest and best results in respect to the dissemination of accurate knowledge and authentic information regarding it among all the people, old and young.

The great function of flower shows and "Tell the horticultural displays of any description is truth" or should be education. The more instruction given the public regarding horticulture and horticultural products the deeper and stronger will be the appreciation for and desire to possess these productions—the offspring of the glorious alliance of nature and man working together to beautify the world. Much can be accomplished to this end through the medium of the flower shows, but let all mysticism, boasting and exaggeration be rigidly excluded from publicity work and press reports. The best means for assuring this is a thoroughly efficient information bureau on the spot and, for an exhibition of any great importance, this is really one of the most essential departments, and one which has thus far received but little attention from flower show managers. The lack of even rudimentary knowledge concerning plants and flowers on the part of the public is deplorable and on the part of the florist is a reproach for which there is no excuse. Misinformation, either ignorantly or intentionally given out, makes the situation worse and worse and this abuse should be vigorously assailed by all those who have anything to do with horticultural publicity work.

An acute emergency

The Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment station at Amherst has recently issued several valuable bulletins on what is general looked upon as the most momentous subject connected with horticultural industry at the present time—the fertilizer question. Bulletin No. 4 of the "Control Series" gives a detailed report of the fertilizer inspection in the State of Massachusetts for 1915. It states minutely the trade values of fertilizer ingredients, with pound cost of each element of plant food furnished and a general summary shows the quality of ingredients in each manufacturer's product. The embargo placed upon potash by the German government and the almost prohibitive price on nitrate of soda due to the embargoes connected therewith for the manufacture of explosives has created an unprecedented situation and many products formerly in obscurity have now been brought into prominence. Serious attention is called in this bulletin to the unwisdom of purchasing low grade mixed fertilizers compounded from materials containing a very small amount of the needed plant food in comparison to their cost. We strongly advise our readers to procure copies of this 100 page publication in which they will find a vast amount of information of great value to them in the present emergency. Every measure for lessening the need for fertilizers, such as the selection of soil, the conservation and utilization of all home resources and persistent tillage, should be followed up in order to promote and maintain fertility.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Ventilation

With the weather unseasonably warm and dark, with frequent showers and plenty of fog, the man who looks after the ventilators will be up against a new problem every day. The main thing is to try to keep the houses cool during the dark days, never allowing them to go over 68 in the daytime with 66 as the regular mark. If possible a little steam should be turned in with a little air on the houses. With the thermometer up to 65 outside it will be rather difficult to keep the houses down with steam turned on, so they will have to go without unless the circulation is perfect in the steam pipes so that they can be kept warm with only about half a pound of steam in them. On clear days houses that have two rows of ventilators, one on each side of the ridge, will be much better off than the old style having only one row of vents on the south side. With a good weather vane to indicate the direction of the wind the vents can be opened on the north when the wind is south, and should the day be very warm then open the vents on the south side an inch for every six inches of air on the north side. With the older houses it will be necessary to open the ventilators even though the wind does blow in, for if the vents were allowed to remain low enough to keep the wind from blowing in the temperature inside would run very high, thus making the plants very soft and liable to mildew. The temperature at night should not be much more than 64, and less if the buds are getting small and the foliage on the plants soft and weak. Avoid heavy feeding unless the plants are growing very freely and then use liquid only once a week until the weather changes for the better.

Disbudding

With the free growing varieties, such as Shawyer, Ophelia, etc., it will be necessary to go over the plants twice a week to see that they are properly disbudded and that there are no side shoots left to take the sap from the main buds. Once in a while on an extra strong bottom break the crown bud will be deformed so that it is best to take that off and allow the two side shoots to come on. These will turn out good as a rule and will cut extra and fancy. While disbudding it is well to see that all blind wood is attended to, for if the top leaf is taken off down to a good eye while these blind shoots are still young they will in most cases start in and grow right on into a good bud. When cutting buds like this be sure that they are cut away down to the first two good eyes and not above the joint where the top leaf was taken off the blind shoot. The shorter the distance of hard wood between the buds and roots the better. While disbudding it will be well to straighten out any shoots that may have been knocked crooked while syringing, also bend away all buds that may be touching the glass. This work will not take very long to do, as it is very simple and should be done in little time.

Watering Young Stock

With the cloudy days great care will have to be taken not to get the young stock too wet. This applies especially to cuttings just potted, for these take up very little water and if they are kept too wet the roots are likely to decay. Where a whole house is devoted to young stock it will be best to use steam and open the vents, thus airing the house freely. Steam with the ventilators closed would make the air too warm and moist and this would be apt to make the young cuttings damp off. If it is necessary to water the young plants on a cloudy day do it as early in the morning as possible, so that they will have all the chance to dry off before night. Then make sure that plenty of lime is blown into the air over the walks at night, thus taking out a great deal of moisture. Sometimes when the dark weather continues for two weeks or more and the young stock remains wet all the time it will be well to water the plants even though they are wet. In doing this make sure to water heavy, as the idea is to drive out all water in the pots that may have become stale, and give the young plants a chance to get some fresh water. If possible a little lime water can be applied, which will sweeten up the soil a good deal.

Scraping Around Young Plants

A good way to dry out a batch of young plants is to go over them and scrape off all the green scum that may have formed over the top of the soil. In doing this see that only the very surface is taken, and that the soil is left rough afterward. Also set all the smaller plants to the south of the bench and all the larger and stronger plants to the rear or north side if the houses run east and west. Make sure that all the pots are set firmly when they are moved over, so that there will be no air under them. If they are set loose they will dry out very unevenly and make a good deal of trouble for the man who has to water them. Also see that they are all set level so that they will hold the proper amount of water. If they are not level most of the water applied will run off and then there will be some plants in the lot that will always be dry, and soon they will become stunted and it will be a hard job to start them going again.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Connecticut Horticultural Society, held at Hartford on Monday evening, January 28. It being a carnation night, several very fine plants were exhibited of exceptionally fine specimens. John F. Huss, and Alfred Cebelius, staged all the leading varieties of carnations also displayed Buddleia asiatica of wonderful beauty. George W. Fraser exhibited a vase of Red Wing carnation for W. A. Dawson. Theodore Staudt, of Rockville, exhibited carnation sports and Sir Watkin daffodils. The following awards were made: John F. Huss, cultural certificate; Alfred Cebelius, first-class certificate on carnations, and a cultural certificate on Buddleia asiatica; Theodore Staudt, first-class certificate on sport carnations and a certificate of merit on narcissus; W. A. Dawson, first-class certificate and noted in the minutes as worthy of special mention.

After the announcement of the awards, President Hollister read an article from Horticulture (vol. 23, No. 2, Jan. 8, 1916) headed, "Jackson T. Dawson, His Work and His Workshop" which describes briefly the splendid work of this grand old gentleman, and Mr. Huss gave a reminiscent talk of his acquaintance with Mr. Dawson. The chairman also read a clipping relating the erection of a marble pillar to mark the spot where the original McIntosh Red Apple stood in Canada, this monument being erected by Canadian horticulturists. He also appointed a committee to meet with a committee from the Pomological Society to the end that a similar monument be erected on the spot where the original Greening apple tree stood near Sterling. The Greening is more commonly known than the McIntosh and perhaps more widely used. The meeting was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed. The next meeting will be held February 11.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

An exhibition of this society will be held on Wednesday, February 16, 1916, at the American Museum of Natural History, Central Park West and 77th street, New York City. Premiums are offered for cut orchid blooms, roses, sweet peas, schizanthus, snapdragons, freesias and narcissus. Special prizes may also be awarded for exhibits not provided for in the schedule. All are invited to bring any unusual plant or flower, or plants or flowers showing unusual excellence in cultivation.

Schedules are now ready for distribution, and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York City.

A meeting of the society will be held at 4 P. M., at which a lecture will be delivered by Arthur Herrington on Iris Gardens, illustrated by colored slides.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY

Preliminary Schedule, Class G, for Exhibition to be held at Bar Harbor, Me., July, 1916.

Bar Harbor Horticultural Society Special Prizes.

- G. 1.—For the best collection of 10 vases, 20 sprays of any 10 distinct varieties, 1st, $8, 2d, $6, 3d, $4.
G. 2.—Any 10 distinct varieties, rose or cut, 1st, $8, 2d, $6, 3d, $4.
G. 3.—Any 10 distinct varieties, purple or blue, 1st, $8, 2d, $6, 3d, $4.
G. 4.—Any 10 distinct varieties, salmon, 1st, $8, 2d, $6, 3d, $4.
G. 5.—Display of Sweet Peas, arranged in a vase, well on a table space of 5 ft. by 10 ft. 1st, $10, 2d, $8, 3d, $6, 4th, $4. Only the most artistic and best of the exhibit are to be considered in judging. Exhibitors may not enter than the American Sweet Pea Society award in this class 1st prize, silver cup; 2d, $15; 3d, $10.

Spencer Varieties.

- G. 6.—For 21 vases, 25 sprays. Any white variety, crimson or scarlet, rose or carmine, light pink, deep pink, blue, mauve, cream or yellow, salmon or orange, lavender, maroon or purple, plectee-edged, striped or flaked red or rose, striped or flaked blue or purple, flaked or other than plectee-edged, any other color distinct from the foregoing $5, $3, and $2, respectively, 1st, 2d, and 3d in each class.

Note: Other special prizes will be awarded in this section, arrangement for which will be published later.

For Amateurs Only.

- G. 22 to G. 26, 5 classes. Vases 20 sprays.—Any white variety, pink, lavender, salmon or orange, crimson or scarlet, cream or cream-yellow, plectee-edged, any other color distinct from the foregoing, $3 and $2, 1st and 2nd in each class.
G. 30.—For the best collection of 6 vases, 6 varieties, 20 sprays to a vase. 1st prize, silver cup; 2nd prize, arranged later.

For Private Gardeners Only.

- G. 31.—Spencer Sweet Peas, 6 distinct varieties, 1 vase of 20 sprays to each variety: 1st, $12, 2nd, $8.
Limited to Children under 18 Years of Age.
G. 32.—For the best collection of Sweet Peas from a school garden: 1st prize, $4; 2nd, $3; 3rd, $2; 4th, $1.

For Private Gardeners and Amateurs.

- G. 33.—Decoration for table of eight covers; glasses, cutlery and linen to be used supplied by the exhibitor: 1st prize, silver cup and $25; 2nd, $15; 3rd, $10. Exhibitors will be allowed to use Sweet Pea foliage, asparagus, amaranth, gypsophila, or all; ribbons also allowed.
G. 34.—Display of 12 vases, 25 sprays to a vase, 12 distinct varieties; no foliage allowed: 1st prize, $15; 2nd, $10.
G. 35.—Mt. Desert Nurseries offer a gold watch for best collection of Sweet Peas from New York, Long Island, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. John H. Stafford will pay entrance and expenses to Bar Harbor and return to the winner in the above class.

G. 36.—New York Florists' Club prize, $25 cash for best exhibit made at the exhibition.

G. 37.—T. J. Gray & Co., $25 in cash, particularly to be published later.

Other prizes are solicited from the trade and others, notice of which will be published in the trade press from time to time.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY

Final returns from the 25th annual meeting of the American Carnation Society at St. Louis, on which we made a partial report last week, show a surprising strength in the quantity and quality of the eastern representation as compared with the western and local. The eastern growers predominated in the winning of prizes and where the prizes did go to western growers the varieties with which they won were largely of eastern origin. When it is considered that the successful eastern exhibitors had to carry their flowers a distance from 1000 to 1300 miles their achievements are all the more notable.

The decorated dinner tables by St. Louis florists were a most commendable feature and the public, being admitted at specified hours, thronged the hall where these displays were made. The exhibitors were Windler, Mullanphy, Ayres, Vandervoort, Grimm & Gorley, Boerm and Young. Among the interesting exhibits outside of the regular schedule were the following: Rose Mme. P. Euler (Prima Donna) from Guttman & Raynor, New York; Roses Baby Doll and Tipperary from E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Begonias from J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati; Primula malacoides rosea from F. H. Lemon, Richmond, Ind. and specimen rare plants and orchids from W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.

THE AWARDS.

Following is the complete list of awards:

AUTO RIDE AND BANQUET.

On the afternoon of the second day the local committee took the visitors for an automobile trip through the city and wound up at Shaw's Garden when W. W. Ohlwieler, the general manager, took them in hand for a trip through the big show houses which was of great interest to the party. In the evening at 7.30 P. M. the banquet took place and it was a splendid affair in every respect. Great credit is due to the committee for the way in which it was carried out. A fine menu was served during which an orchestra played selections. Several lady singers took part, also several popular selections were played in which all present sang the songs. The tables were all tastefully decorated with carnations by David Scott Geddis. J. F. Ammann, the toastmaster, called on the following members for talks: George Asmus of Chicago, chairman of the National Flower Show; Vice President-elect W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, president of the society, and Wm. Nicholson of Framingham, Mass. With these and the singing of "With Long Sigh" ended the two days of one of the most successful meetings and exhibitions the society has yet held.

SEDUM SPECTABILE.

Of the approximately 125 species of sedums, Sedum spectabile is the best of the tall growing class. Attaining a height of from 1½ to 2 feet, its remarkable hardiness and especially the size and resistance of its carmine pink flower-heads are no doubt the principal reasons for its wide distribution and general popularity in American gardens. Though of little or no value as a cut flower, its merits, particularly for outdoor mass effects, cannot be disputed. In open sunny situations and light loamy garden soil, plantations of Sedum spectabile never fail to make a good showing. It is the perennial for the amateur who expects his plants to endure prolonged drought without injury, violent rainstorms without breaking and survive frigid winters with little or no protection. A few large clumps placed here and there on the mixed border perceptibly enliven the floral late summer aspect. Some extra strong specimens planted in large pots or in tubs while in flower may be occasionally employed for porch decoration. I remember using plants for filling a number of vases to be placed at the corners of a balustrade serving as the enclosure of a flat roof of a mansion. In this case it was impossible to water the vases regularly, nevertheless my sedums made a satisfactory showing. The best opportunities for placing Sedum spectabile to full advantage, however, are offered in the rock-garden. Here it is simply indispensable. Its stiff habit of growth goes wonderfully well with the rigid lines of rocks and boulders. During August and early September, while in flower plantations introduce a conspicuously strong and needed note of color. The accompanying illustration, a reproduction of a photo taken in one of the rockgardens which your correspondent built, gives a clear idea of the effect which may be gained anywhere under similar conditions and arrangements.

What has been said of Sedum spectabile can be fully adopted as conclusive for its new form "Brilliant," distinguished by the bright amaranth red color of its flat topped large cymes. "Brilliant" is a very desirable acquisition sure to become as popular as the original spectabile.

MOULD IN STORED BOXWOODS.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

We are experiencing difficulty with mould in the storage of our boxwoods this winter. The stock in question is planted in tubs and the disease attacks the roots working towards the outside of the tree, can you instruct us as to the correct method of handling this class of nursery stock in winter storage? Any information on this matter would be very much appreciated.

Yours very truly,

H.

The trouble you have experienced in storing boxwoods is a very common one. The remedy is to have abundant ventilation at both top and bottom of the storage sheds. Air must be given at the apex of the building as well as on the sides, and if the place is large, also at each end. Stagnant atmosphere is the cause of the mould conditions. —Ed.

Notes.

Joseph E. Roelker of August Roelker & Sons, New York, is out on his annual western trip.

Lynn, Mass.—Jas. J. H. Gregory &

Son, seedsmen, of Marblehead, have opened a branch store in this city.

According to present advices, ocean freight charges on lily bulbs will be advanced from $4.00 per 1000 to $7.00 for next year.

Cold storage giganteum lilies are now very scarce. Parties are still advertising them, however, who we have been informed haven't a bulb in their possession.

Birmingham, Ala.—The McVay Seed & Floral Co. has been purchased by Mrs. S. S. Mobley, R. V. and L. E. Harris, who will continue the business under the same name.

Bert E. Brotherton, formerly a partner and general manager of the Peninsular Seed Company, of Port Huron, Mich., severed on the 1st of January his connection with that establishment and will hereafter look after the contracting, inspection, harvesting, and preparation of crops of peas, beans, corn, and some other crops for the D. Landreth Seed Company, of Bristol, Penn. Mr. Brotherton has had many years' experience contracting for crops, principally in Michigan, Wisconsin, and adjoining States and in the valleys of the Rocky Mountains. Mr. Brotherton will continue his past residence at Port Huron, Mich.

A decision of interest to importers of bulbs has been handed down by the United States Court of Customs appeals in favor of Maltus & Ware, of New York. The importation in question was one of tulip bulbs assessed by the collector of customs with duty at the rate of $1 per 1000 under the second clause of paragraph 210 which reads, "tulips, narcissus, begonia, and Clematis bulbs, $1 per 1000." The Board of General Appraisers affirmed this assessment, overruling the contentions of the importers that duty should have been assessed under the so-called catch-all provisions of the same paragraph which provides that "all other bulbs, roots, root stocks, corms, and tubers, which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per 1000."

The Court of Customs Appeals now reverses this decision and has decided in favor of Maltus & Ware and found that the tulip bulbs in question were properly dutiable at the rate of 50 cents per 1000.

Of Interest to Retail Florists

The Boston Retail Florists' Association held its annual convention of officers at the Hotel Bellevue, Tuesday evening, February 1. Henry R. Comley was chosen president; Samuel Wax, vice-president; B. H. Green, secretary, and Julius Zimm, treasurer.

We extend sympathy to Frank J. Valentine of 105 East 110th street, New York, who is in sorrow over the death of his little son about 7 months old, 25 days. Mr. Valentine has sent us a photograph of the little fellow laid out among beautiful floral surroundings.

Hornell, N. Y.—Charles L. B. Ordway, who for over ten years has conducted a florist shop in this city, has closed out his business and will make his future home in Olean, where he will conduct a similar store. Mr. Ordway is secretary of the Democratic city committee.

Albany, N. Y.—In the destruction by fire of a hall in which Harry Eyres had storage quarters for palms and other material used in decorative work the plants were all ruined and Mr. Eyres' loss is quite heavy. He is about to move from his old location on North Pearl to State street.

NEW YORK RETAIL FLORISTS' SMOKER.

The Retail Florists' Association and the Greek-American Florists' Association held a joint smoker at the Hotel Breslin on Monday night, January 31. About fifty were present, the Greek contingent being largely in evidence. The affair was a charming success. The tables were beautifully decorated and the musical entertainment, furnished by the Hotel Breslin, was a conspicuous feature.

M. A. Bowe, president of the American Association, occupied the chair. Speeches were made by George E. M. Stumpp, Anton Schultheis, Max Schling, Charles Brown, W. H. Long and several others, including the officers of the Greek-American Association. Harmony and fraternity were dominant on all sides and much confidence was expressed as to the beneficial results to be realized by joint action between the two organizations, not only to the retail florists but to the wholesale dealers as well. Much is expected from the cooperation of the wholesalers on matters pertaining to the general welfare.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Mrs. George C. Saffer is reported to be gradually recovering from quite a severe illness which has kept her confined to her home the several weeks.

Louis H. Hohman has returned to his old job at Gude Bros.' store. He left the employ of this concern to engage in the insurance business but finds flower store work far more attractive.

The New Center Flower Shop was opened last week in the hotel of that name by J. Richards, who was formerly in the employ of Fred H. Kramer and who for a number of years has been connected with other florists in the Center Market. All of the fixtures are in white and present a remarkably neat appearance.

A series of free public lectures was begun last week at the School of Horticulture of the Maryland Agricultural College. Two lectures were given each evening. The concluding lectures on February 4 are "Hardy Perennials Around the House," by Prof. Bert W. Anspen, and "Rose Growing," by Prof. F. L. Mulford, of the Department of Agriculture.

Permits have just been issued by the British Foreign Office at London in favor of the Henry F. Michell Company, Phila., Pa., and Frank Netschert Co., New York. Under these permits, which guarantee the unmolested shipment of the merchandise from Rotterdam, the first-named will secure nearly 5000 pounds of vegetable seeds valued at $590, while the latter will receive a shipment of florists' supplies of German origin valued at 1724 marks.

The National Botanic Gardens will not be moved from the present site if Senator John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, who has charge of matters pertaining to the Gardens, has his way, for he has stated that in his belief the garden and greenhouses should be kept where they are, accessible to the thousands of school children of the city and to men and women who could not visit them if located as proposed in Rock Creek or Potomac parks. Mr. Williams stated that he "has no objection, if Congress sees fit, to the establishment of a garden in either of these parks, where every known kind of plant life can be grown and exhibited, but, in my opinion, the present Botanic Garden should be continued where it is." The friends of the late William R. Smith would also regret to see the Gardena removed from the spot selected by him.

Despite the hue and cry late last year that there would be a marked shortage of foreign flowering plants for the Easter trade, the local establishments are already showing stock that bids fair to outclass previous years. At Gude's azalea plants now offered elicit much favorable comment. It is somewhat early for the best tulips, yet those now to be had are well worthy of mention. Jonquils are also good, and cyclamen and Begonia Glory of Cincinnati are sales bringers. White lilac cut and potted is in good demand. In commenting upon present conditions, William F. Gude states that his firm is trying to get away from the use of American Beauty roses in dinner decorations as much as possible at this time. Spring flowers are plentiful and they are using these in many instances where roses formerly were demanded. Primroses, cyclamen and lilacs are being largely used this year for dinner decorations.

CHICAGO.

Marks Bros. will add three new houses to their range this spring.

O. J. Friedman has moved two doors farther south to 516 S. Michigan Ave.

Frank Oechslin is on a business trip in the East, accompanied by Mrs. Oechslin.

John Poehlmann is so far recovered from his recent operation that he was removed on Sunday from the hospital to his home.

The Automobile Show of 1916, just closed, has left in its wake the usual number of purchasers and would be's, of whom a fair proportion are florists.

August and Adolph Poehlmann were both confined to their beds with grippe over the week end. Used to overcoming obstacles, these gentlemen will soon be about again.

Harry Heini and Frank Schramm of Toledo, Ohio, were here looking over various greenhouses with an idea of getting pointers for building. They were at Poehlmann Bros. Saturday.

It is not often that any flower is too abundant in the Chicago market, but double violets have been in that class for several days. Buyers have not made the price on any other flower since early December.

The Chicago representation at the American Carnation Society meeting at St. Louis, Mo., are returning with good accounts of the meeting and exhibition. The after discussions between the men who are to turn the flowers into money are most interesting and would perhaps tend to show the commercial value of the flower in a truer light.

The growth of the city will soon cause another landmark to become a memory. There are plenty of florists who can remember when the Geo. Wittbold greenhouses at Buckingham place were away out, and a trip there was something to be planned ahead for. Now they are surrounded by apartments and other residential property, and the ground must be given up to make room for more places to house the people and provide for their needs. The Geo. Wittbold Co., established many years ago by the late Geo. Wittbold, will build farther out and erect an apartment with store on the old site.

BOSTON.

A. Soper on Wednesday at the Hanover Greenhouses, Hanover, Mass., has purchased a greenhouse at Marlboro, Mass., and will grow carnations.

The growers who attended the St. Louis show arrived back in Boston Saturday morning. The Eastern delegation have reason to be proud of their record which was as follows: There were nine entries by S. J. Goddard, eight by C. S. Strout, three by A. Roper, four by E. Saunders, six by W. Lenk—a total of thirty. Twenty-six prizes were taken as follows: S. Goddard nine, C. Strout eight, A. Roper two, E. Saunders four, W. Lenk three.

Dr. George T. Moore, the eminent biological chemist and director of the Missouri Botanical Gardens, on January 29, lecturing at Horticultural Hall, pictured graphically how Boston might use some portion of the Fenway for beautiful botanical gardens where thousands of people might enjoy the beauties of tropical and temperate nature at all times of the year. Dr. Moore flashed on the screen many pictures of the famous Shaw gardens of St. Louis, which cover 125 acres. These gardens are visited by thousands of St. Louis school children at various seasons of the year.

The Horticultural Club of Boston held a special session at the Parker House, on Saturday evening, January 29th, to extend a welcome to Dr. George T. Moore of St. Louis. Other invited guests were Prof. L. C. Elson of the N. E. Conservatory of Music and Henry M. Hutchings of Boston. The table was resplendent with acacias and sweet peas from Thomas Roland and there were superb specimens of Mrs. Moorfield Storey rose from Waban Rose Conservatories and giant mignonette from M. A. Patten.

At the regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening, February 2, Fred A. Wilson gave a talk on the technical and scientific aspects of greenhouse construction, illustrated by working models. The guests of the evening were Hon. Samuel W. McCall, Governor of Massachusetts; W. P. Rich, secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society; Prof. Louis C. Elson; Arthur Elson, and Wm. H. Sayward, secretary of the Master Builders' Association. The banquet table was artistically decorated by M. A. Patten and Wm. Sim.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—William A. Clark and T. P. Langhans of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company, spent last Monday at their plant at Bakerstown. Oliver H. Langhans and William T. Ussinger, representatives of the same firm, are on a western business trip. Mr. Ussinger had just returned to business after ten days' detention at home from the gripe.

NEW YORK.

Herman Weiss, who has been associated with the wholesale cut flower trade in west 28th street for some years, has started in the commission business for himself at 106 W. 28th street, a conveniently located and attractive store. Mr. Weiss has the requisite experience and industry to make it go and that is the only way it can be done nowadays in the ever increasing hive of flower trade hustlers with which that street is lined from Broadway almost to 7th avenue.

The second of a series of Flower Shows conducted by the Country Life Permanent Exposition, Grand Central Terminal, to arouse greater interest on the part of city folks and suburbanites in country life, will open on Thursday, February 10, at 2 P. M., and will continue throughout the week, including Lincoln's Birthday. Roses and carnations will be the feature. Table decorations, of which there were fourteen entries in competition in the Chrysanthemum Show held in November, will be one of the chief attractions. The tables, china, glass and silverware will be furnished and set by the Grand Central Terminal Restaurant and the Biltmore Hotel, so that with the accessories all alike, the floral decoration of the tables should be of more than passing interest. On Thursday, the opening day, a lecture will be delivered at 3 P. M. by Arthur Smith, of Reading, Pa., on "Outdoor Roses, Their Habits and Culture." Admission to the show and to the lecture is free, and the public is cordially invited.

AN OLD CAMPAIGNER.

We take pleasure in presenting this latest and best portrait of E. G. Hill, the man who put Richmond, Ind., on the map and has done a big share in placing Indiana and suburbs in the position occupied by that state horticulturally at home and abroad. The old campaigner has participated in many a drive and many a scrimmage since he first strode into the limelight as a founder and the first secretary of the Society of American Florists and later its president. Everybody who is anybody in horticulture knows "Gurney" Hill in his captivating personality and business sagacity, and his achievements in the raising and introducing of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums of high merit are common knowledge in the trade. Although retired from a portion of his active participation in the business of his company, he is "still in the ring" and we hope will continue so to be for many years to come. No exhibition or society meeting of national scope is complete without E. G. Hill.

At the banquet table and in the ante-rooms and corridors his wit and sage comment on pertinent topics, his optimism and his inexhaustible fund of anecdotes are never without a full retinue of eager listeners. "Long may he wave."

St. Louis.—E. W. Guy and the St. Clair Floral Co., both of Belleville, suffered a heavy loss at their greenhouse plant by a big wind storm early on Thursday morning, January 27th. The Halstead residence also had great damage. The other florists escaped with but little glass broken. The estimated loss runs into several thousand dollars.

Flower Market Reports

for no apparent good reason. There is some splendid lilac, single and double white, now and a moderate amount of Acacia pubescens is being offered.

As predicted in PHILADELPHIA our last week's report, stock became generally much more plentiful and prices eased up very considerably. By Friday there was an accumulation and the first instance of anything being sacrificed for a long time back. About the only scarce item was American Beauty. This is taking its mid-winter sleep and quotations are higher. Other roses are in larger supply and easier. Carnations are very fine and the supply is so heavy that very moderate prices prevail. The warm weather has "played hob" with the sweet peas. First they came in with a rush and then got sick and refused to produce the goods. This flower is not at its best in very hot weather either indoors or out. Orchids continue fairly plentiful, but the indications are that they will be scarcer very soon. The lily of the valley market is rather spasmodic. Sometimes they are quite scarce, then in a day or two plentiful again. This is rather unusual for this steady-going old standby. Emperor and Empress have added class to the daffodil host the past week and caused a regrading of prices on the smaller flowered types. Camellias and orange blossoms add a touch of the old-fashioned and festive to the general effect. There is also a hint of Acacia pubescens here and there which while it lasts is one of the delectables and eagerly sought for.

As an effusive young PITTSBURGH wholesale salesman put it, "the debutantes are still on the job," thus adding to the floral demands. Stock is still more plentiful, although not up to the mark. Carnations are about even with the demand, and violets are coming in fairly well from the East, the recent weather practically precluding the home product. Lily of the valley and white roses are very scarce, although roses of all colors are producing about as needed. Prices continue about the same as for some weeks past.

The wholesale market ST. LOUIS is in better condition than it has been any time this year. Carnations are coming in fine now. Roses are also coming much better than at any time this year with Killarneys in the largest bulk. Tulips are now coming in fine quality, all other staple flowers are in normal supply and demand.

SITUATIONS WANTED

GARDENER FARMER SUPERINTENDENT. I have been in the business for 10 years. I can take care of all kinds of fruit, flowers, farm crops, and live stock: first class credentials, Scotch, married, 22 years old. Address "A. L. MARSHALL," care HORTICULTURE, New York.

SITUATION WANTED As head gardener in large estate. I have been in the business for 10 years. I can take care of all kinds of fruit, flowers, farm crops, and live stock: first class credentials, Scotch, married, 22 years old. Address "A. L. MARSHALL," care HORTICULTURE, New York.

WANTED Position as decorator and salesman in first-class retail flower store. Boston and New York references. Address G., care HORTICULTURE.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

THERE'S a good home on the Main Line suburban Philadelphia for a live wire raising and selling flowers. Near station. Two acres, worth $3000 an acre. Five glass houses (one of them cost $2000 two years ago), stable, outhouses, horses, wagons and other appurtenances. Also the good-will of a business running successfully for 20 years. In all, counting the site, value 10—the horses, wagons and things, 5—the good-will, 5. I should say $20,000 the real value. I believe you could buy it for much less right now. Reason: the owner is in bad health and would like to see some live young one take a hold of it even if owner has to give him a bargain. I know something about the business myself—and this is no fake. I think it is a splendid chance for a young man with a little backing. It isn't a case of all cash, so long as the backing is good the rest can be arranged. Address G. C. W., care Pennock Meehan Co., 1614 Ludlow street.

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—Fresh from factory, new, 14 x 12, 16 x 15, 16 x 24, double thick. A and B quantities. Market dropped. Now is the time to buy and save money. PARSHELSKY BROS., INC., 215-217 Havemeyer St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FOR SALE—An old established and good paying florist business in Montreal. Small capital required. This is a snap for a quick buyer. Address "M. A. B." care of HORTICULTURE.

FOR SALE—Modern Greenhouse Plant, dress E. A. CHURCHILL, 41 Royal St.,

MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—A good greenhouse with 3 rows of D. T. Glass. Must be in No. 1 condition, within 300 miles. Give full description. C. A. PERLEY, Winthrop, Me.

Obituary

Mrs. Julia A. Shea.

Mrs. Julia A. widow of Daniel C. Shea, died on January 30 in Jamaica Plain, Mass., aged 95 years. Mrs. Shea was the mother of James B. Shea, Deputy Park Commissioner of Boston who is well known and well beloved among the entire gardening fraternity all of whom will unite with HORTICULTURE in extending to their friend sincere condolence and sympathy with him in the great bereavement which has come to him, his brother Jerry, nurseryman, and their family.

Thomas Clark

The death of Thomas Clark occurred suddenly at his home in Pacific Grove, California on Tuesday, January 25th. Mr. Clark was a native of Scotland, coming to this country in his youth. For many years he managed the country estate of John W. Brooks in Milton, Massachusetts. About twenty years ago he left Milton and went to Montana where he became interested in ranching for a few years. Then he moved to California where he was very successful in the mining business. Several years ago Mr. Clark's health became so poor that it was necessary for him to retire from active business. During these past few years he has lived in Pacific Grove, devoting his time to his flowers. Mr. Clark leaves a wife, two sons and a daughter besides a host of friends not only in California but among the gardeners and florists around Boston, with whom he was so long and intimately associated.

William H. Ferguson.

William H. Ferguson, an old and well-known retail florist of Philadelphia, passed away on January 28, aged 69 years. He hailed originally from the Kensington district but was established as a retailer at 12th and Spring Garden streets for over thirty years. He did not take an active part in club or society affairs and was not well known in the trade outside of those with whom he did business. His son has been associated with him in the business for the past ten years and continues the same.

Mrs. Alexander Waldbart.

Alexander Waldbart, of St. Louis, has suffered bereavement in the death of his wife, Mrs. Emile S. Waldbart, who passed away on January 26th. The funeral took place from her late residence, 5859 Etzel avenue, on Saturday, January 29th, and many in the trade attended the services at St. Rose's church, then to Calvary cemetery. She is survived by her husband and five children.

PERSONAL.

J. Otto Thilow and Henry F. Michell of Philadelphia are taking a brief vacation in southern waters.

David Weir, former gardener on the Brandegee estate, Boston, started via the Clyde Line on February 4, for a two months' tour of the Florida winter resorts.

N. Zweifel, G. Pohl, W. R. Schroeder and H. Hunkel of the Milwaukee delegation to the Carnation Society meeting visited florists and points of interest in Cincinnati on their way home from St. Louis.

The Pacific Garden, heretofore published by the Pasadena Horticultural Society, with P. D. Barnhart as editor, has been purchased by The Kruckeberg, Los Angeles, Cal., Press, who will publish it hereafter under the title of Suburban California, carrying the former name as a sub-title. HORTICULTURE's best wishes to the new management.

PAN-PACIFIC PRESS ASSOCIATION, LTD.

San Francisco, Calif.

October 16, 1915.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Horticulture Jury, of which the writer was a member, awarded you a Gold Medal for your Insecticides, and when you take into consideration the fact that that Jury, outside of the writer, was composed of some of the famous experts of the world, you will realize the importance of this award. Verification of this may be obtained from Mr. George A. Dennison, Chief of Horticulture, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The writer has been requested to furnish a list of the articles which the Jury endorsed by their action in awarding prizes because of merit. This request comes from representatives of foreign countries and states.

Respectfully yours,

Signed: J. A. BUCHANAN, Gen. Mgr.

Flower Market Reports

WASHINGTON

Some of the wholesalers and growers last week found themselves in a somewhat embarrassing position when unable to fill all orders which came to them by reason of a heavy shortage in a number of lines. There are hardly enough American Beauty roses to go around. Lilies are almost unobtainable and there are very few gardenias to be had. The sudden change in the temperature which followed brought out the carnations in large quantities and the price fell to as low as $2 per hundred. Violets are so plentiful that the supply is measured by the ability of the gatherers to pick and bunch them. Double violets are practically off the market here. Roses, tulips, jonquils and other flowers were complained of as being soft. There was little call for lily of the valley and the market was soon glutted, in marked contrast with the previous heavy shortage. Freesia is in much heavier supply and the price has gone down. Mignonette is good and in fair demand. Sweet peas are as fine as have ever been seen here and are selling well.

MASSACHUSETTS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE NOTES.

The Sinclair range at Smith's Ferry was visited by the short course students last Saturday.

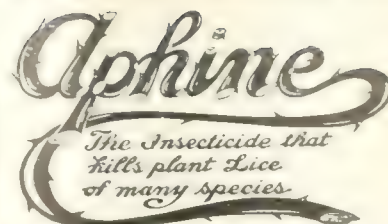

Miss Davis, in charge of the landscape and floriculture classes at Wellesley College, was a visitor at the college greenhouses this week.

The enrollment of the short course students in floriculture is eighteen. Most of the short course men have come here from practical work in retail stores and greenhouses.

The students in Conservatory Plants will be required to know and be able to identify some 250 species and genera of decorative plants as a part of the final examination in the course.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Two bulletins of timely interest and value have just been sent out by the Office of Information at the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. One is on the Control of Amping Off in young coniferous seedlings. This is one of the worst enemies of the nurseryman and it is encouraging to learn through this bulletin that it is possible to successfully tract.Newark, N. J.—Claiming that he lost his entire greenhouse crop of strawberries, rhubarb and asparagus through the removal, at the request of the town of Irvington, of his greenhouses at Union and Chancellor avenues, Frank W. Van Emburgh filed a suit for $2,000 damages against the municipality. According to the complaint, Van Emburgh leased the greenhouse property of his father, May 28, 1913. It is alleged that, although the town paid damages to the lessor, it failed to consider the alleged loss sustained by the lessee. Van Emburgh says he received word April 7, 1915, to remove the greenhouses to make way for improvements being made by the

ON GUARD!!

No Greenhouse Man can afford to take the risk of leaving his place unprotected against the possibilities of overheating or frost, when absolute safety against either of these contingencies can be assured by installing the faithful, sleepless, watchman, whose portrait appears herewith. All you have to do is to set the hands—one at minimum and the other at maximum temperature limit and the Thermostat will give instant warning if temperature goes above or below.

IT'S a long jump from Seattle, Washington, to Elizabeth, N. J.

To pass by a number of nearer-by concerns, and pay additional freight to secure Hitchings houses, is certainly a strong endorsement for our construction and our method of doing business.

There seems to be an ever increasing tendency among park boards to recognize the necessity of greenhouses, not alone as a place to grow bedding plants, and harbor the semi-hardy tub things, but also from the side of enjoyment they give the deserving public.

Considered especially in this latter phase, they have logically become one of the central features of Park Landscape plans.

From this photograph you see how imposing the greenhouses are in this instance; and can well imagine the beautiful effect produced by their being the cumulating point of one of the main drives. We should be heartily glad to send you full details of the greenhouses, if you feel they would be of interest to you in connection with houses you may wish to build.

"Long Lost" Lettuce

Pkt. 25c., oz. 50c., 2 oz. 90c., 1 lb. $1.50, 1/2 lb. $2.75, lb. $5.00, postpaid. 1-3 off to the trade

The most wonderful Lettuce produced in the whole world during the past one hundred years. Excels all others on the market as a shipping, as a keeper, in quality, in sweetness, in flavor, in color, in profits, in reliability, in hardiness. Produces the best early heads, true heads, sure heads, solid heads, compact heads, tender heads, globular heads, firm heads, uniform heads

LONG LOST LETTUCE
The Jewel Recovered

On June 8, 1915, Mr. Carl Hoffacker, of Union Co., N. J., writes: "I have been growing your 'Long Lost' Lettuce for some time and it is the best I have ever seen. It is very hardy, and the heads are very uniform."

On June 10, 1915, Mr. A. E. Stoltz, of Tama Co., Iowa, writes: "In a trial of your 'Long Lost' Lettuce, I found it to be the most uniform."

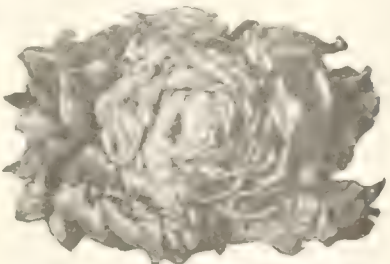

On June 12, 1915, Mr. John J. Suckles, of Monmouth Co., N. J., writes: "Your 'Long Lost' Lettuce is the best I have ever seen. It is very hardy, and the heads are very uniform. I have refused to take one dollar a head for it."

On June 17, 1915, Mr. Henry Tubbs, of New Haven Co., Conn., writes: "Your 'Long Lost' Lettuce is all O. K. I have never seen anything like it."

On June 18, 1915, Messrs. Gibney Bros., of Marion Co., Mo., writes: "We have been growing your 'Long Lost' Lettuce plants. They grew fine and made a fine lot of heads, very large and uniform. We will try it again this fall."

On June 19, 1915, Mr. Wm. B. Hill, of Clermont Co., Ohio, writes: "I gave your 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed an outdoor test and must say it is fine. Can't say enough for it. It is the best I have ever seen. Finest flavored, better than I ever ate. All who have eaten it pronounced it fine. Will give it a better trial next year. Will get it out earlier."

On June 20, 1915, Mr. George E. Bradley, of Arundel Co., Maine, writes: "I have been growing your 'Long Lost' Lettuce for some time and it is the best I have ever had any Lettuce do, both in greenhouse and garden."

LONG LOST LETTUCE
The Jewel Recovered

As a splendid shipper, 'Long Lost' Lettuce is the best of its kind.

As we started with less than an ounce of seed, you can quickly realize the value of this seed.

We, therefore, urge you to send us your orders immediately if you want to get the best of the seed.

The famous Tomato grower, John Baer, writes: "Long Lost Lettuce is the very best Lettuce the market gardeners ever knew. There has never been any Lettuce equal to it, for it is something extra good."

On June 21, 1915, Mr. I. R. Schnebly, of Grundy Co., Iowa, writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed grew fine. It is very hardy, and the heads are very uniform, excellent flavor, and the most uniform of any Lettuce I have ever seen."

On June 20, 1915, Mr. Ben H. Keady, of Cecil Co., Md., writes: "I received an order of 'Long Lost' Lettuce seed from you early in the Spring and it has proven to be the most wonderful Lettuce I have ever grown."

On June 24, 1915, Mr. G. Ralph Laighton, of Rockingham Co., N. H., writes: "I take pleasure in saying that your 'Long Lost' Lettuce has done splendidly with me this season. The heads were very large, solid and crisp, and the flavor excellent. I have another crop of 'Long Lost' Lettuce that will be maturing soon and have also sown seed for a late crop. I shall continue cultivation of the 'Long Lost'."

On June 7, 1915, Mr. S. W. Carman, of Lancaster Co., Pa., writes: "In regard to your 'Long Lost' Lettuce, it is the best I have ever seen. It beats any I ever had in quantity and nice, tender heads. Flavor can't be beat."

On June 19, 1915, Messrs. Vogt Bros., of Baltimore Co., Md., wrote: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce is the very best heading Lettuce we have ever raised and will stand the heat, as heads will burst open before going to seed. We do not want anything any better."

On June 15, 1915, Mr. Wm. Horner, of Baltimore Co., Md., writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce which I purchased from you early this Spring is all that it is claimed by your firm. I like it so well I purchased some more. I certainly recommend it to market gardeners."

On June 19, 1915, Mr. Cris Gebb, of Baltimore Co., Md., writes: "The 'Long Lost' Lettuce turned out for me just as it is advertised. I want no better."

On Aug. 9, 1915, Mr. Henry Seymour, of Vanderburg Co., Ind., writes: "I have words of praise for your 'Long Lost' Lettuce. First, it stands drought better than any other kind. Second, it matures quicker than any Lettuce I know of. Third, it is tender, crisp and of a very fine flavor."

On June 14, 1915, Mr. John Trahandt, Wholesale Market Gardener, of Baltimore Co., Md., writes: "Bolignano's 'Long Lost' Lettuce is without doubt the best Lettuce I have ever raised."

JOHN BAER—HIMSELF

Gives a Friendly but Earnest Notice to His Friends and Fellow Market Gardeners.

Baltimore Co., Md., Jan 1, 1916.

I hereby inform my Many Friends, the Market Gardeners, Canners and the Public in General, I have placed my entire 1916 supply of "John Baer" Tomato Seed, which I personally grew and selected, with J. Bolgiano & Son, of Baltimore, Md. Any seed offered by any other source is not my production, and I cannot feel morally responsible for the results it may produce.

I have given this Tomato my greatest care and attention for many years, and take pride in seeing that my Fellow Market Gardeners are getting only seed that truly represents the result of my lifework.

(Signed) JOHN BAER.

Fifty to 100 fruit to each plant. Ripens evenly, right up to the stem.

24 fruit exactly fill a six quart basket.

Each beautiful "John Baer" Tomato weighs about 6½ ounces.

Mild, deliciously sweet flavor. The finest flavor you have ever tasted.

Most perfect High Crown Tomatoes ever grown, entirely free from core.

Just enough foliage—will stand plenty of fruiting without getting vine. Set plants 3x3½ feet.

Almost seedless; it requires 6 to 8 bushels of "John Baer" Tomatoes to make one pound of seed.

No cripples, no scalds, no blight, no cracked, no wrinkled, no one-sided, uneven, scarred fruit. When dead ripe will not burst.

The "John Baer" Tomato is the result of fifteen generations of the proven and selected material, grown under the same conditions, and shipped in perfect condition.

Palmira, N. J., June 19, 1915.

Messrs. J. Bolgiano & Son.

Dear Sirs:—Last winter I ordered your store and bought some "John Baer" Tomato seed. On Thursday, the 17th of June, I received a packet of the seed. I immediately planted them in the open field April the 21st. If we had not so much cold and cloudy weather in May I could have planted them earlier. They are far ahead. Yours very truly,

(Signed) PENNEL COOPER

JOHN BAER TOMATO

The Earliest and Best Tomato on Earth

From Market Growers' Journal of Louisville, Kentucky, Sept. 1, 1915

"John Baer" has withstood the rigors of this season the best of all the varieties we have, which include also Bonny Best, Earlibell and June Pink. The excessive rains of the last four weeks have caused our entire plantation to become affected with the oedema. The "John Baer," however, does not seem to suffer from it, as a very much smaller proportion of its foliage dies than with the other varieties. "John Baer" is a very good variety for heavy soils."—Maplehurst Gardens, Southern Michigan.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Euphorbia fulgens

By heading back these plants now and giving them a temperature of 65 degrees at night they will soon break into young growth that will make fine cuttings. Of more importance than anything else is an even temperature of about 78 to 80 degrees of bottom heat and clean rather sharp sand. With such bottom heat, watering must be closely attended to so as to keep the sand constantly moist. During this stage they will want careful watering and shading. When they have made roots of about half an inch they should be potted in a compost of two parts fibrous loam, one part leaf mold, one part well decayed cow manure and a little sand. Keep shaded until they have taken root. Give them a warm and rather moist situation that never goes lower than 60 degrees at night, but 65 degrees would be better. If kept near the glass they will make better and more stocky growth.

Dracaenas

Leggy plants can be utilized by mossing the tops and using the canes. Cut the stem about half through just below the leaves and place something between to keep the cut open. Place a small handful of wet moss around the cut and secure by a few twists of raffia. Keep the moss constantly wet and when white roots are seen pushing through, the stem may be severed beneath and the moss and roots are buried to the lowest leaf in a well drained pot of soil. The canes can be sawed up into pieces containing one eye and split each section down the middle. Every section split or unsplit forms a new plant. Place these in a compost of equal parts of loam, leaf mold and coarse sand, and then sprinkle a layer of sand over all. Place in a propagating case and in a very short time, provided plenty of heat and water are given, they will show roots and growth.

Gardenias

If you have plants in the benches at this time with a full promise of a good crop, be sure to maintain a temperature of 65 degrees at night with little or no deviation either way. This means everything in the perfecting of gardenia blooms. While there are occasional periods of glut even at this season, prices of the blooms as a rule hold up well and those who are able to make gardenias bear freely during the coldest months will find them a paying crop. You can begin to feed with liquid manure water now as the days are becoming longer. Be very careful when ventilating as they do not like cold drafts. Give a good syringing on all bright mornings. Water should pass quickly through the benches. A fairly moist atmosphere is indispensable as the dense foliage takes a lot of moisture out of the air so damp down two or three times during bright days. Those who would succeed with gardenias in winter must watch them carefully.

Sowing Smilax

Do not fail to sow smilax this month, as they will take all their time to grow into nice 4-inch stock by June. For the starting of the seed any good grade of sand soil that is fairly open will do. Keep the flats or pans covered with a piece of glass until the seeds have germinated. For rapid germination a steady heat and moisture are needed. A temperature of from 60 to 65 degrees will be right. Keep shaded until they begin to appear when they should be given the sunniest bench you have, well up to the glass. Transplant when they have made their third pair of leaves, into 2-inch pots, using a friable sandy and moderately enriched soil. Towards spring they will need another shift into 3-inch pots. About the middle of April they should be ready for a 4-inch pot. Keep them growing along without any check.

Timely Seed Sowing

Many of us do not sow our seed early enough. Perennials, such as coreopsis, dianthus, delphiniums, gailardias, gypsophila, iberis, incarvillea, lavendula, lobelia, lychnis, pentstemon, etc., all greenhouse seeds as asparagus, gloxinias, begonias, dracaenas, smilax and others, and annuals such as ageratum, asters for early flowering inside, bedding centaurea, dahlias, heliotrope, pansies, petunias and vincas should now be started. Select for this purpose a bench with bottom heat to set the flats on. These can all be sown in flats or pans, provided with proper drainage, and a compost of new loam, leaf mold and sand in equal parts. After sowing, press all down firmly and water with a fine rose. For a top covering, after the boxes are placed side by side, paper will answer very well. Give a temperature of about 60 degrees, with bottom heat a few degrees higher.

Salvias

Stock plants of salvias can be worked up for a time batch of plants by planting out time. Place them in a temperature of about 60 degrees at night with 10 to 15 degrees higher with sunshine. Seed may also be sown about the end of this month. Salvias want plenty of sun and not more than 60 degrees at night.

Armeria

The present craze for Armeria in rock gardening is one of the most gratifying facts of our time. The "rockery" as a meaningless stone pile frequently consisting of a heap of soil bristling with small projecting rocks being here a matter of the past a better understanding of the possibilities will gradually take place. We shall sooner or later see rock garden building develop to a distinct branch of the art of landscape gardening. The rockeries of the near future will not only offer the best opportunity to indulge in the enjoyment of ever changing effects, nay, the nature and character of modern constructions and the enlightened owners will emphatically demand the employment of an extensive variety. Fortunately the material at our disposal is rich both in highly effective and, as a rule, extraordinarily hardy plant genus and species of great diversity.

Armeria, a genus of the order Plantaginaceae, commonly called Sea-pink or Thrift, consists of a number of useful rock garden inmates of long standing. The nomenclature of species in standard works is in a chaotic state and as many of species merely differ under the filling the pockets of the sunny locations of rockeries and dry walls. They also prove effective when employed for edging of borders in herbaceous gardens.

Armerias may be raised from seed sown in cold frames early in spring or propagated by divisions. Seedlings flower the second year. Plantations should be made in light sandy soil rich in humus. Do not forget a light leaf covering for winter protection.

Achilleas

Among the best and most reliable of hardy perennials is the Achillea. Among the better known varieties which grow in our gardens are the following:

A. filipendula (syn. A. Eupatorium). Flowers yellow borne in corymbs often five inches across, blooming from June to September. It attains a height of four to five feet and will need staking.

A. lanata, hardy, attaining a height of 3 to 4 feet, Flowers dull white in July till the end of September.

A. millefolium (white) and varieties roseum and microscope of the botanist our interest is best limited to the few distinct forms we are familiar with. Armeria cephalotes, valuable on account of its late flowering, may be found listed as A. formosa, latifolia, mauretanica and pseudo-armeria. The round headed blossoms of the true cephalotes appear in early autumn and are of a deep rosy crimson. The species Armeria plantaginea, going also under the names leucantha and scorzoneraefolia, is at its best during June and July. Its blossoms are rosy red and those of the variety alba are white.

Best known to most of us is the common Armeria vulgaris, growing wild along the coast lines of Great Britain and also abounding on rather dry open sunny plains of Central Europe. Its synonyms are A. elongata, maritima and Stative Armeria. The garden forms of it listed in American catalogues under Armeria maritima splendens, splendens alba and Lauchiana, remain the most desirable for American rockeries. The flower heads of maritima splendens, the subject of our illustration, appear in rosy pink or in white, while those of Lauchiana are of a bright red color. Their very resistant tufted foliage covering the ground densely and their decidedly handsome blossoms borne on thin wiry stems make the cultivated thrifts an ideal material for rubra. Plants 1 to 3 feet in height and flowering from June to October.

The well known A. Ptarmica and its varieties, especially "The Pearl" need little if any introduction. The flowers are white and double and are among the best known whites for cutting. The height is from 12 to 18 inches and they bloom nearly all summer. They require a rather rich soil for best results.

Among the varieties seldom seen in catalogues is A. sibirica "Blush," a perennial attaining a height of 3 feet with pinkish-lilac flowers, July and August.

For rock garden work the species A. Clavennae should appeal to many. It is not particularly dwarf, attaining ten inches, but produces fine white flowers in spring and summer, thriving well in a sandy soil.

All of the Achilleas are of easy culture and require, except in very few cases, an ordinary well drained garden soil in a sunny or half sunny situation. Propagation is effected by seed, cuttings or division in spring of which the latter is the usual and best method.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Clear, Cold Weather

After quite a cloudy spell the weather is clear once more for which we are grateful even though it should come off very cold, making big holes into the coal bin. As soon as the plants are hardened off a little, get right after the spider by syringing all the houses thoroughly, especially those from which wood is to be taken for propagation. Syringe as rapidly as possible, as there is nothing to gain by drenching the plants from top to bottom. Good pressure should be used, and care taken not to tear the leaves. If possible fumigate the houses the night before, and the syringing will do away with a great many greenfly which would otherwise come back to life. Among these are a good many of the old ones which are very hard to kill, but if they are thoroughly sick from nicotine the water will do the rest.

Temperature

Do not let the temperature drop too low right after the warm spell. 62 the first night will be about right, with 60 or 58 the next night if the weather turns out to be very severe. 72 will be plenty on the first day or two, not raising the houses to 76 or 78 until the third clear day. This will harden the plants very nicely, and will not be too sudden a change for them.

Sulphur on the Pipes

After the warm weather it is best to watch out for sulphur fumes in the houses. There may have been more sulphur applied than was customary for the low pressure in the pipes made it evaporate very slowly. Now, with the pipes quite hot, the sulphur will evaporate rapidly and if there is too much of it the fumes will become strong enough to do harm. This is all the more possible in tight houses and if there is a good deal of sulphur on the pipes, it is best to go around and brush some of it off or else turn the heat into other pipes which have not been coated with sulphur. As soon as the fumes disappear the heat can again be turned into the sulphur pipes, turning it off again as soon as the fumes are becoming strong. This will kill all traces of mildew that may have worked in during the warm cloudy weather and with a good syringing the plants should be clean.

Feeding

Houses that are growing very rapidly and have had the feed held away because of cloudy weather, will do better if they get their regular feeding as soon as the plants are hardened a bit and the weather settles to clear and cold. Liquid manure will be used a good deal from now on as it is very good and about as cheap as anything that can be purchased. It can be made as rich as the pumps will take it, being careful to have it well strained so as to have no straw and other coarse materials to stop up the pipes and cut up all the washers in the faucets. Be sure that the plants are wet enough when applying the liquid. It is better to water with clear water first, following this with the liquid and using only enough of the latter to saturate the soil. Thus making a tankful go much further than it would if the liquid manure were used same as clear water.

Glass Repairs

Growers who were wise repaired all broken glass last summer when repairing was comparatively easy. There were a large number of panes that were merely cracked and looked as though they were there to stay, yet it is these very ones that are making all the trouble now. They are not as strong as the unbroken glass and as soon as a little snow or ice collects over them, or merely slides over them they go all to pieces. Watch these broken places and see that they are properly cared for until the weather will permit repairing them properly. There is little to be gained in trying to repair glass in bad weather. With the bars coated with ice the work is dangerous, let alone unprofitable, for if the person can feel safe some glass is sure to be broken while being handled when the hands are stiff with cold.

Warped Ventilators

In the older houses, and especially those that are in bad need of paint, the wood will absorb so much water that it will warp at times. As long as this is in other parts of the house it does not matter so much, but as soon as it comes to the ventilators the warping of these will admit a good deal of cold air, which is not wanted, and as the rest of the house may be quite tight the cold air currents resulting are likely to cause spots of mildew right where they come down on the plants. If the ventilators cannot be fixed by drawing down the arms and tightening the set screws it will be best to turn waterproof paper or cloth over these places so that the cold air will be kept out or at least reduced to a minimum so that it will not harm the plants any. Watch out when the ventilators come together, as the wood often swells and they will not close tight. This may result in broken glass and mildew, so it is well to make for a little extra care in getting ready and down these places as soon as the weather permits. Paint the inside and outside of the ventilator arms with a good oil and this will keep them from swelling. Thus the glass will be safe and the plants will not be harmed.

among for about that fitness in its news columns and a lot of all-around matter. But frequent mistakes are made in inexperienced hands and it is also too true that the best meaning newspapers are very prone to fall for any extravagant romance concerning horticulture and presumably will continue to do so until some day, perhaps, as for example in the departments of music, fashion or the drama, responsible experts to handle and censor all such matter before it is given publicity. In our opinion the subject is today important enough to justify such a course on the part of the leading daily.

The winter season of 1915-16 has been some-
Breakers ahead what unique in its way and has brought some exceptional experiences to cut flower and plant growers and dealers. It is not likely that the record of the past two months will be paralleled in many years to come. With the sun getting higher and the days rapidly lengthening, the time is now not far distant, however, when a decided shift in the balance of supply and demand in the wholesale flower market is inevitable—in fact our commercial reports from various sources indicate that the reaction has already begun. It is a singular characteristic of the flower trade, so far, that when such conditions are in plain sight and a cumbersome daily overstock and consequent sacrifice of stock is inevitable, no comprehensive action has ever been attempted in the large distributing centres in the way of preparedness to meet the demoralization when it threatens and plan some means whereby reasonable values, with the minimum amount of wasted product, may be maintained and the severity of the inundation mitigated for the general good. Why not? Other industries where perishable products are concerned, are wide-awake to the grave aspects of such situations as they recur from time to time. Is it because we still allow individual self-interest and transient personal advantage to overlie all considerations of community prosperity?

The real test of prosperity

Methods of production are becoming more exact and scientific and quantity, as well as quality of crops, is on the increase, which is something very pleasant to contemplate, but these facts alone are not necessarily an assurance of prosperity. Unquestionable volume of output is too often mistaken for profits and on the other hand, in a period of partial famine and high market values such as we have been passing through during the past two months the top-notch prices which have prevailed are also quite likely to lead to varying and often erroneous deductions. Indeed, the real test of prosperity for the grower lies not in the phenomenal prices obtained in isolated periods nor in the enormity of production but in the net results for the entire year. In the season of scarcity the market will, naturally, take care of itself, but in the time of glut the attribute of salesmanship comes to the front and the business of marketing becomes almost a science. Production with all its perplexities and critical difficulties is easy in comparison. It is not too much to say that the entire floral community—growers, dealers wholesale and retail, and perhaps more remotely but no less truly—all the allied mechanical industries and supply concerns, are vitally interested in how this paramount problem of turning the surplus product to good advantage is handled. Yet, so far as we are aware, it has never been earnestly approached in any broadly concerted way by those who have the most at stake.

For more intelligent reporting

The St. Louis carnation meeting seems to have furnished the daily press with a most varied variety of imaginative material pertaining to floral matters. We alluded to some of it last week. Now comes another one telling how a locally-raised new carnation was named "St. Louis" by vote of the Society at the banquet which followed the convention. "This a testimonial to the hospitality of the city." This of course is of little consequence and does no particular harm but, absurd as it is, it was considered worth telegraphing specially from St. Louis all the way to the Christian Science Monitor, Boston. The Monitor is reputed to be a paper

CONTROL OF SOIL WASHING.

The Agricultural Experiment Station at Columbia, Mo., has sent out an instructive illustrated bulletin on "The Control of Soil Washing," by M. F. Miller.

Soil washing is the greatest single source of loss on many rolling lands. It is greater than the loss of plant food through cropping. The washing off of the surface soil during a single season may remove as much organic matter as will be replaced by the turning under of two or three clover crops. A single rain may form gullies which it will require years to repair. And the injury to the land itself is only a part of the story. The filling of our smaller streams with silt and the great injury that is done navigation by the clogging of our large water courses with this eroded material is another very important phase of the subject, when the country as a whole is considered. A large share of this damage is preventable. Public sentiment should be awakened to the seriousness of the problem and the land owner brought to realize the importance of persistent efforts of control.

As long as land is kept in timber or in thick-growing vegetation, as in its virgin state, the rate of surface loss from the average soil by erosion is less than the rate of accumulation by rock weathering. When the land is put in cultivation, erosion is greatly increased and the rate of loss is then far greater than the rate of soil formation. It is, however, when the land is in tilled crops that the greatest loss occurs. Careless culture is undoubtedly productive of the greatest losses. Where washes once start they invariably become worse rather than better if the land is kept in cultivation. Shallow plowing is another of the causes of washing which usually accompanies careless farming. If the plowing is deep, most, if not all, of the water will be absorbed and washing greatly decreased.

A crop rotation which leaves the land bare as short a time as possible is the most fundamental preventive measure. The use of winter cover crops such as rye will go a long way in preventing the washing of the fall, winter, and spring rains. The use of such crops not only means a saving of soil but also the addition of organic matter or humus—a substance badly needed in most lands which are inclined to wash.

A preventive measure which the farmer on rolling land must sooner or later learn to apply is that of contour farming, that is, farming the land around or across the slope, rather than with the slope. Where furrows run up and down the slope washing is greatly increased.

A fourth general preventive measure in controlling washing is that of maintaining organic matter in the soil. Soils low in organic matter wash much more than those high in organic matter. This is due to the fact that soils high in organic matter absorb water more rapidly than those which are low in this material, while the presence of organic matter also aids in binding the soil particles together, thus preventing washing. The farmer who maintains organic matter by crop rotation, manuring, and the growing of cover crops will suffer little from soil-washing.

CYPRIPEDIUM PHILIPPINENSE (LÆVIGATUM.)

This is a very handsome stove species, a native of the Philippine Islands, which appears to be extremely rare at present, although it has been in cultivation for half a century. The dorsal sepal of this species is striped purplish brown on a white ground, the lip greenish yellow, petals six inches long, striped brown on white ground and twirled. It reminds one of our South American Selenipediums, especially S. Conchitiforme.

SCHENLEY PARK.

A View from the Steel Entrance of Schenley Park, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The accompanying cut shows one more in the series of views in Pittsburgh's pride—Schenley Park—which we have been publishing from time to time. The picture tells its own story in the artistic tree groupings, healthy luxuriance and evident attentive care bestowed by those having in charge this beautiful public reservation.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW

March 25 to April 2

A special delivery service will be provided for the transportation of the exhibits of the National Flower Show to the city of Philadelphia. The service is being provided by the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. and the Philadelphia Flower Show Co. and horticulturists. From the many communications received by this office, it is quite evident that the show will attract a large and interested crowd from all over the country.

At the last National Flower Show, it will be remembered there was little cause for complaint as to the out-of-town patronage, but it looks as though the Philadelphia Show will eclipse all previous records as to this element of the attendance.

The various railroads throughout the country are taking a surprising interest in the affair, and are doing their best to organize traveling parties from different routing points. Secretaries of the different florists' clubs and societies should at once get in touch with the heads of their respective railroad departments, with a view to obtaining advantageous party rates for travel to Philadelphia.

The final schedule of premiums will be issued soon after Feb. 15 and will be the most liberal schedule ever published for a flower show in this country, covering, as it will, premiums amounting to over $20,000. In the new schedule, a large number of special prizes will appear, donated by various people, enthusiasts along floricultural lines. The National Flower Show Committee is still soliciting offers of special prizes for the various classes scheduled, in order to reduce the premium responsibility as much as possible. Offers made now will be mentioned in the final schedule, with due credit to donors. The Schedule Committee will, about Feb. 15, meet to settle upon the days for staging cut flowers, such as Roses, Carnations, Sweet Peas, etc., and announcement of the fixtures decided upon will be made as soon as possible after the date of the meeting.

The trade exhibition will be a most important feature of the show, and without doubt will be the largest exhibition of its kind ever staged in America. The big trade exhibition of the 1913 National Flower Show is already eclipsed, the number of exhibitors and the amount of space reserved beating the 1913 record fully twenty-five per cent. The greenhouse builders are well represented, Lord & Burnham Co., Hitchings & Co., King Construction Co., Metropolitan Material Co., and the Moninger Co., all having arranged for displays, while the greenhouse auxiliary lines will be represented by such concerns as the Kroeschell Co., John A. Evans Co., Spencer Heater Co., Pfaltzgraff Pottery Co., Benj. Hammond, Voltax Paint & Varnish Co. and others. The representation of lawn mower manufacturers is larger than ever this year, extensive exhibits being expected from the Correll Lawn Mower

Co., S. P. L. & Co., Inc., Power Lawn Mower Co., and the Pennsylvania Lawn Mower Co.

In florists' supply lines will be found exhibits from H. Bayersdorfer & Co., M. Rice Co., A. L. Randall Co., J. G. Neidinger, S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Edwards Folding Box Co., Schloss Bros. and others. Plantsmen and seed and bulb dealers are well represented through Henry F. Michell Co., Henry A. Dreer, Inc., A. N. Pierson, Inc., Jos. Hancock, Inc., Arthur Cowee, J. L. Dillon, F. R. Pierson, W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Geo. L. Stillman, S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Robert Craig Co., Conard & Jones Co., Julius Roehrs Co., R. & J. Farquhar & Co., W. K. Harris, Vaughan's Seed Store, Knight & Struck Co., B. Hammond Tracy, B. D. Rapteyn & Son and C. H. Totty.

At this show, the nurserymen will make a strong showing in the trade section. Among those exhibiting will be Thos. Meehan & Sons, Bobbink & Atkins, Andorra Nurseries, J. G. Harrison's Sons and Adolph Mueller. Among the miscellaneous exhibitors are: Bon Arbor Chemical Co., plant foods; Alphano Humus Co., humus; Cloche Co., plant forcers; Richmond Cedar Works, plant tubs; Galloway Terra Cotta Co., garden accessories; Gude Bros. Co., specimens; Florists' Exchange, books; Kirke Chemical Co., plant food and appliances; New York Stable Manure Co., fertilizers; Stafford Flower Farms, fancy plant stock; A. W. Smith Co., landscape work; and Miniature Building Co., children's garden toys.

The retailers' section will be well filled; reservations have already been made by John C. Gracey, John Kuhn, Harry S. Betz, London Flower Shop, and Chas. Grakelow. Institutions interested in horticulture will also be represented, among them the School of Horticulture for Women, and the Women's National Horticultural and Agricultural Society.

Prospective exhibitors, and firms who have unfortunately been prevented from making reservations through lack of space, which has been a serious obstacle for many weeks, will no doubt be glad to avail themselves of the large area of additional space recently becoming available for trade exhibits. This space is situated at the rear of what formerly was the stage, but is now a continuous part of the main floor, reached by both center and side aisles. It is here that the Aquarium Society will have their display exhibit, and the exhibits of aquarium accessories will be located.

In taking over the construction work decorations and equipment from the Automobile Show, the committee finds itself in possession of an area splendidly adapted for exhibits of a miscellaneous character, reservations in which can be made on very liberal terms. Visitors at the Automobile Show will remember the section as that where the exhibitors of automobile accessories were located, and where there was at all times congregated a large and interested crowd.

Chairman Kleinhelm of the Committee on Exhibits has done yeoman work in interesting private growers to stage exhibits, and it looks as though the classes will be generously filled. At least, four entries for the Rose Garden contest are in sight, and the success of this important feature of the exhibition is virtually assured.

The American Rose Society has raised about $1,500 in special premiums, which is considered as a material help as regards the premiums responsibility in the Rose Section. The American Carnation Society has raised about $500 for a similar purpose, and it is expected that the American Sweet Pea Society and the American Gladiolus Society will render similar assistance.

The final schedule will contain a class to cover exhibits of aquatics, a special prize for which has been donated by the Foley Mfg. Co. of Chicago. This class will form another distinctive feature of the show.

The Carnation section will be well filled, and it is expected will embrace all the novelties now under consideration by our leading carnationists. It should not be forgotten that the Carnation exhibits will form a complete show in themselves and will really be the Jubilee Exhibition of the American Carnation Society, a special silver medal having been struck by the Society, for award to practically all the winners of blue ribbons.

Chairman F. Cowperthwaite of the Committee on Information, whose address is 518 Market street, Philadelphia, has mapped out several trips among the florist establishments in and around Philadelphia for those who wish to visit the same, and his committee will be prepared to lend every assistance in the way of information which may be required. This department will have a number of paid assistants who will act as guides to the show and be continually at the service of all seeking enlightenment.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery is to make an exhibit that ought to speak volumes for the service it is exploiting. It will have two booths, to represent the sending, receiving and filling of florists' orders by wire.

Florists on the look-out for unusual effects in decorations for large functions will be interested in the installation of a big electric fountain, which will be in operation throughout the show.

The ladies who have taken an interest in the show, and are to operate the Tea Garden, are holding weekly meetings at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Philadelphia, and perfecting some elaborate plans for their department. The young ladies who are to officiate during the show period will be cos-tuned to conform to the general effect aimed for.

An orchestra of 36 pieces will present a splendid musical program twice daily, and will be stationed at a point furnishing the best acoustic possibilities.

Sectional and sister societies, desiring to have booths or stands at which they can look after the interests of their respective organizations will be accorded space in the balcony floors for the purpose. Arrangements are being made for quarters for Miss Jarvis, founder of the Mothers' Day Association and the actual founder of Mothers' Day, a day of much interest to florists, which booth will be presided over by Miss Jarvis in person.

The work of compiling the Official Souvenir Program is well under way, and the pages to be set apart for trade advertising are being taken up in a satisfactory manner. To meet the wishes of many of the advertisers and Philadelphia interests, it has been decided to charge ten cents for all copies of the Program distributed in the Exhibition Hall. The rest of the circulation will be gratuitous as previously arranged. Chairman Therkildson of the Committee on Publicity has arranged to have copies of the Program on every dining, buffet club and parlor car arriving in Philadelphia during the show.

Chairman E. J. Fancourt of the Committee on Trade Tickets reports a considerable number of these tickets already taken up and without a doubt the demand for the whole issue contemplated will materialize.

Tuesday, March 28, has been decided upon as the day when the New York Florists' Club with its guests will visit the show, and this day will be known as New York Day. The Club's Committee in charge, with A. L. Miller as chairman, is perfecting arrangements for transportation and a dinner en route to Convention Hall. It is expected that at least 400 persons will comprise this party.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

PUBLICITY RAMPANT.

The Philadelphia Record for Sunday, January 30, gave an extended illustrated notice of the National Flower Show to be held in Philadelphia next month. This is a part of the energetic campaign being carried on by the publicity bureau for this great event. The Sunday Magazine which was a part of the issue mentioned, was devoted largely to topics of garden interest with many illustrations of tree and shrub groupings and other subjects of interest for the coming planting season. It contained also an interesting article by George W. Kerr of Burpee's on the culture of sweet peas and the title page is given over exclusively to a portrait in color of the sensational sweet pea novelty, Fiery Cross, from a painting by Miss Winifred Walker in England. The Sunday Magazine has a circulation of 2,000,000 copies.

The annual show of the American Gladiolus Society will be held in conjunction with the August exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on Aug. 11, 12 and 13, 1916. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society will donate $400 in prizes.

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW

NEW YORK, APRIL 5 to 12, 1916.

The Flower Show Committee is gradually bringing to completion the Final Schedule of Premiums to be awarded at the New York International Flower Show, and it is expected that it will be ready for distribution about March 1. Numerous additions to the classes as set forth in the Premium Schedule have been made, and quite a number of special prizes will be announced.

The Committee on Special Premiums, of the New York Florists' Club, F. L. Atkins, chairman, is meeting with considerable success in its efforts to influence the donation of prizes and it is hoped by the end of the month all who intend to assist the show in this way will communicate their desires to the Committee or to the Secretary. A similar committee from the Horticultural Society of New York, F. R. Newbold, chairman, is doing like work in its own field.

It has been arranged that trade tickets for admission to the show shall be supplied at the same rates as last year, and all applications for same must be made to the Secretary.

The Official Souvenir Program is in course of preparation. The edition will be placed on sale during the show at the price of 10 cents per copy. The program this year will show considerable improvement over the publication of last year.

Exhibition Manager Herrington is making frequent trips among prospective exhibitors, and his reports are quite enthusiastic as to the support promised, and it would seem that there need be no apprehension that the show will be anything but a huge success and much superior to the show of last year. The trade section, too, promises to greatly excel that of last year, the reservations already made showing a considerable increase in the number of exhibitors.

The ladies will again operate the tea garden, the proceeds to go for the purposes of charity to be announced later, and the whole of the east end of the second floor has been relegated to their use. They are very busy just now promulgating ideas, and it is expected that their plans when matured will cover some novel features in the way of entertainment and service.

The Committee has had prepared a "sticker" or stamp poster, to be used on trade stationery, and is sending supplies of these stamps to all who will use them. If any of our friends who can use a supply of these stamps will communicate with the Secretary the same will be sent and the committee will greatly appreciate the courtesy of their use.

Two of the great feature classes of the show will be very creditably filled, it is pleasing to know. At least five entries are promised for the class covering rose gardens, and there are to be three entries in the rock garden class.

The work of obtaining publicity for the show has been placed in the hands of the Korbel-Colwell organization, which very creditably gave the same service last year.

It has been arranged that the booth of the Horticultural Society of New York shall this year be located on the second floor of the Palace, instead of the main floor as formerly, this making their old location available for trade exhibits.

About February 15th the committee will decide upon the days to be set apart for the exhibits in the cut flower sections,—Roses, Carnations, Sweet Peas, etc., and proper announcement of same will be made as soon as possible after a decision has been reached.

National Rose Society.

At the annual meeting of the National Rose Society, held in London in January, the Council reported that owing to the war the marked progress which had regularly been recorded for many years had naturally not continued, but having regard to the circumstances the present large membership must be considered highly satisfactory. The Council feel that the stability of the society in the face of such adverse influences was most gratifying and of good promise for the future. During the year 302 new members had been added to the society, bringing the total to 7,701.

A January Show.

The Royal Horticultural Society commenced its 1916 list of fixtures with a very successful show on Jan. 11th. Orchids made a rich and regal display. Charlesworth & Co. staged a magnificent group, for which a gold medal was awarded. Amongst the display was Laelio—Cattleya Antinous (L. C. Myra x C. Enia), which received a first class certificate. J. Gurney Fowler, J. and H. McBean, and Sander & Sons received silver medals for splendid orchid collections. In addition Messrs. McBean obtained an award of merit for Cattleya chocoensis McBean's var. By way of contrast to these floral treasures was the modest violet. J. J. Kettle, who cultivates these flowers in Dorset, showed 50 different varieties, and he is still raising new sorts. A first class certificate was granted to Abies bracteata, shown by Lieut.-Col. Barclay. An award was also made to Begonia Norbury White; this is a sport from His Majesty, the white blooms being tinged with pink at the edges. It was exhibited by George Kent. Fletcher Bros. exhibited tiny fruiting plants in pots of Aucuba japonica fructa alba, the berries being pale yellow. H. J. Chapman, Ltd., found many admirers for their Narcissus Reveille. This has been raised from N. princeps x N. pallida. The trumpet is deep silver yellow, and the perianth cream.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF WASHINGTON

The feature of the meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington was the nomination of officers and a discussion of the plans for the attendance of Washingtonians and Baltimoreans at the National Flower Show. The arrangements for this trip are in the hands of a committee consisting of Harry B. Lewis, Milton Thomas and M. J. McCabe. A special train will be run over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad if the number of travelers will warrant it.

R. L. Jenkins, who for the past two years has been the vice-president of the local club, was unanimously nominated for the presidency and Adolph Gude for the vice-presidency, while the present secretary and treasurer were renominated.

A resolution was adopted embodying a request that the Department of Agriculture include dahlias within the tests made of various growing flowers and plants in the Government experimental gardens and farms, the original stock for such tests to be furnished without expense to the Government.

Following the regular business meeting a buffet luncheon was served.

Committee on Legislation—W. H. Wyman, No. Abington, Mass.; C. R. Burr, Manchester, Conn.; V. A. Vanicek, Newport, R. I.

Committee on Standardization in Sizes of Nursery Stock—E. W. Breed, Clinton, Mass.; J. R. Barnes, Yalesville, Conn.; Julius Heurlin, So. Braintree, Mass.

At a meeting of the Rhode Island State Arborists' Association held last week in the State Board of Agriculture at the Capitol, a committee was appointed to draft a bill and to look after its passage in the Legislature. One of the principal features of the bill is that it will require the licensing of tree surgeons. It is contended by the State Association and growers that their interests are not protected, for the reason that the men engaged in tree surgery are not all properly qualified.

Bolgiano's "Long Lost" Lettuce.

This wonderful Lettuce was greatly prized by the leading market gardeners around New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore twenty-five or thirty years ago. For some reason unknown it was lost. More recently it was sold by an unusual Frenchman, who came around with a sack of seed on his back selling this wonderful Lettuce to the Philadelphia market gardeners.

Several years ago this Frenchman went away and never returned. Fortunately, through Mr. Oliver H. Ott, of Philadelphia, we are told that Messrs.
Bolgiano secured a very few seed of this wonderful Lettuce and, by infinite pains, care and attention, have this year grown enough seed of the "Long Lost" Lettuce to supply wide-awake market gardeners, friends and customers, provided they order quickly before the limited supply of seed is exhausted.

NOTES.

A representative of a Boston seed house, just returned from a business trip, tells us that orders have increased almost 50 per cent over last year in the same territory and that other representatives of the concern tell the same encouraging story. He predicts that the coming year will be one of the best in the business.

The British Foreign Office has granted a permit in favor of H. N.
Bruns, of Chicago, Ill., guaranteeing the unmolested shipment from Rotterdam of a quantity of German lily of the valley pips valued at 102,300 marks. This information has just been conveyed from the British Embassy to the Office of the Foreign Trade Adviser of the State Department.

A WORD ABOUT OUR SEED FARMS

Asters was grown on our Orchard Farm. The demand has grown to such an extent that we shall cultivate, next summer, 250 in our efforts to keep up with the demand, we are working still harder to get larger and better varieties.

particularly during August and September, thousands of people visit our farms for the purpose of seeing the vast expanse of besides Asters. Last year our field of Phlox Drummodi attracted much attention. In fact, we grow more or less of a large number down the alphabetical list to Zinnias. At the time when the flowers were at the height of bloom, about the middle of September, number of visitors at more than seven thousand, and 1300 automobiles. Florists and others are always welcome to visit our farms for trade.

CHICAGO.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Tonner, of the N. Y. Bldg. Co., are the only people in the city who have a room and a garden in the city. Their garden is in the city and is a most beautiful one.

The annual novelty display of the Chicago Florists' Club is under way. There is a splendid exhibit and a special afternoon session will be a new feature. This event is considered a most auspicious one for informally displaying new productions.

The down-town Schiller store, known as the Gift Shop, is now in the hands of R. F. Schiller who is having it remodeled, with soft lights, which bring out the beauty of the flowers instead of dazzling the eyes, and Flemish oak will take the place of white in the trimmings. All will be completed in time for a special Valentine window. The shop caters to gifts of all kinds in which cut flowers and plants will play a part. Peter Shafer of Kankakee is now "right hand man" here.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner have secured a lease on room 205-206 in the Atlas Block. It is to be used to continue the wholesale cut flower business, already well established, and also for a supply business with which L. A. Tonner has had many years' experience. The room, which was formerly two, is large and splendidly located. It is light and has two entrances, making it well adapted to its two lines of business. L. A. Tonner will be the Chicago representative of various large concerns.

As Valentine Day approaches, the splendid business of a year ago is recalled, when it suddenly became one of the best of the big days. All sorts of new attractions are appearing in the loop windows, among them bisque cupids suspended from the handles of the baskets so as to seem to nestle among the flowers. Ten inch hearts with retainers for flowers are done in harmonizing tints and the whole mounted on small easels. The usual variations in boxes and baskets suitable for the day are seen.

A trip through A. L. Randall's makes one ask "What next?" The florist of ten years ago, or even of five, would never have dreamed of all the accessories which now are offered to help fill the salesroom of the modern florist, and which are to be found here. The third floor has now been rented by this company, which already occupies the entire second in the fine new Le Moyne building, which also houses several of the largest wholesale houses in the trade here. All the novelties for the special days are now in charge of Miss Cook, who is an artist in her line and originates many of the clever ideas in her department.

The sale of the thousand tickets offered at one dollar each by the Chicago Florists' Club, on the big silver punch bowl, which was not awarded at the recent flower show, is under way. The beautiful bowl was given by the committee of the club. The trophy offered. The proceeds of the sale will be used to help fund the club. With the pluck that will not know defeat, the club has been successful in its efforts to raise the standard of the industry. Letters have been sent out regarding the sale of floor space and favorable replies have already been received from many growers.

R. Kurowski, of the J. C. Moninger Co., reports every indication is for a good season ahead. The long list of orders and inquiries includes the territory from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast and two more engineers and four other men have recently been added to its force. E. F. Kurowski recently went to Greenfield, Mich., to inspect the new carnation house built there for Thos. F. Brown last summer. It is out of the ordinary, being 84x600 feet, of the New Moninger all-steel equal span construction, with not a casting in the house. A letter from Mr. Brown says the house was not noticeably affected by the expansion or contraction this winter, but was satisfactory through all the ranges of temperature. It is 26 feet high at the ridge. It is planted with carnations, the plants being placed in the ground at its natural level and cross aisles running from the center aisle, which saves walking when picking flowers, but slightly lessens the floor space.

ST. LOUIS.

The Executive Committee of the Florist Club who handled the recent carnation meeting held a meeting at Smith's to prepare their final report.

Our wholesalers who close their places of business on Sunday made an announcement that on Feb. 13th they will open up to give the retailers a chance to buy for Valentine's day orders. Many retailers say they hope they will see the folly of closing Sundays and make it a permanent feature from now on.

The officers of the Florist Club held a delightful meeting at the home of Trustee Ohlweiler and mapped out an interesting program for this week's club meeting, including a lecture by Mr. Ohlweiler on "How New Varieties in Flowers Are Created." The members were entertained after the meeting by Mrs. Ohlweiler.

WASHINGTON.

J. A. Phillips, of the Flower Shop, on Upper Fourteenth street, is spending an extended vacation with relatives and friends in Toledo, Ohio. He has taken his young son with him.

Norman Simms, chauffeur for the Du Pont Flower Shop, had a narrow escape from serious injury last week when the delivery automobile which he was driving came in collision with another machine. Both automobiles were damaged.

PHILADELPHIA.

Frederick McDonald was married Feb. 8th to Mrs. J. H. Chalfont. Mr. McDonald is a member of the firm of McDonald Bros., Kennett Square, Pa.

There are many new carnations around this year. New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska are among the contributors. The bright particular star so far seems to be Belle Washburn. That's "some pink." If you ask me. A glowing red. Shines in the dark.

The "Dark Russell" roses that came down from Waban Rose Conservatories for the Florists' Club meeting could hardly be distinguished from the regular Russell. But we saw some that came in today from Alfred Burton's and if it is like that, then Dark Russell is something, after all.

March 7th will be a red-letter day for the sweet pea at the monthly meeting of the Florists' Club when Howard M. Earl, general manager for W. Atlee Burpee & Co., will be the speaker and exhibits will be shown of the latest improvements by all the best growers in the vicinity as well as from New York and New England.

We cordially agree with the many fine editorials that have appeared in HORTICULTURE condemning sensationalism and lies in the daily press and elsewhere in regard to our business. These editorials have had great influence and things are not so bad now as they used to be. We have just been reading one from the "Indianapolis Star" which is sane and fine and gives another evidence among many for the changed and better spirit.

Chairman Fancourt announces that the National Flower Show Committee have made provisions to offer tickets to the trade in lots of 100 or more at $25 per hundred with the purchaser's name printed on the ticket. This offer is also good for Garden Clubs and Horticultural Societies for use of their members. There will be a big demand for tickets, and the concessions in price made will enable them to hand them out more liberally than they could do otherwise.

The regular meeting of the Southampton (N. Y.) Horticultural Society was held on Thursday, Feb. 3rd. The paper, "Is Gardening a Profession," was read by a member and received very enthusiastically. O. C. Gardiner made some very interesting remarks on increase of greenhouses since 1890. There were here then one commercial and one private greenhouse whereas now there are five commercial and nearly a score of private greenhouses and conservatories, and G. E. M. Stumpp has a branch of his city flower house here in the summer.

Cincinnati—Mrs. Augusta Hoffmeister and family have been receiving the sympathies of their friends who also mourn the death of Mrs. Hoffmeister's youngest brother last week.

Axel Sorenson, manager of the Hanover (Mass.) Greenhouses for the past few years, will complete his duties about the first of March and remove to Marlboro, where he will engage in the same business.

The Hartford Market Gardeners' Association has elected the following officers for the year: President, C. F. Cannon; vice-presidents, P. A. Sears, John Christenson; treasurer, E. P. Carroll; secretary, J. W. Crowell; executive committee, John T. Wells, W. G. Griswold, Neil Christenson, Andrew Christenson.

The Pequod Nursery have opened an office in Meriden, Conn. F. L. Thomas, who is the general manager, has been in the nursery business for the past 20 years and was at one time identified with Ellwanger & Barry of Rochester, N. Y., but for the past six years he has been the sales manager for the Burr Nursery Co. at Manchester, Conn.

Harold L. Cushman and Miss Mabel M. Worth, who have for some time been partners in a successful florist business under the firm name of Cushman & Worth, in Bangor, Me., were married in Portland, February 5. They will continue to conduct their flower shop under the same name that it has been run since they formed their partnership.

Carl Rust Parker, landscape architect, has opened an office in Springfield, Mass. Mr. Parker is a fellow of the American Society of Landscape Architects and of the Boston Society of Landscape Architects. For 10 years he was with the well-known firm of Olmsted Bros. of Brookline, and for the past five years has had an office in Portland, Me., which will still be carried on in connection with the Springfield office to handle the large practice in northern New England.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

"The Prairie Spirit in Landscape Gardening." We should like to add a few more lines to what we have already published in reference to this very original presentment of a broad gardening proposition by Wilhelm Miller in Circular 184 of the Department of Horticulture, Univ. of Illinois. To begin with it is a most attractive publication typographically, containing one hundred superb illustrations and we are not surprised to learn that the demand for copies is something unprecedented.

"The Prairie Spirit in Landscape Gardening" is uniform with "The Illinois Way of Beautifying the Farm" (Circular 179), the page being 9¼x12 inches. The aim is to show "what the people of Illinois have done and can do toward designing and planting public and private grounds for efficiency and beauty."

The contents are as follows:

Chapter 1, The Prairie Style of Landscape Gardening; 2, Everyone Can Apply the Principle of Conservation; 3, A Free Restoration of Ancient Illinois; 4, Restoration Applied to Farmstead and City Lot; 5, Restoring the Romantic Types of Illinois Scenery; 6, Can the Prairie be Restored? 7, Everyone Can Apply the Principle of Repetition; 8, Adapting the Prairie Style to Other Kinds of Scenery; 9, Materials Used in the Prairie Style; 10, Some Uses for Illinois Materials; 11, Literature of the Prairie Style of Landscape Gardening; 12, The Showiest Plants in the World.

The prairie style is defined as "an American mode of design based upon the practical needs of the middle-western people and characterized by preservation of typical western scenery, by restoration of local color, and by repetition of the horizontal line of land or sky, which is the strongest feature of prairie scenery." This repetition is accomplished by means of "stratified plants," which have strong horizontal branches or flower clusters, like certain hawthorns or thorn apples.

The prairie style is to be distinguished from "the Illinois way." The former is a mode of design; the latter is not. The Illinois way of planting is defined as the use of as high a proportion of plants native to Illinois as is consistent with practical requirements and the principles of design. In this sense every state in the Union may have a "way" of its own based upon its local flora. The prairie style, however, is suitable only for the Middle West. It is of special interest to Illinois, because Illinois is the "Prairie state."

While educational work should not be judged by commercial standards, yet the following figures are illuminating and encouraging. At the end of its second year the Division of Landscape Extension had 5,200 pledges "to do some permanent ornamental planting within a year." The signers were then asked to report on what they had done. Replies were received from 991, or 19 per cent. These spent a total of $75,117 on materials, grading, lawn tools, etc. The average expenditure was nearly $76. The average expenditure of the 642 persons who spent less than 100 was $22.

While "The Prairie Spirit" was prepared primarily for the people of Illinois, its principles are applicable throughout the Middle West. Industry, conservation and restoration are applicable everywhere. This circular, therefore, may be of national interest, especially in new communities where people still despise or neglect the local flora. It may even have some educational value in regions where none of the middle-western species will grow, by setting people to thinking in new and constructive ways about their environment.

A ROCK POOL.

(See Cover Illustration.)

Rock gardening is on the eve of a great popularity in this country. Heretofore it has been sadly neglected in the interest of other more showy but far less interesting phases of garden work. Abroad it has been carried to a wonderful development. Unfortunately, many of the most beautiful rock garden subjects available in Europe are failures for that purpose here, and this fact probably has something to do with the neglect of this form of gardening in this country. With the better knowledge and appreciation of our native plants, however, our people are coming to realize that there is no lack of suitable material for such work.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The storms of the last few days have stopped the rush of goods to this market. The price of carnations advanced again last Saturday and kept up till Monday afternoon. Tuesday and Wednesday were weak days in all lines but roses, which are still off crop. Bulb stock is now plentiful but still sells at a fair price. Golden Spur narcissi predominate, with a few Mrs. Ware and Victoria coming in. The average of daffodils coming in is not as good as last year. Lilies have shortened up to some extent, but there are being received some very good callas. Amongst the tulips are very good Prosperity, La Reine, T. Moore and Couronne d'Or and others. Violets are coming fair but sell at a low figure.

Spring weather for BUFFALO nearly a week has developed a good demand for Golden Spur, Von Sion and Victoria daffodils. Also Yellow Prince, La Reine and other tulips. There are also fine freesias, plenty of Roman hyacinths, etc., which all have a tendency to lessen the sale of carnations. The carnation supply has increased and prices are now within reach of the buyers. There is a fair supply of roses, though the demand for shorts still keeps up. Some excellent Ophelia, Shawyer, Sunburst and pink Killarney are had and sales have been good. Lilies are coming better and there is a heavy supply of lily of the valley. Violets are plentiful—in fact there is now enough of everything to supply all needs.

Conditions are changing. CHICAGO. The market is not so tense. The high prices of a short time ago are gone for the season and most people rejoice. The effect is still here, however, making growers dissatisfied at the inevitable smaller returns and as Valentine Day approaches makes the retailer cautious in placing his order. Had it depended upon local sales the market would have had a big lot of accumulated stock at this time for home trade was rather quiet the first week in February, but outside orders took care of all the high grade stock not needed here. Of carnations, there are many which fall far short of the "fancy" class and the why of the split calyx is a popular question. Roses are loosening a little but not enough to make much difference in prices. American Beauties are more easily obtained but only in the lower grades, the high-class stock still being very scarce. Violets are being crowded hard by their rivals, the sweet peas, for corsages. Since the advent of the winter sweet pea the fate of the double violet has been sealed and this has been helped along by the poor condition in which the eastern stock has arrived. Single violets fare better and a mild steady demand generally uses them up. Lily of the valley is scarce and much of it is small. Plenty of bulbous stock is coming.

Stock has been fairly plentiful, not an enough to care for all demands. At present, however, with the advent of cold weather the supply has shortened materially. There has been a small

ROSES, VALLEY and CARNATIONS

WHOLESALE

increase in the size of the daily rose receipts. American Beauties are in plenty and of excellent quality. Carnations are to be had in fairly good quantities; there is a good cut of red for Valentine Day. Lily of the valley and sweet pea receipts are large and some of the best of this winter may be had. Orchids and violets are also plentiful. The lily cut is large and good. Daffodils, freesia, etc., are coming in abundantly.

Present conditions in this market are anything but encouraging. The rose supply is lighter now than for some time, yet the diminished demand has caused prices to sag, particularly on the longer grades. Quotations on the best grade of Beauty are maintained only because of the few received. Some very fine Hadleys are moving well at good prices. There are more than enough carnations to meet present requirements, so that clearances are difficult, even of the stock goes for very much less, at low figures. Three dollars per hundred buys the primest and this price is the exception, not the rule; the bulk of the stock is of lower grades.

Flower Market Reports

Golden Spurs have sent prices down on these varieties. Lilies are not very plentiful but move sluggishly; so, too, do sweet peas and violets. Lily of the valley is dragging with most everything else; in fact the market has not even a little bit of snap to it.

The first week of February was a bit slow in the early stages but it pulled up towards the end and while the surplus has had to go at a sacrifice fresh flowers are in better demand and prices for them are back to nearly normal. This has helped out on the general average so that on the whole the past week's business has panned out better than was at first expected. Carnations went in the hole about as bad as anything and there was a big accumulation, but even they pulled out pretty well finally. Roses are not in such large supply but the dull business made it look as if they were. American Beauty is the scarcest one on the list. If an order comes in for a thousand the customer is lucky if he gets a hundred. Russell also has been a bit off crop and not so extra fine, but the past few days has seen considerable improvement and it is coming back to its true form very rapidly. The cattleya crop has decreased a little but the demand also has been rather sluggish so that the situation there remains about the same. Bulbous stock is much more plentiful, especially daffodils, tulips, paper whites and freesias. Roman hyacinths are very few as compared with the usual at this time of year. Prices on lilies have eased up a good deal. Lily of the valley is in better supply but still higher than normal. Violets are plentiful and good and low in price. The bulk of the sweet peas arriving are the medium grades. The fancies are on the short side.

Business has been fairly good in all sections of the city. St. Valentine day promises to yield quite a business for the florists this year as many have orders ahead thus early. Violets have been and are going to be many and at reasonable prices. With a bright week the market should be flooded with them. All bulb stock is coming fine. Roses and carnations are not what one would call over plentiful, yet enough for all demands and at good prices. Sweet peas have been scarce of late but will soon be in plenty. There is a scarcity of asparagus and adiantum.

Clubs and Societies

PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

At the February meeting the following were elected: President, Carl Becherer; vice-president, E. C. Reine-man; treasurer, T. P. Langhans; secretary, H. P. Joslin; assistant secretary, W. A. O'Brien; executive committee, P. S. Randolph, C. H. Sample, A. Frishkorn.

The retiring president, Neil McCallum, received the heartiest expressions of good-will from the members, and of praise for his very successful administration of his office. A thoroughly good fellow, he leaves the presidency without an enemy, and leaves in the minds of his associate officers and the Club members in general, the memory of strong and successful work for the good of the Club.

The largest hospital in Western Pennsylvania is the one located at Dixmont, about ten miles from Pittsburgh. The grounds are very large, and there is a greenhouse range and extensive hot bed and cold frame ranges. In charge of these for several years has been Carl Becherer, who becomes the new president of the Club. His interest and enthusiasm for the Club, his work in hybridizing and raising seedlings, and his continued exhibitions before the Club of good stuff, has for a long time attracted attention to him, and there is no doubt that under his presidency the Club will continue to advance. Owing to sickness he was not able to be present at the election meeting, and the secretary was instructed to send a letter of condolence for his illness, and of congratulations on his election.

Messrs. Herman Rapp, Leetsdale, Jas. Murphy and M. Curran, Sewickley, and the Phipps Conservatories, North Side, Pittsburgh, all showed potted cyclamen in bloom, and all were awarded cultural certificates. Mr. Rapp's certificate including Primula obconica in addition to cyclamen.

President McCallum read some extracts and made some remarks bearing on civic pride, prefacing the speaker of the evening, Mr. F. T. Bigger, secretary of the Art Commission of Pittsburgh, who gave a very interesting lantern lecture on the Artistic Element in Municipal Improvement, and made us all anxious to help to make our city beautiful.

H. P. JOSLIN, Sec'y.

The Boston Market Gardeners' Association held a meeting in Arlington, Saturday afternoon, February 5. The first part of the afternoon was taken up in a tour and inspection of the greenhouses on the farms of Wyman Brothers, John J. Lyons and John Lyon in that town, and then a luncheon was served in Grand Army Hall. A business meeting followed, with the president, Harry F. Arnold of Braintree, in the chair. Professor A. V. Osmun of the Massachusetts Agricultural College gave an illustrated talk on "Diseases of Vegetables—Celery and Cucumber Blights."

DISASTROUS EFFECT OF A GREAT STORM.

AN INTERESTING REPORT WAS MADE at the meeting of the New Haven County Horticultural Society on Jan. 25 by J. H. Murray of the Board of Managers, concerning the damage caused by the storm of Dec. 18, 1915, on which date New Haven and vicinity was visited by one of the most severe storms in many years, very heavy, wet snow, with a gradual drop of temperature to about 15 degrees above zero, and a wind velocity of 62 miles per hour—which was mainly responsible for the great amount of injury done to trees and shrubs, more especially of the evergreen or coniferous type, working complete ruin in many cases and partial injury to nearly all the coniferous trees in this locality. The tops of many fine specimen pines, spruces and hemlocks were broken completely off and in numerous instances the trees themselves levelled, but the ground being only slightly frozen where the trees had been uprooted and not otherwise damaged beyond restoration, it was possible to replace them in their original position without much difficulty or loss.

The Scotch pine, white spruce and hemlock spruce appeared to have suffered most in this class, no doubt owing to the brittleness of their woods. Deciduous shrubs were laid low in great numbers, including the privet and barberry hedges, but after the snow had melted off (in about a week), they again assumed an upright position. Among the chief sufferers in this division were the lilacs, bush honeysuckles and particularly the smoke tree (Rhus cotinus). Rhododendrons in exposed situations were badly hurt, especially when planted in large masses and where the tops were of a uniform height, acting as a roof for the snow.

Many large deciduous trees were completely uprooted in the gale and, but for the splendid work in removing the many decayed and mutilated trees within the city by City Forester Cromie and Park Superintendent Amrhyh during the past few years, the great amount of damage would have been much more evident. Trees like the wide spreading black and white oaks, the elm and white poplar, owing to their outlines, their long horizontal lines predominating, caught the brunt of the storm more than other species. The snow and ice accumulating on the branches and limbs made them top heavy and an easy prey to gales. In deciduous and coniferous trees, the more conical forms of the pin, oak and arbor vitae are types to withstand the same character of storm.

While hedges assumed an upright position in a few days, many of them—especially privet hedges trimmed square or rectangular—cannot be as good as formerly unless severely pruned. The advantage of the "A" shaped hedge was emphasized by the resistance of its form. The tying in of coniferous trees like arbor vitae, retinospora and juniper was likewise of great benefit.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held on Monday, February 14th.

During Recess

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON

The Annual Banquet and Dance of The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston took place at the New American House on Wednesday evening, February 9, about three hundred members and ladies being present. The tables were profusely adorned with the best products of the private and commercial establishments in this section and, with the evening costumes of the ladies, the scene in the banquet hall was brilliant in the extreme. There was an excellent menu, well served, and plenty of inspiring music.

President Methven spoke a few welcoming words and then in the role of toastmaster called upon W. P. Rich, who as secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, expressed the greetings of that body, referring pleasantly to the cordial relationship existing between the two organizations and to the development of the fine art of gardening through their influence. Wilfrid Wheeler, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, was next called upon. He spoke proudly of the achievements of Massachusetts at the San Francisco Exposition and emphasized the possibilities of the rehabilitation of the former agricultural industries of the State.

W. N. Craig promised on behalf of the Association of Gardeners, of which he is president, cordial cooperation on the part of that organization with the Society of American Florists and all other bodies working for horticultural advancement.

President Stickel of the Flower Exchange and Vice-President John Macfarland of the Cooperative Market spoke glowingly of the progress of their respective institutions. Wm. Patterson, vice-president of the Club, was the last speaker, following which the company repaired to the ball room where dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

During the evening, entertainment was provided in songs by C. E. Tasker, Miss Barbara Mayer, Raymond Pugh, pianist, and humorous talks by Mr. Stowe.

PAN-PACIFIC PRESS ASSOCIATION, LTD.

San Francisco, Calif.

October 16, 1915.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Horticulture Jury, of which the writer was a member, awarded you a Gold Medal for your Insecticides, and when you take into consideration the fact that that Jury, outside of the writer, was composed of some of the famous experts of the world, you will realize the importance of this award. Verification of this may be obtained from Mr. George A. Dennison, Chief of Horticulture, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The writer has been requested to furnish a list of the articles which the Jury endorsed by their action in awarding prizes because of merit. This request comes from representatives of foreign countries and states.

Respectfully yours,

Signed: J. A. BUCHANAN, Gen. Mgr.

the demand somewhat better. Carnations are again at $4 per hundred.
Lily of the valley is quite plentiful and the same may be said of cattleyas for the price on the latter is about $4 per dozen. American Beauty roses remain very scarce with hardly enough to go around. Single violets constitute an oversupply and the price

Carlman Ribsam.

Carlman Ribsam, a well known Trenton, N. J., florist, died at his home, Jan. 30th, aged 79 years. He was born in Germany and came to this country in 1855. In 1874 he opened a flower store at 45 E. State street. He retired from active business twelve years ago.
He is survived by three sons.*This picture was taken right after a blizzard, and proves conclusively that our style of construction is positively ice-clearing.*This full iron frame, curved eave

A PROMINENT CARNATION GROWER SAYS THIS ABOUT THE STANDARD RECORDING THERMOMETER

Lancaster, Pa.

Standard Thermometer Co.,
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Please send me 25 record plates like the enclosed sample, and I want to say that the machine, bought a good many years back, is keeping up its good work right along. I think it a very useful adjunct to good plant growing, and it should be in every greenhouse, as reference to it may often tell what is wrong with a batch of plants.

Very truly yours, ALBERT M. HERR.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

A Bit Of Common Sense About Estate Greenhouses

OUT at Lee's Summit, thirty miles or so from Kansas City, Mr. R. A. Long has a big estate. In Kansas City itself, is his palatial "Town House," where a feature of the grounds is a vine covered pergola, at one end of which is a beautiful Palm House; and at the other a Curvilinear Plant House, both, of our construction.

At Lee's Summit, we recently built two straight-away growing houses, each 30x200 feet, having four compartments.

These are the real producing houses. Nothing was spared to give them every growing advantage. They will produce plants in quality and quantity at a production cost that will make any commercial concern sit up and take notice.

Not only is the big-house-on-the-hill, called Longview, abundantly and continuously supplied, but the town house as well. During the Town Season, quantities are shipped there.

The grapeery is not left idle any part of the year. When off crop it is immediately used for hays, ferns, and the like.

The point we want to put up to you is; which would you rather have—an ornamental range with a limited growing space; or put the same money into a roomy layout like Mr. Long's, from which you can grow practically unlimited things to the great satisfaction and pleasure of your employer and family?

Of course, if your available location is such as to demand an ornamental treatment, that settles it. But if it isn't, both of us had better get together and talk the question over and see what can be worked out to the advantage of you and your employer.

Say when and where and we will be there.

Hurry Your Order For Swas-Teeka Gold Medal Set Cannas

THESE three special Gold Medal Winners at the Panama Pacific Exhibit, San Francisco, are our biggest 1916 sellers. Antoine Wintzer just tells me that they are going like hot cakes. If you want some, we would suggest your getting your letter into the first mail possible.

Here's their description:

SAN DIEGO.

4 feet. Described as Chinese Orange or Persian Yellow in color. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance, which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting, and another charm is in the buds, which are dark bronze, harmonizing with the golden bronze foliage. Grand in every way. Strong Plants—$7.50 for Ten; per Hundred, $60.

GOLDEN GATE.

4 feet. The flowers open almost pure gold, but soon become richly tinged with orange crimson and apricot; throat deep carmine red. Foliage green. Strong Plants—$3.50 for Ten; per Hundred, $25.

CITY OF PORTLAND.

3½ feet. The color is a beautiful glowing pink, deeper in color than its parent, Mrs. Alfred F. Conard, and the flowers are produced in greatest profusion on strong, erect, branching stalks. It is an early and continuous bloomer, blooming freely in hot or cold weather. Canna experts last season pronounced it the "Finest all-round Pink Canna to date." Strong Plants—$3.50 for Ten; per Hundred, $25.

SOME CHOICE BEDDING KINDS

It's no small job to pick out a list of the best Cannas for foundation "garden spotting," or bedding plantings. Mr. Wintzer is always glad to make suggestions; so, feel free to call on us. Here is a selection of Thirteen that Mr. Wintzer says can't be beaten.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Proverb.

Acalyphas

For boxes, vases, subtropical bedding, mixed border or for the decoration of the show house or conservatory, the acalyphas have but few equals. Acalypha Macaefea has ability to stand the winds better than most coleuses. It also stands well in good condition in the late summer and fall. To have nice plants in 4 or 5 inch pots for setting out by the last of May or the first week in June shorten back the tops of stock plants and place them now in a temperature of about 65 degrees at night on a light sunny bench. With a moist atmosphere and abundance of syringing they will soon push a number of young growths that will root where there is a good bottom heat. When they are fairly well rooted they should be potted into 2½ of 3-inch pots using good fibrous loam well enriched. They like plenty of heat.

Amaryllis

Place these plants well up to the glass so they will not become drawn. Keep a temperature of from 60 to 65 at night with 10 to 15 higher with sun. Give ventilation on all good days, but do not let it lower the temperature. As the amaryllis spikes advance, some liquid manure may advantageously be given, using it in moderate doses only, at intervals of four or five days. Amaryllises enjoy a little bottom heat and always seem to thrive better where they can be plunged in leaves, cocoanut fibre or some other material. Where the spikes are to be cut it is better to do this before the first flower becomes fully expanded; when fully opened they are not easily packed without damage. Seedlings sown early in the year should be potted off singly into 2½-inch pots when they show their second leaves. Use a light compost containing two-thirds leafmold at the first potting.

Orchids

All orchids will now begin to show renewed root action and growth so do not defer repotting much longer. Just before they make too much growth is the best time for repotting or top-dressing most orchids. The best material is either fibrous peat or fern fibre and sphagnum moss, with charcoal and crocks for good drainage. After being potted they should be frequently syringed and have abundance of moisture about the house; in fact the benches and floors should never be dry. Make it a rule that when the proper temperature has been reached ventilation will be in line, but keep any cold draughts from the new growths. Keep in mind that over-watering is very injurious to all orchids.

Schizanthus

Now is a good time to make a late sowing of this beautiful annual. Sow thinly in pans or flats and transplant just as soon as they can be handled. Always grow as near glass as possible or they will get badly drawn. While schizanthus is tender and easily injured by frost they on the other hand cannot tolerate a warm greenhouse and flowers grown in a high temperature are vastly inferior, so see that they are kept in a cool house of about 45 degrees. But in order to forward plants a few of the more advanced can be given a sunny airy house with a minimum temperature of 50 degrees. These are quite thirsty subjects and once their receptacles are full of roots, want as much water as chrysanthemums, with weak liquid manure, in addition, every third or fourth watering. Keep shifting them until you have them in their flowering sizes of 5, 6 or 7-inch pots. They like a compost of fibrous loam four parts, leaf mold and cow manure one part each and a little sand.

Start for Next Christmas

All good growers know that during January and February we should make our new start for next Christmas. People seem to be more anxious to use flowers as gifts and a plant in flower displayed in a neat basket or hamper makes an ideal Christmas offering. More and more is Christmas becoming a great day for the man who specializes in pot plants. People don't seem to mind paying for it and we all should try to prepare enough stock which can be sold at a reasonable price, such as begonias, camellias, cyclamen, primulas, etc.

Sowing Musa

Few subjects equal the musas for decorative landscape effect during the summer months. Soak the seeds in water at about 100 degrees for 48 hours. A good plan is to put them in water of this degree of heat in a pan and place on the hot water pipes. They can be sown in a mixture of fibrous peat, leaf mold and silver sand in equal parts. When large enough to handle pot off into the same mixture. Keep growing in a temperature of about 65 degrees.

Lily of the Valley Pips

Mr. J. J. M. Farrell:

Dear Sir:—Please inform me if lily of the valley pips that are planted in the spring and taken up in the fall and put in benches, will bloom again in winter Arctic, R. I.

M. REGAULD.

It is not possible to make lily of the valley a paying crop by lifting clumps in the fall and planting them on benches. It has been tried but always ends in failure. The largest and most successful growers of this dainty little flower use pips that have strong well-developed crowns that have completed their growth where the climate permits of early maturity. While the winter is the natural cold storage for the pips that give us the flowers from the middle of January to possibly the end of May, for the other seven or eight months we must depend on those whose growth has been arrested by cold storage. It would be possible to use lifted clumps during April, but in the end it would be found cheaper and better to use imported pips as these are never so good as the imported pips. Where you want to depend on spring lily of the valley it is better to grow under frames outside. Just place some frames over the plantation in March and bring them along successfully.

Next Week:—Calceolarias; Palms; Propagating Violets; Sowing Seeds of Tender Aquatics; Sweet Peas; Compost for Transplanting Seedlings.

Lining the Boxes for Shipping

The cooler, clear weather mentioned last week, developed into a great change from two weeks ago, and it is well to see that the boxes are lined accordingly. Frozen roses are not only a loss to the grower but to the wholesaler as well, to say nothing of the disappointment to the retail store that may have been waiting for the shipment. Paper is cheap—much cheaper than roses—and it pays to use plenty of it during this severe weather. See that the corners of all boxes are well lined as it is here that most of the cold comes in, as the ends of the boxes are always sticking out of the delivery wagons. The tops and bottoms and sides will not suffer so much as these are generally protected by other boxes piled on top and a blanket over the topmost. Paper boxes are much warmer than the old wooden ones, and will not have to be wrapped on the outside unless the wind is blowing very strong and the weather very severe. Wooden boxes are much colder and had better be wrapped with heavy wrapping paper, putting several thicknesses of newspaper under this. As in lining boxes, make sure the corners are well protected by careful folding, and see that the boxes are tied securely so that they will not go to pieces as soon as the express man looks at them. With cold weather, snow and ice, trains are bound to be a little late and all the men anxious to get out of the weather, so that the roses will be handled very quickly and often very roughly. Pack the blooms carefully and see that the roses cannot slide all over and shake up and down. A box of damaged Beauties may lose 40 or 50 dollars to the grower, while ten cents' worth of paper and a little time might have saved it.

Watch Heavy Snows

During a heavy snow storm it is well to see that the snow does not pile up in front of the houses as it rolls off the roof. It is here that the trouble usually begins, and if the front of the houses is not kept cleared the snow will soon pile up so that it will be impossible for that on the roof to slide down and it will start piling up until some damage is done especially in some of the old houses. It is very unpleasant work to go out in the storm but the effort is well worth while. Where the houses are connected with a gutter in the center see that the snow pipe is started as soon as it starts to snow, and not when the snow is piled up high between the ridges. Do away with it as fast as possible. Often the snowfall will not amount to anything or will turn to rain, but there is no way of telling and it is best not to take any chances. We have had a very mild January, and that as a rule means a severe February, but this is better than to have blizzards in March and April.

Keep Boiler Flues Clean

All boiler flues should be cleaned at least twice a week during this severe weather. If this is not done a good deal of coal will be wasted as it will take just so much more heat to go through the thick coat of dirt that sticks to the flues and fire passages of the boilers. A piece of rag tied to a stick will do a good deal of work and do it better than most brushes, in sectional boilers. Tubular boilers need brushes of course but if these are taken care of they will last a long time and will more than pay for themselves with the coal they save. The way most boilers are built it is a very simple matter to clean the flues even with the fires going. However, there are times during the day that the boilers are not used and the cleaning can be done very nicely. If the place is large enough to have a night man and a day fireman these men will take enough interest in their work to keep the boilers clean. If they do not they should be stirred into action by the management and if necessary more help given, as with the large boilers it takes two good men to handle one of the brushes properly. Also see that the ash-pits are kept clean all the time, for grates cost money. Now is the time to note where the ash-pits are not deep enough to take the ashes for twenty-four hours, and these should be deepened unless it is impossible because of water or some such drawback.

Propagation

If there is still a shortage of plants, see that the propagator is kept going all the time now, as April will soon slip around to us and it will be a little more difficult to control the temperatures in sand and above the cuttings. Although it is not impossible to root cuttings in April we like to get all in before the middle of March so as to have the work out of the way before the rush of spring work. As fast as the cuttings root see that they are potted, for as soon as they have roots they cease to be cuttings and become plants, and a bench of sand is no place for them. Then too they are open to attack by any number of fungous visitors and the quicker they get into soil the better. Make sure that all dead cuttings, tops of leaves, etc., are removed from the sand as the cuttings are taken out, if the sand is to be used again, as this vegetable matter will make excellent food for the wrong kind of bacteria and fungus to breed from and live on. Keep the sand clean.

An institution which stands for something

The Report of the Proceedings of the Thirty-first Annual Convention of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists has just been received from the Secretary's office. It is a book of 376 pages of interesting matter, giving in detail the story of the year's work in the national society, including the doings at San Francisco. The list of members in good standing contains the names of 407 life and 1224 annual members. As we glance over these names we are impressed with the significant fact—one which we wish every young man engaged in any floral or horticultural industry should take note of—that the majority of the men who have attained prominence in horticultural and floral circles in this country are enrolled as members in the Society of American Florists—some of them for many years and, of these, many dating their best success in their chosen field from the time when they began to participate in the activities of that organization. No one aspiring to eminence and success in his work can afford to have his name missing from the list of his fellows who have identified themselves with an organization so useful. Even if one can but rarely attend its conventions, still membership in the S. A. F. is an asset for the holder, worth many times its cost, a certificate of character that should not be underestimated, for a man is generally sized up according to the sort of company he keeps. If advancement is to be made the man of tomorrow must be better than the man of yesterday or the man of today; if not, his efficiency and his chances for success will measure low in comparison with the standards set by his more intelligent and progressive fellows. To a young man imbued with the right purpose and spirit to go ahead, affiliation with an organization which can count in its ranks the leading men in their class as our great national society unquestionably does, cannot but serve as a healthy stimulant and practical helper.

The status of the carnation

The "divine flower" is or should be at this time of the year at its best and accordingly has been given the place of greatest prominence as a subject for inspection and discussion at a number of local club and society meetings recently. Everywhere there seems to be an undercurrent of feeling that the carnation is not under present conditions making the best of its opportunity as a commercial flower. Just why this is so has been for some time a subject of discussion wherever the craft gather together. Some have been temporarily carried away and their misgivings allayed by the remarkably strong market enjoyed by the carnation in common with other flowers during the greater part of the present winter. But, while it is true that those growers who had carnations to cut during the months of December and January had every reason to rejoice over their market experience, yet this good fortune is recognized as having been largely due to a succession of peculiar conditions in which the distinctive popularity of the carnation could hardly be called a factor and specialists in this flower are not slow to express concern as to its relative position in the market. The frequency and seriousness with which this important subject is being considered and discussed by the leading carnation growers is, however, an encouraging augury and gives assurance that adequate ways and means for correcting defects and conserving the best interests of the carnation as a "people's flower" will be zealously followed up. HORTICULTURE's views as to what quality is most to be desired and fostered in the present stage of carnation development has been repeatedly expressed. We would simply reiterate here our conviction that, if the popular favor for the carnation is to be effectively stimulated, then all other considerations can wisely be subordinated to the one outstanding question of restoring to the flower that long-keeping character which counted for so much in its old-time prestige with the people, more especially those of the middle classes by whom the carnation was held in high esteem for its intrinsic value. One happy result of the test of lasting quality in the exhibits at Cleveland last fall was to show that neither goodly size of bloom, nor reasonable distance of shipment injuriously affects the lasting qualities of a carnation. The why of sleepy flowers plainly must be sought in other directions.

CHICAGO TO MOLINE.

Illinois State Florists' Convention.

At the February meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club the Rock Island Railroad was selected as the route to the annual convention and exhibition of the Illinois State Florists' Association, to be held at Moline, March 7-8, the members leaving the Rock Island station on Train No. 7, Tuesday, March 7, at 10 A. M., due at Moline 1.53 P. M., the opening business session being called for 2.00 P. M. that day. The one-way fare is $3.58. There are no party or other special rates on this trip.

Other Rock Island trains for those who can not leave on the club train are as follows: Leave Chicago 3.45 P. M., due Moline 8.15 P. M. Leave Chicago 6.00 P. M., due Moline 10.03 P. M. Leave Chicago 1.30 A. M., due Moline 5.55 A. M. Lower berths are $1.50, upper berths, $1.25.

Some inconvenience may be avoided by securing round-trip tickets of W. D. McFarland. Passenger Agent, 50 West Adams street. Mr. McFarland will reserve seats for those who secure their tickets in advance.

MICHAEL PARKER.

Chairman Transportation Committee.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

The monthly meeting and exhibition held in The Museum of Natural History on February 16 was a success and considering the arctic weather and its effect on frail humanity the event was more than what the average success means and the members of the Society, who are doing splendid missionary work, can well feel proud of their achievement.

There was a most creditable table of cut orchids. James Stuart won 1st on collection; J. W. Smith 2nd. A. J. Manda got 1st on his fine display and Clement Moore 2nd. Joseph Tiernan won special for three vases of cattleyas. Lager & Hurrell were also awarded a special for their display. Cattleyas predominated in all the above. P. W. Popp was there as usual with finely grown roses getting 1st on vase of 25; James Stuart 1st on 50 Killarney Queen and J. W. Smith 2nd; special to Fred Huyler for Hoosier Beauty. Not the most valuable by a long way, but by far the most meritorious exhibit at the show was the vase containing 100 sprays of Rose Queen sweet peas shown by Geo. Masson—they were very beautiful; 2nd went to J. W. Smith. Bobbink & Atkins deservedly won a silver medal for a display of spring flowers in pots. Anton Bauer was 1st on freesia, E. Yeandle 2nd; special to Arthur Golding who also got a special for 3 spikes of lilies, and specials for bulbous flowers to Arthur Golding's Golden Spur; J. W. Smith for carnations; James Stuart for Buddleia. 1st to J. W. Smith for white antirrhinum and 2nd to Anton Bauer for yellow. The greatest treat was an illustrated lecture on "Iris Gardens" by Arthur Herrington. Beautiful colored pictures and enchanting views of American and old-country gardens where Iris reigns along with practical portrayal and a fund of useful information eloquently put, made Arthur Herrington's lecture on the Iris family a great treat.

J. IVERA DONLAN.

HOLYOKE AND NORTHAMPTON FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

A meeting of this club was held Feb. 8, with E. J. Canning, Northampton, and members turned out in good number. It was decided to change the meeting night henceforth from the second to the first Tuesday. On behalf of the members, G. H. Sinclair presented James Whiting with a gold stick pin, in appreciation of his good work as secretary for the past four years.

Instead of the usual essay, each member was asked to bring a question on a slip of paper. These were shuffled and drawn and five minutes allowed for each answer. The plan was a great success; each member had to think something and the questions asked were real live ones which uncorked much useful information. Exhibits of good quality added greatly to the interest of the meeting.

F. D. Keyes & Son staged a vase of Carnation Gorgeous and a large specimen cyclamen. G. H. Sinclair brought a fine spike of Clivia miniata and vases of sweet peas Mrs. Sim and Christmas Pink. D. J. Gallivan showed a fruiting plant of Ficus pandurata and H. E. Downer hyacinths La Grandesse and cyclamen.

"NOVELTY NIGHT" AT CHICAGO.

The annual "Novelty Night" which has become an important event with the Chicago Florists' Club, took place Feb. 11th and was a great success. The exhibit and meeting took place at the Morrison Hotel, when most of the business was suspended and the display of new varieties of roses, carnations, plants, etc., held first place. The exhibition included the following:

Novelty freesias, by Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind.; Purity freesia, W. H. Amling, Maywood, Ill.; Carnations Aviator and Superb, J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill.; Carnation Alice, C. C. Polliworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; Hoosier Beauty and Tipperary roses by E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Roses, Dark Russell and Mrs. Bayard Thayer, by Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass.; Carnations, seedling No. 125-11, Nancy, Rosalia and Old Gold, by F. Dorner & Sons Co., La Fayette, Ind.; red seedling carnation No. 3010, John A. Then, Chicago; seedling carnation No. 2124, Henry Symonds, Decorah, Iowa; carnation Belle Washburn, Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, Ill.; Fire flame roses, Geo. Welland, Evanston, Ill.; Canna Firebrand, Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, Ill.; carnation seedlings from Floriculture Dept. University of Illinois, Kirrett Bros., Morton Grove, Ill., and Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Morgan Park, Ill.; carnations Merry Christmas and Polyanna, from Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind.; primulas from Fred Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind.; violets from M. C. Gunterberg; cyclamen blooms from E. Rober, Willmette, Ill.; blooming plants from A. H. Schneider, Oak Park, Ill.

The judges were as follows: Roses—George. Wienhoeber, George Schuman, Emil Reichling. Carnations—Fred H. Lemon, C. W. Johnson, H. B. Dorner. Plants—W. A. Manda, W. E. Tricker, H. N. Bruns.

E. G. Hill read a paper on roses which was greatly enjoyed and he was the recipient of a rising vote of thanks. Out of town visitors were C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Fred H. Lemon, Richmond, Ind.; Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind.; S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia, Pa.; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.; P. W. Peterson, Joliet, Ill.; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; and all took part in the general speech making which closed the meeting. Among other things, the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Moline, March 7th and 8th, and the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, were discussed.

The following applications for membership in the Chicago Florists' Club were made: A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.; Wm. Graham, 84 E. Jackson Boul., Chicago; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Peter Schaefer, 36 So. Wabash avenue, Chicago; D. D. P. Roy, 168 So. Michigan avenue, Chicago.

NASSAU CO. (N. Y.) HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The regular monthly meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke Hall, Glen Cove, on Wednesday, Feb. 9, and was very well attended. An offer was received of a silver cup for 10 varieties of Gladiolus, 6 spikes of each, to be competed for at our Dahlia Show in October. In the competitive exhibits Robert Jones made a clean sweep of all three classes, with carnations Matchless, Philadelphia and Princess Dagmar.

John F. Johnstone read a very interesting essay on "Botany and Its Use to a Gardener In His Work," in which he clearly demonstrated how very valuable a knowledge of botany is to a gardener. The essay on "Young Gardeners and Their Opportunities in America," by Henry Gibson, was also read. Robert Jones announced that he would give a prize of $5 at our next meeting for the best 12 carnations. JAMES MCCARTHY, Cor. Sec.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

"Rose Night" of this society was held in Hartford on Friday evening, Feb. 11. A. N. Pierson, Inc., exhibited Jonkeer Mock, Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. Wm. Pierson, Beauty, Opheelia, Kildenny Queen, Red Radiance, Fire Flame, CARNATION LAURA WEBER.

ROSE PRIMA DONNA (MME. P. EULER).

Lady Alice Stanley, Sunburst, Hadley, Scott Key, Double White Killarney, Willomere, Harry Kirk, and Mrs. George Shawyer. Freesia Hybrida were exhibited by J. E. Huss. N. Slocombe, of Farmington, exhibited a seedling acacia. The roses received a first-class certificate, the freesias a cultural certificate and special mention, and the acacia a cultural certificate.

The question box brought up the advisability of employing warm water in watering plants. G. Ogren exhibited some narcissi that had been watered with water at a temperature of 126 degrees. Tests seemed to prove that it made little difference whether hot or cold water was used. Robert C. Smallwood gave a talk on rose culture and Mr. Huss gave an instructive talk on growing freesias. The next meeting will be on February 25th.

WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

One of the noteworthy features of the meeting of this society held Friday evening, Feb. 11th, was the splendid display of flowering plants. Prizes for the best plant went: 1st to James Stuart, for a splendid specimen cyclamen to which a cultural certificate was also awarded; 2nd to Robt. Williamson for Chorizema illicifolia. P. W. Popp was highly commended for Erica melanthera and H. L. Hand for Primula malacoides. Thanks to Wm. Whitton for trained nasturtium, Jas. Linane for cyclamen and Robt. Grunnert for cinerarias; in the non-competitive section. Thos. Ryan was highly commended for Lilium Harrisii: thanks were tendered to Anton Pederson for sweet peas "Yarrowa," and to Wm. Whitton for violets and chicory; a splendid vase of Carnation "Red Wing" from Wm. A. Dawson gained a preliminary certificate. Chas. H. Totty was a visitor and made a short talk. It was voted to hold the annual Fall Exhibition in Greenwich, Ct., this year, an ideal location for a large and important exhibition. The location of the Summer Exhibition will probably be voted on at the next meeting. After the routine business of the evening was over a "social session" with refreshments was held. Songs with rousing choruses, recitations, etc., were enjoyed. For the next meeting, March 10, A. J. Ricards offers 1st and 2nd cash prizes for the best essay by an assistant gardener on "How can our Society increase its usefulness."

P. W. POPP, Cor. Sec'y.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

The Horticultural Society of Western Pennsylvania had a Carnation Night at the Colonial Hotel, Pittsburgh, last Tuesday evening. There was a fine exhibition which included about twenty-five varieties from Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J. and the same number from A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn. Supplementary there was quite a discussion among those present. The April meeting of the Society will consist of a lecture by Mr. McCollum of the Pierson U-Bar Co. on the subject of "Small Greenhouses and What to Grow in Them," which is specially designed for the amateurs who are affiliated or incidentally interested in the new organization. There will also be a spring meeting for the ladies of the Garden Club of Allegheny County, when the subject of bedding plants will be taken up.

ST. LOUIS FLORIST CLUB.

This club held a meeting on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 10, with an attendance of fifty. The trustees announced the entertainment and dance for Friday evening, Feb. 17. Chairman Ammann of the executive committee for the late carnation meeting reported that everything had been settled and that the subscribers to the fund will receive 50 per cent of their money back. The secretary announced five delinquent members, all having been duly notified as such and failing to respond had been dropped from membership. Seven new members were elected. For the trip to the National Flower Show at Philadelphia the chair appointed David Geddis to look after the transportation. Messrs. Fillmore, Wells and Windler were appointed to draft resolutions on the death of our late member, Max Pelletier. A miscellaneous flower show will be held with the next meeting of March 9th, at one of our wholesale houses. The chair was authorized to appoint a committee of five to report on the advisability of organizing a State Florists' Association. Mr. W. W. Ohlweiler gave an interesting lecture on "How New Varieties in Plants and Flowers Are Created," with blackboard illustrations.

LENOX HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

The Lenox (Mass.) Horticultural Society held their monthly meeting on Feb. 9th. The committee submitted the schedule for the Summer Show to be held June 28th and 29th, this early date being arranged in connection with the visit of the Garden Clubs of America, who are holding their annual convention in Lenox on these dates. Sweet peas will be a special feature and amongst the special prizes offered is a cup valued at $50 given by Knight & Struck Co. for ten vases, distinct varieties introduced in 1914, 1915 and 1916. Twenty-five dollars was appropriated for the destruction of the tent caterpillar in the Lenox district. The annual ball to be held on February 18th promises to be a big success.

A good number of members were present at this meeting and a lively discussion followed the reading of a paper entitled, "Young Gardeners' Opportunity in America." The next meeting will be held on March 8th.

J. H. FRAMPTON, Ass't Sec'y.

CINCINNATI FLORISTS' SOCIETY.

The February meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held last Monday evening at Labold & Newburgh's. The Preliminary Flower Show Committee's report advised the society not to hold an Autumn Show in 1916. The society took steps to request the Governor of Ohio and the Mayor of Cincinnati, because it would be for the best interests of all concerned, that in their proclamations for Mother's Day they would specify a bright flower for mothers living, a white flower for mothers dead. The local society will also request all florist clubs in the state to do the same thing in their respective communities.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES

A regular meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural society will be held on Monday evening, Feb. 21st, 1916, in Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall, 401 Main street, at 8 P. M. Essay—"Young Gardeners' Opportunity in America."

GEO. W. STRANGE, Sec'y.

The Totowa Floricultural Society was organized at Paterson, N. J., on February 9. The society started with the following members: R. Fraenhoff, H. Schofield, H. Barow, F. Bredder, J. Otten, H. Bredder, E. Steele, P. Rossler, G. Welcher, George Atkinson, H. Christenson, J. Cooper and O. Schaub.

SEED AND PLANT FORCING DEVICE.

Unprotected flower and vegetable crops in the open are subject to weather conditions, while with the intelligent use of glass the plants will mature quickly and the number of crops grown on a given space can be increased considerably and the vegetable will be tender and juicy.

Until recently the sashlight and the bell glass have been the only practical devices suitable for the purpose. French gardeners now use what they call the continuous cloche. Americans have styled it the "continuous seed and plant forcer." It is a very simple adaptation of window glass, held together firmly by a patented system of bent wires. The wire grips the glass firmly in a manner that makes the forcer absolutely rigid, in the form of an inverted letter V. The two panes of glass do not quite meet, but leave a small space at the apex which affords ventilation, allowing excessive heat and moisture to escape.

When the bell glass is used it is necessary to plant in small round patches, but with the new system the planting may be in long rows as in ordinary gardening, economizing space and labor. Various sizes of glass can be used. For protecting rows of small seeds, such as mignonette, poppies, lettuce or radish, to hasten growth, the smallest or seed raiser size is used, eighty-three forcers to the hundred feet of row providing ample protection for the seedlings in their early stages. For peas, beans, etc., there are suitable sizes, and larger sizes for covering bushes, or forcing early strawberries, tomatoes, etc.

The use of forcers extends the length of the season considerably, making it possible to start the garden earlier than usual and keeping it going until late in the season. When these forcers are better known they will be more generally used. When not in use the glass is removed from the wire frames and stored away in boxes and the wires are also packed in boxes and put away until wanted the following season, so the first cost is practically the total expense.

RATHER CHEEKY.

For some reason best known to themselves, the papers of the Western coast do not look with favor upon the purchase and setting apart for public grounds of mountain and forest tracts here in the East. Perhaps it is because they have so much of that sort of thing that is in no danger that they cannot appreciate our anxiety to save what we have here.

At any rate, we find the San Francisco Chronicle calling the members of that most useful body, the American Forestry Association, "sentimentalists," talking about "extorting money from Congress" for our forests and observing that "if any of the Eastern States desire forest reserves, they have the money to pay for them."

This from a paper of the city that induced Congress to present it with one of the most beautiful spots in the world, the Hetch-Hetchy valley, worth millions of dollars, to be ruined to make a reservoir for the town, is certainly not lacking in cheek.—Boston Traveler.

NEWS NOTES.

Of Interest to Retail Florists*VALENTINE'S DAY PUBLICITY

Four of the Albany (N. Y.) daily papers contained a very attractive joint advertisement for St. Valentine's Day business, showing the names of Danker, The Rosery, Expre, Gloeckner and Trivison panelled in a floral heart, suggestively flanked by Cupid's arrows. Mr. Gloeckner writes regarding it as follows:

"The Ad. was made up from the money we had left from our 1915 and 1916 Valentines for the same day. We got together and had fifty large signs made by hand letter printed with just the word, 'LET FLOWERS BE YOUR VALENTINE' on the same. In addition we had small posters made, 21x14 inches with the same wording which we posted on all our windows. In this connection I want to say that while only four of our retail florists contributed to our fund (some of our growers also came to our rescue), we distributed the signs to every florist whether he contributed or not. The cost for the whole thing was a little less than $20, which we consider very reasonable for the amount of publicity we received. As to results, it showed all day Saturday and again Sunday, and on Monday it was below zero all day; but in spite of these facts I know I did a better business than a year ago, and I believe all the Albany florists are more than satisfied."

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

California and Indiana are exported by A. Henderson Co. from South Carolina this week.

John Henderson is feeling much better and has enjoyed himself very much about his home on the north side.

The Chicago Florists' Club reports the sale of three hundred tickets to date on the large silver punch bowl.

Charles E. Reese & Rife is at the Michael Reese Hospital where he underwent a successful operation for cancer of the hip. He is reported as doing nicely.

Chicago is living up to its title of the great central market with cut acacia from California, violets from New York and daffodils from the Gulf coast this week.

W. A. Manda, who has been making a tour of the Middle West, went from St. Louis and Kansas City to Minneapolis and then spent the latter part of the week in Chicago.

William Wolf, for many years a popular salesman at A. Lange's, and Miss Schmidt, will be married at the residence of the bride on Normal Park avenue, Saturday February 19.

The West End Floral Co. is now entirely owned by Al. J. Tierney, who has purchased the Leslie interest in the business. Mr. Leslie was a partner of Mr. Tierney's brother, who died during the holidays.

John Michaelson states that his firm, the E. C. Amling Co. used 680,000 violets for Valentine business. The best singles sold from 50c. to 75c. per 100, the best doubles from 50c. to 60c. and the poorer doubles all the way down to 10c.

Arrangements have been made with The Sheldon School for their Mr. Tolles to speak before the Chicago Florists' Club, March 9. The lectures last year were plain talks on practical questions of salesmanship and were greatly appreciated by the club members.

Little apple trees in full bloom, running from 18 to 30 inches in height, are very pretty window novelties. The lack of foliage is concealed by the use of sprays of Asparagus plumosa inserted around the plants. Pussy willows also add a harmonious touch. These appeared in Valentine week.

A. Henderson Co. are rapidly getting settled in their new store at 211 North State street. The main room is being fitted up for a first-class seed store and all will be in readiness for early spring trade. Back of the store are the offices. All kinds of seeds, plants and bulbs will be handled and a store of this kind will be a great convenience to State street shoppers. G. M. Reburn has just returned from a trip and reports good business. He will represent his firm at the Ill. State Florists' Association at Moline, March 7 and 8.

NEW YORK.

Charles Schwako returned last Monday from a successful western business trip.

Anglin & Walsh Co., dealers in plants, seeds and bulbs, have opened an office at 335 Broadway.

George W. Cohen, formerly with Werthelmer Bros., and M. Hiller, have opened at 874 Broadway, as importers and commission merchants in silk ribbons and novelties for florists' use.

The Schedule Committee of the National Flower Show held a meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 15, at the office of Secretary Young, and will hold sessions each Wednesday afternoon from now on.

Goldstein & Futterman is the name of a new wholesale flower commission firm at 102 West 28th street. Mr. Goldstein has been for the past six years in the employ of Guttman & Raynor and Mr. Futterman has been with Gunther Bros. for eighteen years, ever since he was a boy. The new place is the first store from Sixth avenue, in the long row of wholesale florists in the block west of Sixth avenue and the young firm starts out under most favorable auspices.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

William F. Gude was the guest of honor at the banquet of the Atlantic Coast Bowling League, of which he is president, which was held in New York City on Saturday evening last.

Mr. Fowler, who was formerly with the Van Lindley Company, of Greensboro, N. C., is reported to have accepted a position with David G. Grilbortzer, of Alexandria, Va. Mr. Fowler is a rose grower and all around florist of no mean ability, and it is said that he will take over the management of the business under Mr. Grilbortzer.

The Office of the Foreign Trade Adviser of the State Department has been informed of the issuance by the British Foreign Office of a permit in favor of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Phila., under which there is guaranteed the unmolested shipment from Rotterdam of artificial flowers, baskets, etc., from Germany to the value of 57,051 marks and from Austria to the value of 4,936 kronen.

The House of Representatives has passed the Johnson "fraudulent advertising" bill making it unlawful in the District of Columbia for any person to disseminate untrue or misleading statement or advertising. The House Committee has favorably reported a bill to prohibit the giving of checks when the maker knows, or should know, that at the time he has not to his credit in the institution upon which the same is drawn sufficient available funds to pay the same.

PHILADELPHIA

A new flower store will be started in Lancaster, Pa., very soon. Prominent citizens and solid backing are behind the enterprise. One of the leading lights will be Charles F. Edgar, well known to the trade in many states.

When an old blasé like the writer stops selling timothy seed in mid-afternoon to go listen to a lecture on rock gardens and such—civilization and his wife had better sit up and take notice! But J. Otto Thilow being a colleague on a committee, it was felt that an appearance, at least, was demanded by courtesy. So it was to be a five-minute stay, and then back to work. The stay was exactly one hour and fifteen minutes. Once seated it was simply a case of spell-bound and hypnotized. The finest lecture of its kind ever. Glad to have been there, and obligations to timothy can go hang. There is such a thing as an unrepentant sinner.

PITTSBURGH.

DeForest Ludwig, who has been critically ill for some time, is slowly convalescing. Mr. Ludwig's recent illness dates from a relapse from an attack of gripe in the early winter.

Miss Eliza McKinley, who has been ill since before Christmas, was able to call at Randolph & McClements (where she is the head saleswoman), early in the week. However, she will not be able to resume business for some time.

On Tuesday evening, April fourth, John R. Bracken, of the landscape department of the A. W. Smith Company, will speak before the Florists' Club at the Fort Pitt Hotel on the "Laying Out of Private Gardens and the Beautifying of the Same." On Thursday morning of last week Mr. Bracken spoke before the Squirrel Hill Garden Club at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Friend on "Shakespeare's Garden."

Adolph Kueppers, who has been the manager for George L. Huscroft in Steubenville, Ohio, for the past three and a half years, has returned to Pittsburgh as head salesman in the floral department of Kaufmann's. Mr. Kueppers was the manager of the old East End shop of the H. L. Blind Company and at various times was formerly connected with the sales departments of various down-town shops.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Lincoln, Neb.—The Griswold Seed Co., valued at $114,000, was sold Jan. 29, for $23,900.

Stephen J. Quinn, a florist, of Brookline, Mass., has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court, admitting liabilities of $43,324, and placing his assets at $4,447. The latter consist chiefly of stock in trade valued at $2,000, debts due amounting to $1980, and real estate valued at $200. There are four secured creditors and more than 100 unsecured listed in the petition.

ROSE AND CARNATION SHOW.

The second of the series of flower shows and horticultural lectures given by the Country Life Permanent Exposition, at the Grand Central Terminal, New York City, took place on February 10th-12th. While there were only two entries for the rose classes, competition was keen, however, in the classes for carnations, resulting in a fine display of these flowers. As at the first show, the table decorations attracted considerable attention. They were tastefully decorated, with accessories all alike.

On the afternoon of the first day, Arthur Smith, of Reading, Pa., delivered a lecture on "Outdoor Roses. Their Habits and Culture" to an audience which appeared much interested in this subject, and the way Mr. Smith was surrounded at the conclusion of his talk and plied with questions indicated that the public was thoroughly appreciative of these lectures.

The judges were William H. Waite and J. Harrison Dick. The list of prize winners follows:

Vase of 25 roses, arrangement to count --1st, Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., gard. P. W. Popp.

Vase of 12 roses--1st, F. E. Lewis, Ridgefield, Conn., gard. J. W. Smith.

Vase of 25 carnations--1st, W. E. Reis, Greenwich, Conn., gard. Robert Grunert; 2nd, John Downey, Portchester, N. Y., supt. Thos. Ryan; 3rd, D. G. Reid, Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., supt. A. W. Golding.

Vase of 12 carnations--1st, W. E. Reis; 2nd, D. G. Reid; 3rd, Henry Goldman, Deal Beach, N. J., gard. A. Bauer.

Table decorations of roses or carnations, for six covers--1st, Mrs. Ridley Watts, Morristown, N. J., gard. S. Golding; 2nd, Mrs. Pauline Boellger, Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y., gard. Rudolph Heidkamp; 3rd, Mrs. H. Darlington; special prize, F. E. Lewis.

Special commendation for the following freesias, Wm. Ziegler, Jr., Noroton, Conn., gard. Albert Bieschke; tulips, Mrs. H. Darlington; sweet peas, W. E. Reis.

Obituary

George A. Galloupe.

George A. Galloupe, former state senator, passed away at his home, 6 Chestnut street, Beverly, Mass., Feb. 7th, after a short illness, aged 65 years. He was formerly in the florist business, having greenhouses on Chestnut street, but retired from business a few years ago. He is survived by his wife and daughter.

Mrs. Joseph Guerin.

Sympathy is extended to Joseph Guerin, manager of the Flower Department of Wm. Filene's Sons Co., Boston, on the loss of his wife on Tuesday, February 15. Mrs. Guerin was formerly assistant to Mr. Guerin and also was in charge of the flower stands at the Parker House and Hotel Touraine. She was very well liked by the trade and her loss will be felt keenly by all with whom she was acquainted.

Henry C. Scherrer.

Henry C. Scherrer, a highly esteemed employee in the Sixth avenue flower store of P. L. Bogart, New York City, dropped dead on Thursday, Feb. 10, aged 60 years. Fifty years ago Mr. Scherrer went as a boy ten years old to work for Zalm. Later he was employed at J. M. Hodgson's, then after a time in the West he returned to New York and worked for H. A. Siebrecht. He has been with Bogart twenty years. His health has been poor for the past year, but no one expected any fatal result. He was a likable man and a floral artist of ability.

Boston—Penn, the Florist, as is his custom, made a catchy feature display in liberal spaces in Boston daily papers for St. Valentine's Day. Violets in heart-shaped boxes were given special publicity and an unprecedented number were disposed of, as a consequence.

Flower Market Reports

The holiday on Saturday BOSTON and Valentine's Day coming on Monday helped greatly to clean up some of the goods which had been accumulating all week. Although there was a fair clean-up, goods did not bring a very good price but that is partially blamable to the severe storm of Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Storekeepers were very much afraid to buy on account of the weather. This week the market has fallen off again and all flowers are very plentiful and cheap. The first signs of roses dropping from their high figure were noticed on Tuesday, but they are not coming in sufficiently plentiful to hurt the price of other material. Bulb stock is in in good lots and although they are very cheap still they sell well. Sweet peas have shortened up the last two days but with a little sun are expected to be back in full swing again. Violets are exceptionally plentiful and are selling at extremely low figures for this time of the year.

The mercury pointing BUFFALO around the zero mark, receipts have been slightly lighter, also the volume of business. The supply of carnations more than equals the demand, though fancy stock has sold at fair prices. Roses are still scarce, especially shorts and medium, and this has helped the carnation situation to some extent. Beauties are not seen and no call for them whatever. Sweet peas of orchid type are coming in better and sell freely. Violets have to be forced in many instances but had a good sale on Saturday last. Lily of the valley is fine and holding its own, also all miscellaneous stock. There is plenty of good bulbous material.

With the exception of CHICAGO roses the supply of flowers now coming in meets all requirements and threatens to exceed the demand should the quantity continue to increase. The bulb season is at its height and it would be hard to estimate the thousands of tulips and daffodils arriving daily. So far the price on daffodils has held steady according to grade, which runs all the way from the small southern stock to the 20 inch fancy cuts. Tulips are of every color known to that flower and the stock has a wide range in size and quality. Carnations are including very many of low grade, but there are plenty also of the better ones, including fancy stock. Callas are very scarce. Sweet peas generally are equal to demand which is good. Violets are not considered strong except on special occasions. Lily of the valley is scarce and bells are small. Roses are still counted scarce and the outlook is not for larger cuts soon. Snapdragon is another short article. A good supply of cattleyas is offered.

Trade for Valentine's day is estimated by conservative members of the trade as probably falling below that of last year when it assumed greater proportions than ever before in this market. Retailers say Monday is not a good gift day. Be that as it may, it was a time which used up practically all the flowers which came in. Out-of-town orders were heavy and a large proportion came at the last minute, but without them the market could not have used up the supply. More plants than ever before were sold for this holiday and the plant houses were kept busy delivering to the retailers till dark on Monday. Dwarf crab apples, peaches, lilacs and heaths were much in evidence, and the baskets of spring flowers were very popular. Violets as always, were a popular Valentine gift as were also sweet peas, of which more could have been used.

Extremely cold weather has again put a check on the supply of stock. Still, as a whole, receipts are sufficient for immediate needs. Valentine Day business was good but it was not strong enough to absorb receipts in all lines peculiarly appropriate for that day. The rose cut is still short. American Beauties, however, are plentiful. Carnation receipts are large and good. Lilies and callas are plentiful. Bulbous offerings include tulips, jonquils, daffodils, Dutch hyacinths and narcissus. Violets, sweet peas, lily of the valley and orchids are all plentiful.

There was a suggestion of bustle in this market just preceding St. Valentine's Day, but it was pretty well petered out after the snow storm and the zero weather which marked the amorous day. Much material was frozen on the way to the city. Violets, which have long held sway as a favorite of Cupid, have been treated very coolly all winter by the public, but the saddest blow of all was Monday's big freeze, which completely prevented the sale and the wearing of violets. Roses, which have held their prices quite evenly for a long time, show some weakness now and are gradually sagging. Carnations have taken a big fall. Bulbous flowers are everywhere in large quantity, tulips in all colors, Golden Spur and other choice narcissi, including also the first arrivals of N. poeticus ornatus, Dutch hyacinths, freesias, etc., in unlimited supply. One flower not often mentioned, which is plainly overdone in this market at present is the wall flower. Sweet peas are seen in varied quality, the majority of them inferior. Cattleyas are doing a little better than they were and gardenias had a good call for Valentine gifts, but they are not abundant. There is some excellent forced lilac, and George Siebrecht has acacia in regal quality coming in every day from the big pubescens ranch at Chappaqua.

Flower Market Reports

Trade has naturally been affected to some extent by the feast of Saint Valentine, especially for out-of-town shipments on Friday and Saturday. Outside of that, trading has been rather quiet. Prices have sagged in consequence, especially on the minor stocks, such as violets, sweet peas and daffodils—which were in larger than usual supply—anticipating the St. Valentine demand. Roses have remained scarce. American Beauty is to be had only in extra long and extra short and these but in limited quantity. Carnations in fair supply and good demand. In fact, these are the leaders of the market at the present time. Cattleyas are more plentiful and are about the only orchids around just now that are worth mentioning. There are fewer gardenias and the quality is not as good as it was. The sweet pea market remains about as last reported, namely big supplies of medium grade and very few of the fancies. Special grade lily of the valley is scarce and high. Most of the stock arriving in this item is below par and hardly salable at any price.

At least from the floricultural viewpoint, St. Valentine's Day was a red letter floral trade event. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, the flowers disappeared and the dollars appeared as never before in the honor of Cupid's special holiday. Prices were reasonable, too. Violets, orchids and lilies of the valley were very much in demand, closely followed by roses and sweet peas. With the exception of orchids stock of all kinds was plentiful and promises to be so for some time to come. Bulbous stock, is coming in plentifully, lilies especially being in demand. Possibly the most artistic Valentine's Day window seen was lined with old rose and green velvet. Special prominence, of course, was given to the large heart-shaped telescope boxes filled with a corsage of orchids, violets or gardenias with a border of small blossoms from which peeped the lace edging. The boxes were tied with broad satin ribbon in the pastel shades, which caught a huge cluster of artificial flowers.

St. Valentine's day ST. LOUIS made quite an impression on this market.

The demand was large and specially for violets, of which there were plenty at cheap prices most of the time. The unevenness in prices of all stock from day to day hurts the trade considerably. Roses are not in over supply and the special grades are very scarce. Lilies and lily of the valley are selling well, also all bulb stock. Sweet peas bring good prices for fancy Spencers.

Flower Market Reports

WASHINGTON The St. Valentine's Day business, according to all reports, was the best in the history of the trade. The demand for the flowers was a hard matter to keep abreast of. The dealers reported that like at Easter time additional employees were on hand. The heaviest run was in carnations, which were sold almost without price. For basket work they brought up to 75 cents per hundred. The demand for the Spencer type. There was an unprecedented demand for cattleyas which caused the price to advance. Like violets, these were slow sellers during the preceding week. All varieties of small roses sold well. The stores found themselves quickly cleaned out of red roses before the day was in full swing and the call was also heavy on red carnations. The balance of the week found a shortage of all kinds of flowers, but the demand fell off considerably.

CARNATION "YELLOW'S."

A report from the Illinois Station in 1912, when little or no attention was given to this trouble by the carnation grower. However, since that time it has become so serious that it has been called by a number of carnation men one of the most serious diseases with which we must contend today. Although we have spent some time on this problem each season for the past four seasons, the cause of this disease remains unknown. However, at present we have several promising clues which may lead to its solution and control.

A study of carnation "Yellows" was undertaken at the Illinois Station in 1912, when little or no attention was given to this trouble by the carnation grower. However, since that time it has become so serious that it has been called by a number of carnation men one of the most serious diseases with which we must contend today. Although we have spent some time on this problem each season for the past four seasons, the cause of this disease remains unknown. However, at present we have several promising clues which may lead to its solution and control.

"Yellows" starts in the young leaves and is first noticed as small pale green areas varying in size and shape. On holding an infected leaf up to the light the dots are more plainly detected. These spots become more distinct and turn yellow, while the tissue beneath collapses. The trouble is confined not only to the leaves, but in badly infected plants, the branches and flower stems may be covered.

Apparently several distinct forms of yellows can be recognized, which differ in general appearance and subsequent behavior. The early stages of the first type consist of these small dots, scattered irregularly through the leaf. At first they are a paler green than the surrounding tissues, but distinctly delineated upon it. The spots increase more or less rapidly until they reach a diameter of 1-32 to 1/4 in. Most of these spots are approximately circular, but may be irregular in outline, rarely elongated. A single leaf may have from one to fifty or more spots. Another characteristic of this first type is, that the spots do not tend to make the leaves brittle.

The development of the second form is similar to the one above, except that while still in the early stages the spots unite and become very much elongated, so that a single spot may be 1 to 2 inches or more in length. On badly infected leaves these elongated areas run parallel to the midrib and have a sort of flaky appearance. The leaves become very brittle and are easily snapped off. In the later stage the cells beneath the infected areas collapse, the spot becomes sunken and finally turns brown as the leaf dies.

A third form is found only on colored varieties. Here the spots in the earlier stages are yellow, but as they grow older and larger the spots become colored, the intensity depending on the color of the flower.

Microscopical observations show no rupture of the leaf surface and with a lens the bloom on the leaf above the spots appears to be undisturbed. No bacteria or fungi are present except when the surface or epidermis of the leaf is broken down. No insect punctures, as have been described for Stigmonose, have been observed in the true "Yellows;" in fact no collapsed tissue can be traced to the epidermis except in the later stages, when the epidermis has been broken down.

This trouble should not be confused with Bacteriosis and Stigmonose. Bacteriosis is caused by a bacteria, while Stigmonose is due to insect punctures. The spots produced are distinctly different from those of "Yellows."

After examining many plants of all the standard varieties on the market, I can safely say that all varieties grown today have "Yellows." As all varieties are more or less subject to this disease we can run no record tests to determine the actual amount of loss, so that we must resort to mere observations which is not always satisfactory. The direct loss, as figured from the standpoint of flower production, is not great. However, the quality of the flower is lowered directly as the vitality of the plant from "Yellows" is lowered.

The indirect loss from "Yellows" is considerable. Observation shows that this disease lowers the vitality of the plant, and with lowered vitality fungi, especially branch rot, attack the plant, causing a very noticeable loss. Branch rot, which is primarily a wound fungus, cannot attack a healthy plant, but is able to kill a weak plant in a short time.

During certain seasons of the year this disease appears to be more noticeable than at others. In the cutting bench, cuttings showing "Yellows" as a rule do not strike root easily, while apparently healthy cuttings taken from plants showing this disease root poorly. The disease is very marked when the rooted cuttings are potted up and for several weeks the young plants show considerable "Yellows," which apparently disappears by the time they are planted in the field. During July and August the plants in the field again show this trouble worse. During the winter months "Yellows" increases on the plants until spring, when the disease is at its height.

At the time of making cuttings the disease is evident and so can be avoided to some extent in the selection of cuttings. Cuttings have been selected now through three seasons, and the results show that by selecting cuttings from healthy plants only, we can control the trouble to some extent. One objection to this method is that we are unable to tell whether a plant is entirely free from "Yellows." A variety once affected with "Yellows" has not been known to entirely recover, and there is always some of the stock so infected. The weeding out process is a slow one, but the returns should more than pay for the trouble.

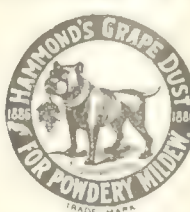

It has been observed that seedlings rarely show "Yellows." However, after cuttings have been propagated from seedling plants for two years they invariably show this condition. This brings out the interesting fact that the disease may first originate in the cutting bench where cuttings are without any vitality until the roots form, that a breaking down of some sort occurs in the tissue which later develops into "Yellows." Another factor which lowers the vitality of the cutting and so may induce "Yellows" is over-propagation.

To determine whether "Yellows" is in the "blood" of the plants a number of grafting experiments were carried out. Cuttings, layers, and shoots were taken from seedlings which had not, up to the time of the experiment, shown any "Yellows." The shoots were grafted on stock badly diseased. The grafted stock today is badly yellowed while the cuttings and layers from the same plant show little or no "Yellows." There seems to be no question whatever, that the disease can be communicated to healthy plants by grafting. A point which we hope to determine this year is whether this disease can be carried through the seed. As can be seen, the solution of carnation "Yellows" is a long task and is just as slow as producing good commercial varieties.

To summarize:

Carnation "Yellows" is due to causes still unknown. It is increasing in seriousness rapidly and is found today on all the standard varieties on the market. Some varieties appear to be more susceptible to this disease than others. Cuttings from plants showing this disease, and over-propagation tend to increase the trouble. Selection of

IT'S a long jump from Seattle, Washington, to Elizabeth, N. J.

To pass by a number of nearer-by concerns, and pay additional freight to secure Hitchings houses, is certainly a strong endorsement for our construction and our method of doing business.

There seems to be an ever increasing tendency among park boards to recognize the necessity of greenhouses, not alone as a place to grow bedding plants, and harbor the semi-hardy tub things, but also from the side of enjoyment they give the deserving public.

Considered especially in this latter phase, they have logically become one of the central features of Park Landscape plans.

From this photograph you see how imposing the greenhouses are in this instance; and can well imagine the beautiful effect produced by their being the cumulating point of one of the main drives. We should be heartily glad to send you full details of the greenhouses, if you feel they would be of interest to you in connection with houses you may wish to build.

HORTICULTURE

An Ideal Conservatory

Designed and Erected by John C. Moulton Company

This is our immense pile of composting humus, containing not less than 10,000 tons. It is brought here from the deposit fields by our own industrial railway, of which we have over ten miles.

Vital Facts About Humus

Read Them—Protect Yourself Against Failures

THE most important facts about this Humus question are the following:

1. The soil is constantly being attacked by disease bacteria.

2. The soil is constantly being attacked by disease bacteria. It is primarily because of the exhaustion of their forces, and the consequent loss of their vitality which destroys the soil building bacteria.

There are a lot of people who snap your fingers and smile amusedly, when the subject of soil bacteria is mentioned. You seem to feel that bacteria has only to do with the diseases of people and animals. You lose sight of the fact that in the mouths alone, of all healthy persons, there are always at least nine different kinds of bacteria. Each one of them is constantly helping us keep healthy by fighting disease bacteria.

If we let our system run down, the beneficial bacteria lose their strength, or cease to multiply sufficiently rapidly to destroy the disease bacteria that's always looking for a chance to get a grip on us. Then it is we are sick. Soils and people are in this respect much alike. There are bacteria that help the soils, and ones that injure them.

There are three ways of sweetening sour humus deposits, that always contain the acid making bacteria.

1. Spreading it out in thin layers over large areas, so that the air and sun can do their part in the sweetening process.

2. The adding of lime and thoroughly mixing it together after sun drying and sweetening.

3. Scraping together after sun drying, and putting in press to compost. In water, resulting in a rapid multiplication of the beneficial bacteria.

These processes are costly, when done in a small way; and if not done in a better way, the mere cost of handling would be more than the price asked for the raw, water logged humus.

If it's not done; you run the danger in using such humus of putting into your soil an acid maker. There is no telling how much damage it may do.

In buying it at even so low as $5 a ton, you pay for 75% to 85% of acid laden water. Or, to put it in plain figures, you pay $5 to get $1.22 worth of humus, and $3.78 for water, making an expensive way to buy water; and a mighty costly way to buy humus.

If it is an acid-free, sun-dried, high-Nitrogen, natural humus, you want, then we will sell you our superior Alphano Base for

$4.00 a Ton
By the Carload.

But by paying $4 more, you can get our Prepared Alphano Humus, having 75 per cent to 85 per cent of the moisture mechanically driven out; and rich in nitrogen, phosphate, potash; besides containing all the nitrogen gathering bacteria that inoculates the legumes, such as peas, beans, clover and alfalfa.

The Prepared Alphano Humus is a completely balanced soil ration. It is the ideal fertility producer for your garden, lawn and shrubs.

It is a velvety black, dry odorless and free from weed material, finely granulated, seeds.

Send for the New Alphano Book for further facts, figures and directions for use.

From the compost pile, the natural humus comes to these mammoth drying drums where 75 to 85% of the moisture is slowly driven out. It takes four tons of natural humus to make one of Prepared.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be promptly received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"It vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Calceolarias

If these have not had their last shift do it without delay. Use a rather light loam not chopped or sifted too fine with a fourth or fifth of thoroughly rotted manure. If the soil is heavy add sand to the manure. 40 degrees at night is far better than 50 and in the lower temperatures the green aphid is far less troublesome. Give mild fumigation every week. At no time must they be allowed to wilt, and, like the cineraria, must never be over watered. Avoid extremes both ways. On clear mornings we give a light spraying over-head. Those of the rugosa section are useful at Memorial Day. These should now have their last pinching and can go in their flowering pots. Some will be starting to push their flower spikes and these are better to be pinched, which causes the plants to break freely and make much nicer flower heads. Give ventilation whenever possible.

Palms

The appearance of specimen palms is wonderfully improved by good sponging—an operation never too often repeated—with a good insecticide. While any period in the year is a good time for the transplanting of root-bound palms repotting now will be especially good before they start too much root action. Use a substantial heavy soil which has been plentifully enriched with old manure and bone meal. Maintain a temperature not much below 60 degrees, and keep the house in a humid state after potting.

Propagating Violets

Conditions will be right from now up to the first of April for the propagating of violets. When taking off cuttings see that they are not allowed to wilt either before or after they are inserted. They can be put in sand in a propagating bench in a house not any higher than 45 to 48 degrees. It pays well to examine the plants that cuttings are taken from and discard any that show the least trace of disease or spot. Keep them shaded until they become well established when only a slight shade will be necessary on very bright days. Give frequent sprinklings, but always see that they have a chance to dry off before night. When rooted they can be boxed off. Give plenty of ventilation whenever possible. They also root well in boxes that are well-drained and filled with sand. Do not overwater the cuttings and on the other hand see that they do not become too dry.

Sowing Seed of Tender Aquatics

All such aquatic seed as Nelumbiums, Nymphaeas, Victorias, Eichhornias, etc., can be sown now and up to the first of April. The seed can be sown in shallow pans, using a compost of fibrous peat, leaf mold and silver sand in equal parts. Cover the seed with some of the finely sifted compost, with a good dusting of sand on top. Submerge the pots so that they will be four inches below the surface of the water, the temperature of the water to be maintained at from 80 to 85 degrees. To successfully germinate Victoria Trickeri and Vic- toria Regia cut a small hole with the point of a sharp knife through the shell on the opposite side from where the germ is. An atmospheric night temperature of 60 to 65 degrees will be sufficient. After the seedlings have made two leaves, pot them singly into three-inch pots and repot into larger pots as required. When they become large enough the compost can consist of fibrous loam, well-decayed cow manure, fibrous peat and silver sand in equal parts. As they grow, submerge the pots just enough to keep the foliage floating on the surface of the water.

Sweet Peas

We are now entering the season when our sweet peas should be producing abundance of bloom. Now when they are in active growth they will welcome some liquid stimulant—either cow or sheep manure; a bushel of the former or a peck and half of the latter to about 50 gallons of water. Start by using once a week and in two or three weeks you can give them some twice a week as the roots will become more active. Keep them as near 50 degrees at night as you can with a rise of about 15 degrees during bright days. Keep the soil at an uniform degree of moisture and preserve a genial moisture in the atmosphere, but always give plenty of ventilation when possible without causing cold draughts. The beds can also have a light mulch of either cow or sheep manure mixed with an equal amount of soil. Keep down green-fly by proper fumigation every ten days.

Compost for Transplanting Seedlings

In order to avoid fungus it is always better to use new soil. All kinds of old soil used for previous crops under glass should be excluded in this work. On all well run places there is always an adequate supply of fresh soil to mix up compost for the filling of pans and flats. Most seedlings do well in a mixture of leaf mold, new soil and sand in equal parts.

Forcing Gladioli

John J. M. Farrell,

Dear Sir:—Please tell me through your valuable paper if a rose house with a temperature of 60 to 62 degrees would be all right to force Gladioli.

Yours truly,

Chillicothe, Mo.

R. L. ISHERWOOD.

In answer to Mr. Isherwood, a temperature of 60 to 62 would be too high to produce good spikes. All the small-bulbed gladioli such as Colvillei, The Bride, Peach Blossom, Crimson Queen, Mathilde, Blushing Bride and others, also the large-flowered sorts such as America, Augusta, May, Silver Trophy, Shakespeare and others, like a temperature of from 50 to 55 degrees at night with a rise to 65 to 70 degrees during sunshine. Under too high a temperature they become weak both in flower and foliage. Keep the temperature as near 50 degrees at night as possible as this is as high as they seem to care for. They also like more ventilation than is possible in a rose house. A carnation house temperature and surroundings will suit them better than a rose house.

Next Week:—Care of Chrysanthemums; Geraniums; Shading Orchids; Subtropical Bedding Stock; Young Carnations; Outside Frames.

Actinidia arguta

This handsome, climbing vine, one of the most beautiful of the forest plants, is native to the mountains of Japan. It is a very hardy plant, and is well adapted to our climate. It is a very hardy plant, and is well adapted to our climate. It is a very hardy plant, and is well adapted to our climate.

however, and we therefore take pains to supply the most reliable material, which will undoubtedly be of great value to our readers. A single specimen of the plant, which is a very hardy plant, and is well adapted to our climate. It is a very hardy plant, and is well adapted to our climate. It is a very hardy plant, and is well adapted to our climate.

Magnolia salicifolia

My attention has been called to the illustration of Magnolia salicifolia on the cover of the issue of HORTICULTURE for January 8, and I have been asked if this identical plant exists in the Arnold Arboretum. The note at the foot of the photograph gives that impression, which is erroneous. Magnolia salicifolia is not native to our country, as we might have expected at the Arboretum. The original plants in the Arboretum, grown from seed collected by Professor C. S. Sargent in Japan, in 1892, have long since died without flowering, and the plants now in the collection were either grafted from the original lot or are importations from a nursery in Holland. Probably some of the original seedlings still exist in establishments to which they were distributed from the Arboretum.

The illustration in question was taken from a plant growing in Kew Gardens in England, and was published in The Garden for April 18, 1914. Whether this plant was one of the original Sargent collection of 1892, or was a plant bought from a Japanese nursery in 1906, cannot be definitely stated by me, but it seems probable that it had the latter origin. At least this definite statement is made in the Botanical Magazine, for March, 1913, in connection with a pretty colored figure of the flowers there given. It is there stated that the flowers from which the figure was made came from plants purchased for Kew from a Japanese nursery in 1906, that a few flowers were borne in the spring of 1911, while a profuse crop of blossoms was produced in the spring of 1912. A photograph of a flowering branch of this was promptly given in The Gardeners' Chronicle for April 6, 1912.

In view of the above and other facts the statement by Mr. E. O. Orpet, in HORTICULTURE for January 29, that "all the plants in cultivation today are from seedlings raised by Jackson Dawson," from seed collected by Professor Sargent in 1892, is certainly incorrect and misleading to those who care for facts or reliable data in the history of horticulture in America. Poetical license in writing makes pleasant reading and has its place in literature. But we already know too little about the actual dates of introduction of many of our plants to be patient with misleading statements which many might accept as authoritative. Certainly the first known record of introduction is through seeds collected by Professor Sargent in 1892, but, as already stated, they have not furnished "all the plants in cultivation today."

With regard to the flowering of this interesting magnolia, it may be stated that two or three flowers were produced, on a small grafted plant, for the first time in the Arnold Arboretum, in the spring of 1915. So far as known the first flowers in this country were produced in April, 1910, on the estate of Mr. T. E. Proctor at Topsfield, Mass. These plants were procured from the Veitch nurseries in England, in 1903, and are now about eight feet high. These are probably plants propagated from some of the original lot raised at the Arnold Arboretum and sent to Veitch, who had failed to raise them from the same collection of seed. Mr. E. H. Wilson states that he saw a single flower, the first known in England, on this magnolia in the Veitch nursery in 1905, but there appears to be no published record of this fact.

It may interest readers of HORTICULTURE to know that this interesting magnolia is offered by Japanese nurseries, doing a large business with America, by the hundred at 20 to 25 cents each, in Yokohama. I saw them in such nurseries over ten years ago and know they were true to name.

This note is written because, to quote Mr. Orpet, in "making horticultural history" and "should the annals ever be written" it is desirable to have that history as nearly correct as possible.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Early Planting

Houses that are to be planted early, say in April or May, can be cut away back to the hard wood when cutting roses, leaving no eyes at all. The additional stem thus gained will be enough to make quite a difference in the grades of the roses cut, as most of those that were No. 1's formerly will now become extras, and the price they bring will be corresponding. It is only waste to leave the eyes when the houses are to be planted soon, for the growth that may come from the eyes left will not have time to develop into a bud before the plants are torn out. If the plants are to be replaced again it will be best to keep them clean, feeding them moderately all the time so that they will not lose any of their vitality. If the plants are to be thrown away it will be as well not to do any more to them than is necessary, and certainly no leaves should be picked and no manure applied, unless there happens to be an extra fine crop coming on which will take most of it out of the soil. If the plants are to be thrown away, it may also pay to run the houses a shade warmer being careful not to carry it too far, so that the buds will not get too small and bring very little in the market. Should they become small it will be best to cut them a shade tighter than is customary, and keep them for a day in a moderate ice box, and they will develop to nearly twice the size. This is done by a great many growers in the summer and can be done in the winter too, only the ice box must not be below 48 or the buds would not open much if at all.

Storing Manure

Where a dairy is a part of the establishment, the manure that is not used up in the greenhouses often becomes a problem to the man in charge. There is no set rule for storing manure as it all depends on local conditions. With level land sown to grass or green cover crop such as rye and vetch or wheat, it will be best to spread the manure right out on the field as it will be easier to do this now when the ground is frozen than later when it becomes soft. Where the land is hilly and no crops on it, it will be better to store in heaps here and there, making the hauling for spreading later as short as possible. These heaps should be nicely squared to look better and to keep as much water out of it as possible, and should the heap get hot turn it over every now and then. It will pay to do this for there is no better plant food than a good load of manure, the only trouble being that through neglect or ignorance a large part of the most valuable liquids and gases escape and the results later are not as good as was expected. An ideal way is to have a good manure shed with a concrete floor and a cistern to receive and store all leaching. This, however, is not to be had on most places but the manure pile should never to neglected.

Sheep Manure

As the sun gets stronger the rose plants will stand much more feeding than they formerly did and liquid manure may not always be applied when needed, also it may be impossible to mulch just then owing to the rush of other work. For this work a good brand of sheep manure can be used to good advantage, being careful to select a good brand, free from weeds and put out by a reliable dealer. With bonemeal and tankage going up in price it will be well to use a little sheep manure in place. It is rich in nitrogen so it had better not be applied to houses that are rather soft. It is also well not to apply too heavy a dose all at once; rather apply another as soon as the plants need more. The coarse manure can only be used in the liquid manure tank, but the pulverized is best applied right to the benches. See that there is enough mulch on these to hold it where it is put so that it will not wash all over when the benches are watered, thus giving some places a lot of it and others very little. It will be best to have the benches wet, or at least not very dry when it is applied, same as with any other material.

Keep After the Vents

As the sun is much stronger now the houses will heat up much quicker in the morning and the fires should be stopped much sooner. It will also be necessary to see that air is applied on time so that the houses do not get too hot. Mildew will be troublesome again soon so it is best to try to keep the plants clean, and this can only be done by careful use of the ventilators. It will be necessary to air the houses earlier in the morning and not close them at night until sunset. This cannot be done just yet, as ice will get under the ventilators, but as soon as the longer days of March are here it will be necessary, for if the houses are closed down too soon the air will become stagnant and smelling and the plants will mildew much quicker than if they have plenty of fresh air all the time.

Illustration January 8, was growing in the Arnold Arboretum. In the text it is clearly implied that this magnolia in flower is a stranger to Jackson Jackson. The photograph from which our illustration was made had never been used before. That a print from the same or a similar negative has been used previously elsewhere is no concern of ours. That there have been other introductions of M. speciosa to this country and to Europe we do not dispute, but the essential fact remains:—It was first introduced to cultivation from seeds collected in Japan by Professor Sargent and that Veitch's owed their stock to this same source is stated expressly in Hortus Veitchii, p. 370.—[Ed.]

Entered as second-class, after December 8, 1914, at the Post Office at Boston, Mass., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Fertilizer and insecticide dilemmas

for domestic or other available sources of supply. The latest encouragement in this direction comes from the Commissioner of Fisheries concerning large bone deposits which have been located on the Pribilof Islands but the practicability of utilizing these deposits in a commercial way has yet to be determined. The fertilizer problem has its counterpart in the insecticide industry where similar difficulties have come in on account of the scarcity and greatly increased price of certain staples. We learn from the N. Y. Commercial that paris green is practically out of the market in this country, resulting from the inability to obtain sufficient quantities of blue vitriol, as well as white arsenic for its manufacture. The insecticide people have troubles of their own, as can be plainly seen, and as for the horticultural people, eternal vigilance to nip all insect raids in their early stages, seems to be the only safe line of action.

now

The advancing price of window glass, white lead and other materials entering into the construction of greenhouses suggests the advisability of early action on the part of parties con-

The following are quotations from "Pittsburgh Mail," a paper published by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company at its head office, reports received directly in view also about demand for flat glass, and expert opinions and forecasts after further advances in getting into actual production quantities. The advance in weight had good consequences of the strong optical material in use here and the present price situation generally is a very fine one. The time is long, also steel and mainly as other materials entering into the construction and equipment of appliances are at present high priced with no prospect of a reaction. We understand that the annual tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation is at present a little over 8,000,000 tons. In addition to the present high cost of materials, labor undoubtedly will be scarce and high priced next spring and summer. Thousands have gone to Europe to join the colors, and practically none are coming from Europe. The country is busy, and thousands are employed making munitions, bridges, and other construction work. Factories of all kinds are now being operated to capacity. Strikes will certainly follow these conditions, and there will probably be no relief from this upset condition inside of a year or two. So all considerations of prudence and foresight would seem to favor proceeding without delay in the matter of any contemplated building. There is nothing in the situation which suggests the slightest advantage in delay now.

Time to call a halt

Time to call a halt

It is stated that at the annual meeting of the Association of Official Horticultural Inspectors a resolution was adopted and sent to the Federal Horticultural Board urging "that the federal quarantine be strengthened and that an absolute quarantine be placed on all plants with soil about the roots, except such as are introduced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for experiment and those to be held in quarantine for a reasonable period." There is nothing in the report to indicate that men in any way connected with practical horticulture or representative of the interests affected had any voice in this decision which certainly has a very drastic tone. No reasonable horticulturist has any fault to find with the principle of which our existing inspection and quarantine laws are based. But it is an accepted truth that "Best things carried to excess are wrong," and here seems to us to be an example of excess that may justifiably be interpreted as contemplating arbitrary oppression. The impossibility of importing palms, araucarias, bay trees, rhododendrons, azaleas and numerous other horticultural stocks, should such a proposition become a law, needs no proving and should the firms who import these goods from abroad or the growers who plant and cultivate them resent this new drive against their business as an unwarranted persecution they can hardly be blamed under the circumstances. Much has already happened from the operation of the rigorous rules now existing, to dishearten the horticulturist and retard the progress of horticulture in this country. We have seen scions of rare trees and shrubs from abroad that had been completely killed by the superfluous cyaniding process they had been submitted to in Washington. It seems an injustice that the florist and nursery interests should have to suffer so much from theoretical and often panicky legislation based largely on individual notions and put in effect by over-zealous public officials who know little and appear to care little as to the mischief caused. If the Society of American Florists is looking for an opportunity to do something for the industries which it represents, the conditions here commented upon present an excellent opening.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

LANCASTER COUNTY FLORISTS' CLUB.

One of two things seems certain; either 3.30 is a more popular hour than 1 o'clock, or W. B. Girvin has a magnetic attraction to draw a crowd, for our visiting trips this winter have not been overcrowded numerically, but this time we had a full twenty-five and they were all well repaid.

Carnations are, of course, the principal feature at this as at all Lancaster County places and his Matchless proves that this variety is a profitable one as the main crop was just off, but enough flowers coming to keep up expenses until the second large crop would follow, which will be about Mothers' Day. Beacon, while not quite so good as last season, has produced its quota and is soon ready for pulling out to make room for young stock. Mrs. C. W. Ward is producing some mighty fine blooms, but along with them about five per cent. of splits and poorly colored flowers. Mrs. Akehurst is highly thought of and will be planted very extensively next season, in fact pretty nearly to the exclusion of all other pinks. Gloriosa is in good shape as well as Pink Delight, but successors that will produce more cuttings are being looked for. Chrysanthemum and carnation cuttings and Asparagus plumosus are a feature here and potted stock runs into large figures.

Our club members seem rather lacking in due courtesy and hospitality to the gentlemen who come to give us valuable talks at the expense of their own time and money, but there is one place where we do not fall down and, in proportion to the membership of the club, hold the record for the U. S., and that is in turning out to hear our different speakers. Mr. M. C. Wright of the Lord & Burnham Co., who was the speaker on this occasion, certainly had a large and appreciative audience. The vote of thanks at the end was a real one from the heart. The slides accompanying the lecture were highly appreciated and added much to the body of the paper.

On the exhibition table were sweet peas from E. P. Hostetter of Manheim and Purity Freesia from John R. Shreiner and Rudolph Nagle proved to us by his vase of mignonette that he knew the business well enough to make his first attempt a complete success.

Visitors were Dennis Connor and M. C. Wright of the Lord & Burnham Co., T. J. Nolan of the King Construction Co., Mr. Kenny of The Cumberland Floral Co., Harrisburg, Pa.; E. S. Rutt of Elizabethtown, Pa., and several others.

In addition to the routine business of the club a proposition was presented by H. Horter Fricke for The Philadelphia Press in relation to a special for Flower Show week and in which the club has taken a five-inch double column space for general publicity purposes and in which will appear a full list of our membership. It was also voted that we buy 100 tickets for the use of our club members, and arrangements are on foot for a Lancaster Day with special trains and special rates.

The Programme Committee, through its chairman H. K. Rohrer, has in store for us next meeting, March 16th, an illustrated lecture by Richard Vincent, Jr., on the bulb industry in Holland, and we shall have our wives and sweethearts at this meeting.

President Schroyer seems determined to give the girls a chance at our bachelor florists this present leap year and appointed a committee to arrange for a Ladies' Night the Thursday after Easter, to take the place of our April meeting, which would fall three days before Easter—an inopportune time for most of us.

ALBERT M. HERR.

ST. LOUIS CLUB AND SOCIETY MEETINGS.

The County Growers' Club meet on Wednesday, March 1st at the Eleven Mile House. A lot of business is to be transacted, so says acting President Edwards.

The Retail Florists' Association met on Monday night, Feb. 21, at Mission Sun Garden. President Young presided and the attendance was large.

The officers of the Florist Club meet next week, Thursday, March 2d, at Secretary Beneke's home, 3648 Humphrey street. Plans will be mapped out for an interesting meeting for March 9th.

W. N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., will address the Rhode Island Horticultural Society members and others on Friday evening, March 3, at Manning Hall, Brown University, Providence, on the subject of "Beautifying the Home Grounds."

CONNECTICUT NURSERYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

The Tenth Annual Meeting of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association was held at Hotel Garde, Hartford, Conn., Feb. 18, President W. E. Campbell presiding. The report of the treasurer showed the financial condition of the association to be in first-class shape. W. E. Campbell of Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn., was re-elected president; F. S. Baker, of New Haven, vice-president; F. L. Thomas, of The Pequod Nursery Co., Meriden, re-elected treasurer.

At the afternoon session the following program of entertainment and instruction was carried out: Address by W. W. McCartney, "Standardization of Nursery Stock"; address by Prof. Ralph C. Hawley, "Results of Our Appearance Before the Federal Board in Washington, D. C."; address by J. R. Barnes, "Possibilities of Machinery for Reducing Cost of Labor in the Nursery Business"; address by Dr. Geo. P. Clinton, "Hereroecious Rusts Found in Connecticut Nurseries"; address by Stephen Hoyt, "Is the Motor Truck Practical for Our Business"; address by Dr. W. E. Britton, "The Problem of Inspection Quarantine."

We were disappointed that two of our expected guests and speakers were unable to be present, viz.: Alex. Cumming, Jr., Cromwell, who was to speak on "Commercial Handling of Roses," and W. B. Hatch, who was to speak on "Suggestions From an Experienced Landscape Gardener."

The President made the following appointments: Standing Committees for year 1916—Legislative, F. E. Coe, chairman, New Haven; Stephen Hoyt, New Canaan; J. R. Barnes, Yalesville; Executive, W. W. McCartney, chairman, New Haven, Gustave Minge, Hartford; F. S. Baker, New Haven; Entertainment, Paul M. Hubbard, Bristol, chairman; Charles Turner, Hartford; E. A. Brassill, Hartford.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The February meeting of the New London Horticultural Society was held on February 10th when Chas. H. Totty of Madison, N. J., spoke on the "Culture and Care of Hardy Chrysanthemums," giving a list of the best varieties. The tables were filled with plants and cut flowers, including cinerarias, primulas, cyclamen, freesias, carnations, etc. The secretary announced that Professor Guley, of Storrs' College, would speak at the March meeting on "Spraying and Pruning." H. E. L.

At the monthly meeting of the Medford Horticultural Society on Feb. 15, J. K. M. L. Farquhar lectured before one of the largest audiences in the history of the Society. Hon. Wilton B. Fay presided. The subject of the lecture was the Gardens of China and Japan. Many fine pictures were thrown on the screen, and Mr. Farquhar drew attention to the manner in which all

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Philadelphia, March 25th-April 2d.

The Hotel Walton has been chosen as hotel headquarters for the National Flower Show.

Several additions have been made to the Schedule in the way of special prizes. Geo. C. Thomas, Jr., Chestnut Hill, Pa., offers a prize of $50 in the classes for private growers, for the best collection of cut roses, comprising the varieties, Killarney, or Double Pink Killarney, Lady Alice Stanley, My Maryland, Jonkheer J. L. Mock, Ophelia and Mrs. Aaron Ward. He also offers in the same section a $50 prize for the best collection of climbing roses in flower.

A splendid location has been decided upon for the exhibits of retailers, and J. J. Habermehl's Sons, of Philadelphia, have reserved 600 sq. ft. in this section. This reservation, with the others previously reported, insures a good representation of retailers.

The orchestra is to be placed on a platform over the aisle leading from the main floor to the main floor extension, a position which is very good acoustically, and forms a connecting link between the two floors.

The ladies having in charge the Tea Garden at the New York Show are arranging to visit the Philadelphia Show in a body, the friendly rivalry existing between the two cities in regard to their respective tea gardens creating quite an interest in the entertainment features of both shows.

The Boy Scouts of Philadelphia will officiate as ushers at the show, and will place themselves at the service of the visitors with their usual ability.

The Schedule for the Show includes an aquarium exhibit such as never before attempted. Aquatic plants will, of course, be a feature in this section. There are over fifty classes in this section, and it will prove to be a unique feature of the Show.

The Final Schedule is now in the printer's hands, and will be distributed about March 1st.

The trade space on the main floor is practically now all reserved, but some excellent locations on the main floor extension, which will be a popular section of the Show, are still available.

JOHN YOUNG, Secretary.

CHICAGO TO PHILADELPHIA.

At the February meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club the Pennsylvania Railroad was selected as the route to the National Flower Show, the club party leaving the Union Station, on Saturday, March 25, the opening day of the show, at 3.15 P. M., due Philadelphia 5.50 P. M. the following day. The individual fare in either direction, between Chicago and Philadelphia, is $19.10 and the party fare for 10 or more people on one ticket is $17.39 per capita between the same points in either direction. ### NEWS FOR NURSERYMEN.

Nurserymen everywhere are reminded that the forty-first annual convention of the American Association will be held in Milwaukee, Wis., June 28th, 29th and 30th. Unusual interest attaches to this announcement. At the Detroit convention last year a new constitution was adopted, the object sought being to increase the value of the organization to members by the larger scope given to its activities, embracing increased benefits to members, not the least of which is intended a greater volume of business and better profits. In fact the American Association of Nurserymen as it exists today under the reconstruction plan decided upon at the Detroit meeting occupies an unique position before the trade, and it is evident that the men which the Association expects to retain as members think more of their membership because of the action referred to than ever in the past.

A very comprehensive article, written by J. R. Mayhew, answering the question "Why I should Retain My Membership in the American Association of Nurserymen?" has appeared in some of the trade publications, and sets forth in simple but convincing language the claims of the Association upon every reputable nurseryman in the United States. Those seeking full information as to benefits and terms of membership are asked to communicate with John Hall, 204 Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y., secretary. The convention will be a very business-like assembly, with a program of great merit.

THE PROOF

of a paper's influence as a business promoter for its advertisers is NOT its numerical distribution but the Character, Intelligence and Reliability of its Readers. In this respect HORTICULTURE claims first place among the professional gardening and florist papers of this country. Following are a few selections from many approving letters received during the past few weeks at the office of HORTICULTURE from men who possess all the above qualifications.

HORTICULTURE Publishing Company:

Dear Sir—Enclosed find one dollar, my subscription for year of 1916. I consider the HORTICULTURE of Boston the biggest bargain of all the horticultural press and I eagerly look for my weekly copy. More power to you, and may your subscribers be greatly increased. Yours very truly, Oakdale, N. Y.

C. W. K.

HORTICULTURE Publishing Company:

Dear Sir—Enclosed is post office order for one dollar for my renewal for HORTICULTURE. As I do not want to lose a single copy I send my subscription at once. I have been a subscriber to HORTICULTURE for at least ten years I think, and that is proof enough that I can't do without it.

HORTICULTURE Publishing Company:

Gentlemen—Enclosed please find one dollar, currency, in payment for subscription to HORTICULTURE for the year 1916. I think much of this paper and believe that it comes as near giving me the worth of my money as anything that I buy. Very truly yours, Burlington, Ia.

S.

HORTICULTURE Publishing Company:

Please find enclosed one dollar, renewing my subscription for HORTICULTURE another year. In regard to HORTICULTURE, will say that it is first-class in its special field, and in particular its market reports are up-to-date and reliable.

Belleville, Ill.

HORTICULTURE Publishing Company:

When renewing a few days ago I forgot to ask for a copy of Index to last volume. Please put me on your permanent list for index to each volume, as issued. I have every copy of HORTICULTURE from the first issue, and would as soon think of destroying a very valuable horticultural book as to destroy a volume of HORTICULTURE.

Flower Market Reports

The weather of the past BOSTON week has hurt business in general a great deal.

The market is very slow and but for a little clean-up on Washington's Birthday things would be in a slump. Everything but sweet peas and lilacs seem to be very much overstocked. Snapdragon is very much more plentiful than hitherto, and has taken quite a drop. Darwin tulips have made their appearance and sell fairly well. Last year was the first in which these beautiful flowers were seen in appreciable commercial quantity in this market. There can be no question of their rapidly growing popularity. There are many odds and ends of unusual flowers to be seen in the florists' show windows at this season and those growers who run these little tidbits as a side line are always sure of an appreciative clientele in Boston town.

Stock is plentiful enough BUFFALO and business in general has not been up to standard. Daffodils have been over-plentiful. Saturday's "bargain sales" were light even at the reduced price. The carnation situation has changed and these now are abundant enough, with prices on the decline. Roses are gradually coming in better, but no Beauties are seen. Lilies are fine. Shipping trade has been a trifle better.

Business is normal. A CHICAGO steady flow of trade uses up the flowers, of which there is now a large supply of nearly all kinds. After Valentine Day a natural easing up of rush orders followed and shipping, as well as local business, fell off. The week following brought in a great deal of stock, particularly carnations and prices are much lower, especially to the buyer on the spot. There is a large supply of split carnations, which solves the task of making up cheap funeral work, and a good grade of the same flower is carried away in quantity for two dollars per hundred. Bulbous stock sells well considering the quantity. There is an immense amount coming daily and little if any is lost. There is a good selection of roses, most winter varieties being in crop now. Gardenias, cattleyas and lily of the valley are not in excess of demand. Sweet peas are very scarce, the buds having fallen badly and growers are getting discouraged. Violets sell only moderately well. There is a good variety of green which each year becomes more of a necessity.

Spring days and sunshine, and the cuts are now heavier and are easily sufficient for all requirements. The cut of roses is now large and the chances are it will be much heavier within a fortnight. American Beauties are good and plentiful. Receipts in carnations are very large. Lilies and callas are all fairly plentiful, also good tulips, jonquils, daffodils and Dutch hyacinths. Lily of the valley receipts in excess of the demand. Narcissus, outdoor daffodils, violets, orchids and forget-me-nots are all in abundance.

CUT FLOWERS

NEW YORK

The soft pedal will do for the market story this week. Washington's Birthday, as usual, called for a certain amount of patriotic floral work but not much impression was made on the general situation which is one of moderate demand and increasing supply on most lines excepting cattleyas and gardenias. There is yet a fair period of time for floral activities before the entry of sober Lent but lengthening days and warmer sunshine will do their part in promoting flower production and reducing market values and we may reasonably expect to see heavier receipts and lower prices in the wholesale markets. The game henceforth should be to promote sales and increase the output at retail by all possible means including popular low prices, so that accumulations may be forestalled and prevented as much as possible and the surplus disposed of through legitimate and respectable channels.

There has been PHILADELPHIA little change in market conditions here since last week. Trading has continued reasonably brisk, although a little handicapped by the zero weather, which interfered a good deal with the transient, and lots of shipments arrived frozen. American Beauty roses have improved greatly both in quantity and quality and the shortage of the past three weeks is apparently over for good. Russells also are much better and the whole rose situation is vastly improved. Carnations continue in their heyday and were never better either as to quality or quantity. Sweet peas are coming in very nicely and moving off well. Violets are rather draggy. There is enough lily of the valley to go around but the rather high prices ruling lately have shunted some of the demand on to other flowers. Pips are getting scarcer—so that there is little indication of this article being cheaper for some time to come. There are fewer lilies around but for all that the price remains more moderate than it was. Daffodils are a feature of the market. Plenty of them and of very fine quality. In greens the only ripple on the surface is a higher tendency in smilax strings.

Flower Market Reports

Market conditions remain about the same as last week with practically no variations in the scales of quantity, quality or prices. There are plenty of flowers to supply the demand which continues sufficient to create an all-round spirit of optimism. While extravagant decorations for formal social affairs are now past, there seems to be a continuous round of semi-formal entertaining. However, it is funeral work which makes the biggest inroads on stock of practically all kinds. The brighter, clearer skies have served to make a favorable impress, especially on the long-suffering roses of all varieties.

The local wholesale ST. LOUIS market is in very good condition, everything in plenty, fine weather and transient trade excellent. Prices have gone down somewhat since Valentine's Day and the retailers are buying most liberally at present. Violets can be bought as cheap as $2 per 1000 in big lots. Sweet peas hold up in price. In the bulb line demand is most excellent at all times at fair prices.

There were quite a large number of novelty flowers on the market for the Washington's Birthday business and these met with a better sale than usual. Included in the list were cornflowers, which cleaned up very well; nasturtiums, white and yellow daisies, white violets, and forget-me-nots which went into the making of red, white and blue combinations. The demand for cattleyas was very satisfactory and the price held firm with about enough to go around. The price on red carnations for the holiday was about $6. Sweet peas were in heavy supply and moved well. Red roses were very popular for the holiday work and these cleaned up quickly. More American Beauty roses are to be had now, but not of the best quality. Violets were not in very good demand. Narcissus is scarce. Potted lilacs now to be had are as good as have ever been seen in Washington. There has been a considerable scarcity of greens. It seems that the local producers are temporarily out of maidenhair, string smilax and Asparagus plumosa. Forsythia has been in quite a good demand.

Ben George, Jr., Cincinnati, continues to improve in his recovery from his recent attack of pneumonia.

Some Experiences With Sunburst, Russell and Mock.

good and bad, of those introduced since the advent of this famous yellow rose is, I take it, what you have in mind. Quite a number of varieties believed to have forcing possibilities have appeared during this time; some have made good, others are succeeding in some places, while failing in other localities. A case in point is the celebrated Mrs. Chas. Russell. This rose has made good, if we may credit all that it is said about it by the Chicago growers; in fact, growers distant from Chicago are succeeding admirably with it, while on the other hand, failure has attended the growing of this rose by some very up-to-date and experienced growers, and with a goodly number has disappointment followed their best efforts. A recent visit south was instructive and of great interest as pertains to Mrs. Chas. Russell; it was, in the great majority of the places in the south, doing remarkably well, and thriving amazingly in a few places. It occurred to your speaker that the rose likes abundant sunshine and considerable heat to do its best, but your club members are better able to discuss this point than myself. This rose has great merit and is well liked by those who appreciate a long stemmed variety that possesses good keeping qualities. Those two qualities certainly give it standing with critical rose buyers. The Waban Rose Conservatories are sending out two sports from Mrs. Russell, which most of you have had opportunity to inspect and criticize. These two varieties, Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Dark Pink Russell, should certainly commend themselves to all who do Russell well. The last named, maintaining as it does, its fine rich color, should make it a dangerous rival of its parent. Mrs. Thayer certainly will be in demand, and I predict a goodly number will be grown in the near future.

The near future. Jonkherr J. L. Mock is a variety with an uncertain future—it certainly is a most magnificent rose in the spring time, when there is sufficient sun heat to open its buds. I thought the vase of this rose staged at the New York show in 1914 by Robert Simpson was the handsomest vase of roses ever staged. As a spring and summer rose it should find a place, but it gives too many deformed buds in dark weather to be profitable.

Richmond's Rivals.

There have been many entries in the mond, but they are having a hard time of it. Milady, as grown by a very few, would seem desirable, but it has its faults, and with your speaker it has not behaved satisfactorily. W. J. Keimel and Adolph Beckmann seem to be able to get results. I think Mr. Keimel was undecided some time ago whether or not to go on with the variety, but this gentleman finally said: "I will continue to grow it until I find a better red."

all who want an improved Killarney. Lady Alice Stanley is a beautiful decorated pilot, and is concerned to see the best. There is a high class society and we should take a good price in the retail shops. It has fine crops and is free from any tendency to weakness of growth. We shall grow it in great quantities for coming year.

Killarney Queen has had a meteoric existence and is grown in limited quantities only; setting two or three plants together is urged, a few claiming when so planted that it gives a profitable cut.

There have been other sports of Killarney, viz.: Dark Red and the Double Killarney, but these two sorts have been dropped almost entirely.

Double White Killarney has a place and is considered by a great many growers to be a decided acquisition in a white forcing rose. It is certainly superior in summer to the old white Killarney in its keeping qualities.

Euler and Tipperary.

Madame P. Euler is finding favor with a great many growers on the Pacific slope, and under the bright sunshine and climatic conditions of California it will make a large place for itself. Our firm was the first to test and try out this rose after its introduction; we found a small percentage perfected themselves, but the major portion were bull-headed, as the growers use the term. If it succeeds in the eastern part of the United States, I shall be pleased to know it, for it is a beautiful rose when nicely developed.

Lady Hillingdon has gone by the board, so to speak; a few are still growing it, but its tendency to fly open and its lack of petals, have been the determining factors in its non-use.

If a fine corsage and bowl rose is desired I can commend Tipperary as filling the bill. This rose is free in its production of bloom, and is greatly esteemed by our two stores, many preferring it to Mrs. Aaron Ward.

Ophelia—the Ideal Forcing Rose.

Ophelia.—Certainly this magnificent variety deserves all the praise bestowed upon it; a seedling of Antoine Revoire x Taft, having all the good qualities of its parent, without any of its faults. Surely this rose comes nearer being the ideal cut flower forcing rose, measuring up to Killarney in its productiveness, but without its tendency to mildew. As one noted rose grower puts it: "The finest and most useful of all roses." One noted grower said: "What we want is a pink, a red and a white Ophelia, then surely the rose millennium will have come." At Richmond, we have selected out of 2,200 seedlings flowered this present season, some 20 or more to test further. In a cross between Ophelia and Mrs. Geo. Sawyer we seem to have found the good growing qualities of Ophelia with the fine shape and coloring of Sawyer. I might tell you of other seedlings, but if nothing unforeseen happens, we hope to be able to exhibit the coming fall some of the results of patient, careful cross breeding.

Mrs. Geo. Sawyer, with many, is considered the finest of all pink roses.

Prince E. C. de Arenberg is unsatisfactory in many ways; it opens wide unnecessarily on exposure to the heat of a room; it is a fine, strong grower, but the size of the bud does not measure up with its fine foliage and heavy stem.

A few more petals, and a little more scarlet in its color scheme, would have put Crimson Queen in the front rank as a forcing variety.

Francis Scott Key is liked by a few, but I predict its speedy eclipse as a forcing rose.

Hadley is a rose that has had extensive trial and is a grand variety when well done. It certainly is fine when grown as it is done in its home town—nothing could be more desirable in a red rose if it were productive enough; its great fault is the unusual amount of blind wood produced, especially in winter. I fear this rose will not hold place for the reason just mentioned.

Hoosier Beauty, as grown for two years at Richmond, Ind., has fully sustained the claims made by the Dorners: in fact, visitors who have noted its behavior throughout the winter with us, have only words of praise for the variety. We have had most gratifying results from the 10,000 plants grown by our firm the present season. It has its faults like every other variety, but its virtues offset any tendency to weakness of stem in the short growths of the variety. Unlike Hadley, it does not produce any blind wood. It is fine in color and is a wonderful keeper and shipper. I understand failure has attended the growing of this rose by some of your large growers hereabouts, but further experience I think will put the variety in the front row of forcing reds. Too heavy feed and too much heat are the two things that have caused disappointment. It is a wonderful hot weather rose.

The Killarneys.

One of the roses most criticized has been Killarney Brilliant. This rose for some reason or other, did not move off in growth the first season after dissemination; up to December we thought the variety totally lacking in vigor, but after that time and up to the present, its growth and flowering qualities are all that could be desired—certainly its fine color commends it to all, for it does not have the faults of its parent as regards color. I cheerfully commend Killarney Brilliant to and is deservedly popular with all who love a fine bud and a beautiful rose, but it has a tendency to mildew without provocation under seemingly good culture. It is a rose requiring careful handling of the ventilators.

Some Newcomers.

Chas. H. Totty offers Gorgeous and Cleveland, two of the Hugh Dickson productions. These are being put out with the endorsement of Mr. Totty, which certainly is warrant for their introduction.

A. N. Pierson is sending out a Red Radiance; also a deeper colored sport from My Maryland. These should be valuable additions for summer cut blooms.

Tip-top is a charmingly colored little gem of a rose in the way of a Polyantha. Nothing imaginable can be more beautiful than the color scheme of this little rose—a corsage made of this little beauty captivates the most fastidious. This variety has only one defect; it lacks stiffness of stem, but as all corsage roses are wired this does not militate against its usefulness.

The Hugh Dickson rose, winner of the $1,000 prize at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, is a rich, pure yellow, with extremely long petals and a shapely bud. If it has sufficient petalage, it has all the ear-marks of a great rose for forcing. It certainly made a deep impression upon my mind.

You all know about Champ Weiland and you who are here can speak, for I have not seen it.

Changing Conditions.

It is interesting to note the changing conditions in business; in fact, in all lines of trade, and our particular line is no exception to the rule. The rose will always have first place in our calling, and it is well that we, as growers of roses, are catching on to the fact that novelty is one of the potent factors in roses as well as in ribbons, silks and the trimming for the ladies' hats. When in Lyons, France, in 1913, I had opportunity, through the courtesy of a friend, to get an insight into the silk business. I found that hundreds of persons were employed in the designing and pattern rooms of the great establishments. Effort was made to get new designs and new combinations in color schemes—novelty was the one thing aimed at. If change, novelty and patterns were so important in silk goods, why are they not equally important in the rose? Men should attempt to give originality to our business by catering to this unquenchable thirst for something new and distinct. We have in the past been supinely indifferent to this phase of our business, but a new era has dawned, and this means good and not ill, for our business. Rose growers are at work in more earnest effort than ever to meet this new feature of our trade.

We are certainly indebted to Alex. Montgomery, John Cook, the Dicksons, but especially to Pernet Ducher, for what they have done in the way of giving us new varieties of roses. We hear of efforts being made along this line in various parts of our country, and this augurs well for the future of the rose and rose growers.

PAN-PACIFIC PRESS ASSOCIATION, LTD.

San Francisco, Calif.

October 16, 1915.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Horticulture Jury, of which the writer was a member, awarded you a Gold Medal for your Insecticides, and when you take into consideration the fact that that Jury, outside of the writer, was composed of some of the famous experts of the world, you will realize the importance of this award. Verification of this may be obtained from Mr. George A. Dennison, Chief of Horticulture, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The writer has been requested to furnish a list of the articles which the Jury endorsed by their action in awarding prizes because of merit. This request comes from representatives of foreign countries and states.

Respectfully yours,

A BOOK THAT ALL WILL WANT.

The American Rose Annual is now on the press of J. Horace McFarland and the book will be ready for distribution soon after March 1st. As soon as it has been received we shall give it an adequate notice but inasmuch as the Annual represents a very distinct advance in the handling of the literature of rose culture in America, and is hoped to be the first of a series of Annuals which will promote rose growing in America at least as efficiently as it has been done in England for England, we take pleasure in calling attention to the publication before its appearance. The book is published by the American Rose Society and edited by J. Horace McFarland, for the society. Dr. L. H. Bailey wrote the dedication and there is an appropriate preface and an article on the literature of the rose by the editor. Among the other contributors to its pages are President S. S. Pennock of the American Rose Society, Charles Downing Lay, George C. Thomas, Jr., Prof. E. A. White, Dr. W. Van Fleet, E. H. Wilson, Jesse A. Currey, Robert Pyle, Prof. H. H. Whitzel, Prof. C. R. Crosby, Prof. M. B. Leonard, G. A. Parker, Dr. A. C. Beal, F. L. Mulford, Theodore Wirth, E. W. Reid, Rev. A. H. Scott, W. C. Egan, Prof. R. T. Stevens, H. Harold Hume, E. N. Reasoner, Rev. E. M. Mills, R. G. Gamwell, W. R. Pierson, C. H. Totty, John Welch Young, W. F. Gude, and others. There are ten plates, including two colored plates, one of which is of M. H. Walsh's rose Excelsa, which is used as a frontispiece.

Each member of the American Rose Society will receive a copy of the Annual in due course. The edition, which is considerable in size, covers only actual needs, and no doubt the book will be out of print within three months. Associate members (those who pay only one dollar for a year's membership, the American Rose Annual and admission to all the Rose Shows held under the auspices of the society, for one dollar.

The articles by Dr. Van Fleet and E. H. Wilson are of unusual value, and it will be found, we think, that the Annual presents also, for the first time, the complete story with respect to rose insects and the lamentable lack of scientific attention so far to the control of rose diseases.

The F. C. Van Dusen Layout at Zumbria Heights, Lake Minnetonka, Minn.

A Lake Minnetonka Greenhouse An Interesting Layout

"A WHOOP! a do! et, and a look over" (as they say in Virginia), from the Goodrich house at Zumbria Heights, Minnesota, is the Van Dusen layout.

The available location on the sloping shores of Lake Minnetonka, made it impossible to lay out the house to greatest advantage; but as you see from the illustrations, every advantage was taken of what advantages there were.

The main house has a partition running lengthwise, which accounts for the second line of ventilators on the north roof.

And now, here is a secret. We didn't build these houses. We never have even seen them—that is to say no one had, until I went out there last fall and spent the morning and took these photos. Why then, are we advertising a house we never built? Because we furnished all the materials for it. They were shipped from our Western Factory just out of Chicago.

If anyone's houses can be put up satisfactorily by a general builder, ours can. Not more than two out of every hundred private houses we sell, however, are handled that way. When costs are accurately kept, it is bound to figure out that we can do the erecting for less than anyone else.

It's only reasonable.

It's our business.

It's just sixty years since we started building greenhouses.

Let's talk over together that new house you are thinking about.

Say when and where, and we will be there.

The New Rose, Mrs. Bayard Thayer

There are few roses that will make a tree of large flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front since we introduced Mrs. Charles Russell of which the new claimant is a sport. The new rose is just exactly what rose gardeners are looking for. The flowers are large and sweet and are borne in great numbers. It won the American Rose Society medal over a strong class of competitors at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points.

Neglect did this!

Have your trees examined NOW!

Let tree surgery save them!

— but be sure to get safe tree surgery. Unscientific "tree doctoring" by irresponsibles and "jacks-of-all-trades" is a greater cause for tree ruin even than neglect itself.

For safe tree surgery, for methods that are scientifically accurate and mechanically perfect, for work that eliminates experiment, for the services of finished experts, for work that endures, take the dependable and satisfying course and go to —

Davey Tree Surgeons

H. A. Davey, President of the Northern Ohio Traction and Light Co., Cleveland, O., writes: "It is now six years since you treated the trees on my farm at Willoughby, and I am more than satisfied with the results." In our files are hundreds of similarly enthusiastic letters. The U. S. Government, after exhaustive investigation, officially chose Davey experts as best. Every year of neglect adds 10 per cent to 25 per cent to the cost of saving trees. Have your trees examined NOW. Write today for free examination and booklet illustrating Davey Tree Surgery.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Care of Chrysanthemums

Get in whatever cuttings are needed at once and just as soon as they have roots half an inch long get them into the soil so that the future plant will not be handicapped at the start by being weakened in the cutting bench. Do not leave them in the sand a week after they should have been potted. In potting young stock from the cutting bench use no bone or artificial fertilizer whatever in the soil as it will only sour it. Fresh loam with a third of rotted leaf mold will be an ideal compost for the first potting. If leaf mold cannot be procured some decayed cow manure is perhaps the next best thing. Give ventilation just as soon as they are rooted, in abundance whenever possible.

Geraniums

Any spare moments and available bench space can now be used in getting geraniums potted. From now until May they will do a great deal of growing and plants of most varieties seemingly small and puny, may yet be grown into acceptable size and vigor. Cuttings in need of potting should be attended to before they become potbound. Thoroughly decomposed manure, or that from a spent potbed, may form one-third of the compost used. Add a 4-inch potful of fine bone to three bushels of compost. When first potted they can stand pot to pot, but they will soon need some spacing. The plants cannot have too light a house. Give plenty of ventilation. While geraniums like to dry out once in a while they should never become in an over dry state.

Shading Orchids

Where orchids can be fitted with cloth or lath shades, and these can be removed during cloudy and dark weather the plants have a wonderful advantage over those grown under glass which has to be shaded with kerosene and lead or even lime wash. Cypripediums need a little shade and phalaenopsis should never be exposed to bright sunshine. Give Miltonia vexillaria and odontoglossums the full sun until March 10 when a little shade may be necessary. Cattleyas and laelias are better with full sunlight for some time yet. Never mind if they turn a little pale in color, they will grow and flower better than such as are kept in the shade all the time. Where any orchids are showing the worst of the sun's rays add a little shade from time to time.

Next Week: Achiemenes; Bedding Plants; Gardenias; Phalaenopsis; Sowing Fern Spores; Propagating Stevia.

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS.

Our cover illustration this week shows a well-grown specimen plant of one of the new French hydrangeas as grown by F. H. Dressel, Weehawken, N. J., for the Christmas trade. Mr. Dressel says he plants them outside in May. Some of these he potted in August, cut away half of the leaves and put them in the greenhouse in a 70-degree temperature in October and they came in just right for the holidays. The remainder of the plants were taken out of the ground and potted in October and under similar conditions these, too, were in full bloom at Christmas.

ACTINIDIA ARGUTA.

Our illustration of the use of this

Subtropical Bedding Stock

Nothing perhaps is of more value for the center of a group than one or more specimens of Musa, of which there are quite a number of splendid sorts. M. ensete is one of the best. M. superba is as beautiful but more compact and so is M. zebrina. The eulalias such as E. japonica foliis striatis and E. japonica zebrina, all fine ornamental grasses, are useful and so are the caladiums and also crotons, palms, bamboos, etc., can be used. Most of these subtropical plants like plenty of heat so in order to keep them at top speed in growth give them not less than 60 degrees at night. The out of town florist usually has customers who have extensive grounds and lawns where such plantings can be made use of to the best advantage. Keep in a temperature of from 65 to 70 degrees at night and on a bench where they can have a vigorous bottom heat, all those that are backward in growth.

Young Carnations

Just as soon as cuttings have made about half an inch of roots they should be potted. After they are well rooted, remaining in the sand is liable to weaken them because there is little nourishment in the sand. When taking out the cuttings give them a slight shake to dislodge the sand from the roots and don't take out more than you can pot in an hour or two. Press the soil firmly and do not fill the pots too full, but be sure there is a little loose soil on top to prevent baking. Use fresh soil that has been exposed to the weather and to lighten it add a little sand and old rotten manure from the hotbed if you have it. Screen it through  $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch mesh and see that it is about right in moisture. Place the potted plants in a temperature of about 55 degrees and when well established they can be kept cooler; 45 to 50 degrees will do at night. Keep shaded until rooted, then they should have full sunlight.

Outside Frames

With careful ventilation, protection and watering, there is no better place at this time of the year than the frames for all carnations, chrysanthemums, pansies, daisies and other cool blooded stock. When spring comes we all find ourselves very much crowded so the frames become an important factor.

hardy climbing vine as a hedge plant in last week's issue of the HORTICULTURE has apparently created much interest and we are reminded of the unintentional omission of the very essential information that the hedge portrayed in the picture is on the grounds of the Mt. Desert Nurseries at Bar Harbor, Me., which places the hardiness of the plant beyond question.

The catalogue postage bill

The bill to modify the postage on catalogues, printed price lists, etc., which we publish in full in our seed trade notes, is one in which the seedsmen are vitally concerned. It is identical we believe, with the proposed bill submitted by Mr. Therkildson at the meeting of the seed trade in San Francisco last summer and which was endorsed by them. It may be found necessary to have some adjustments and amendments to the bill before it is passed, but as a whole it will no doubt meet the approval of the catalogue men. It would be well to provide, if possible, that its enactment would not interfere with the use of the parcel post for catalogue mail by those who prefer that method for all or part of their issue.

Our opportunity

The year 1916 promises to take its place as a period of unprecedented activity in flower show exploitation. The time is quite fitting for lively agitation in this country of horticultural subjects and matters pertaining to the plant and flower world. For the people being forced by existing circumstances to find within the boundaries of their own land much of the wherewithal for individual and social relaxation and recreation. The flower show, as a means to this end, can wield a mighty and far-reaching influence if well conducted and if we are cognizant of the fact that the exhibitions of 1916 will make an unparalleled record in that respect. Rural progress and the development of agricultural industries are receiving more attention today than ever before in this country and horticulture will come in for its share of consideration if those who carry its banner will do their full duty. The greatly improved outlook for the flower show in its popular and financial aspects is due not a little to the present tendency to break away from old traditions and narrow policies, all of which means progress and expansion on modern lines and in no other way can public interest be won and retained.

The American carnation abroad

Under the caption, "Have the American carnation raisers reached their limit?" Montagu C. Allwood, a well-known English carnation expert, discusses in the Horticultural Trade Journal for February 2, 1916, a very bold question in a very outspoken way. Reading "between the lines" one cannot but draw the inference that some of our friends among the British carnation raisers are disposed to be rather envious of the development of our modern carnation in this country and its popularity in England. Perhaps this is not to be wondered at, but we confess to some surprise at the conclusions Mr. Allwood has reached in comparing the older with the more recent American introductions, and the latter with those of British origin. He plainly affirms that the recent American productions are not up to the standard of those of five or ten years ago from a commercial standpoint. He concludes that we have reached our limit and maintains that the British raisers are making a far greater headway in producing commercial varieties. In his judgment Enchantress and May Day, for example, are far superior to Alice. Gorgeous, he pronounces the "greatest of all recent American falacies;" Pink Sensation cannot compare with old Winsor; no modern white will touch White Enchantress or White Wonder; nothing has really beaten Mrs. T. W. Lawson and he cannot find a good pink variety among all the recent American varieties, while he emphatically asserts that as a dark pink carnation Mary Allwood can leave the American varieties "high and dry." Just why the latest American introductions have made so poor a record across the water is something beyond us but Mr. Allwood's arraignment would impress us more convincingly were it not for the note of envy which seems to underlie his ill-concealed gratification over the alleged rout of the American carnation as a factor in the English field. He remarks in passing that the British Carnation Society is more alive than the American Society. We shouldn't be surprised if that might be true and if Mr. Allwood's critique should provoke a little new spirit and energy in that time-honored body, now celebrating its silver jubilee, he may inadvertently have done us a good turn.

Tying Beauties

With the rush of potting and repotting, and other work that always crowds in toward spring, the houses are likely to be a bit neglected. This may not be very harmful to Teas, but Beauties will have to have proper attention if they are to pay their way. In most cases if they are not neglected they will make a neat sum of money for the grower from now until the time that they are taken out. The most important of all is tying. If this is not attended to the plants will lie all over and many of the shoots will go blind, and it will not be possible to syringe properly. They are almost sure to get a dose of spider, and spot usually comes with it, making it doubly hard to bring them back again. It will no doubt be necessary to bend a good many of the longer shoots down, and in doing this bend them to the west, making sure that they are tied gently yet firmly to the bottom wire. Also see that they are kept on the same side of the wire all the way up and down for if they are on one side at the bottom and on the other in the center, and back again on the top, it will be difficult to tie should it be necessary to tie them down once more. To make a neat job see that the tops are all even. Not only will this make the finished benches look much nicer but it will give all the shoots an equal show and they will not shade one another as they would if they were allowed to grow tall here and there. In bending down the high growths see that they are not put below the top wire, for it would be far more difficult to make them set. All growths that are bent down should be left six inches above the top wire. Make sure that all knots are well tied, with the string around the wire at least once, so that they will not slip around when they are being syringed. Beauties that are being tied to stakes will be far more difficult to handle as the growths will have to be bent from stake to stake and the plants will always be more or less bunched, making it hard to syringe and to keep the plants free from spot. Better get wires for Beauties. They will do better and make far less trouble and work in taking care of them.

Cutting Out Blind Wood on Beauties

With the sun much stronger and the days longer it will be safe to remove the weak wood that hangs here and there on the plants. This wood is short as a rule and can sometimes be traced to the mother shoot which had not been cut away down in the fall of the year. It can be taken out now thus giving the other growths a much better show and making it more difficult for red spider to gain a foothold. I have reference to only the very short wood which generally is too weak to hold its head up and will fall over before it reaches the second wire. Some growers will use this for cuttings but we would never advise this, as if this is done year after year it will reduce the vitality of the plants also their flower bearing quality. They will bloom less and less until the grower finds a lot of plants on his hands that will not flower but just grow and grow with thirty feet of stem at times. Careful selection of wood will prevent this. If there is not much wood on the plants, none should be removed as it will hurt the plant more than benefit it. With plenty of strong healthy wood in the house these weakling shoots had better be taken out.

Taking Out Old Sticks While Tying

When tying the Beauties be sure that all the sticks from specials that have been bent down and cut off are taken out. If this is not done a lot of weak wood is likely to result and that is not wanted. Cut the old shoot down to two eyes above the bottom wire and throw the old piece away. The two eyes that are left will shoot out as a rule and amount to something, whereas if the whole piece stayed there, there would be a weakling or two or no growth at all. In tying it is also well to watch for plants that may be struggling along without any top or with only a short growth or two. The buds of these short growths should be removed, thus giving them a better chance to lengthen out and take up some of the moisture and food that the roots are gathering. Take the buds while they are very small, as soon as they can be seen, and take them out with one leaf—two leaves wherever it can be done. If no leaf were taken with the bud, the eye which would start to grow would produce a bud almost at once so that the stem would lengthen hardly any.

Disbudding Young Stock

See that all the buds are removed from the young plants as soon as they appear. The sooner they are taken the better, especially the Beauties, for they will ruin the plants if they are allowed to develop. It will be best to keep the young plants wet all the time and this will do much to keep them from setting buds. It is nature's law that all plants before dying must produce seed and as soon as the plants get dry they feel the end near, and so form buds. We have found this to be so time and again, especially with little plants just started in 2½-inch pots. It is equally bad to over-water, but with good porous soil such as should always be used for potting, and good drainage, there will be no trouble to keep the plants right. Of course there will be a certain amount of buds and of poor plants even with the best of care, but the percentage will be nowhere near as great as it would be were the plants neglected.

A SPLENDID PUBLICATION.

The American Rose Society should be proud of its first Rose Annual—an advance copy of which has just reached us. It is a book of 180 pages and a triumph of editing and printing.

J. Horace McFarland in his labor of love has covered himself with glory, and the society has marked a milestone in its history that will be ever memorable. This is not a review of the book (which will occur in due course in the regular routine) but a personal appreciation from the writer. If you are not already a member send in your subscription to Benj. Hammond and get the book. One dollar associate; three dollars active.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The following named gentlemen have accepted the position of judges for the American Rose Society at the National Flower Show in Philadelphia March 25 to April 2: Frank H. Traendly New York City; W. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y.; Eugene Dallenbach, Philadelphia, N. Y.; Robert Chale, Philadelphia, Pa.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Alex. B. Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa.; W. L. Rice, Kansas City, Mo.; Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill.; James Forbes, Portland, Ore.; Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, N. Y.; Fred Jackson, Guelph, Ont.; J. H. Dandoy, Richmond Hill, Ont.; George C. Thomas, Jr., Chestnut Hill, Phila., Pa.; Victor Groshens, Roslyn, Pa.

There will be submitted at the annual meeting of the society the report of the committee on standardizing the length of stems of roses for market and the question concerning the re-naming of roses. A proposed standard for outdoor roses made up by Dr. Robert Huey, Jesse A. Currey and George C. Thomas, Jr., has been submitted to the Executive Committee.

The annual bulletin for 1916 covering the business of the society for the year 1915, with a series of papers upon roses, colored illustrations, etc., is now ready to be mailed to each member of the American Rose Society. This book is a publication of uncommon worth and was a special effort to increase amateur membership.

The promise now is, that the Show of Roses in Philadelphia will reach the highest that has ever been brought together, which is saying a good deal. The extensive list of prizes is bountiful; the private donors are over fifty.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

Beacon, N. Y.

The American Rose Society's exhibit entry forms for the National Flower Show are out and copies may be had on application to the office of the Secretary, Benjamin Hammond, Room 1205 Widener Building, Phila., Pa. Intending exhibitors should promptly fill out and return same to the Secretary's office, with duplicate entry list to George E. Campbell, Erdenheim, Pa., Manager of Rose Exhibits. Notice particularly Secretary Hammond's address as given above, not Beacon, N. Y. The time for staging all rose plants in pots is March 25; cut roses, March 27; rose display exhibits, March 30.

NEW JERSEY FLORICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society was held on February 21 in Orange, N. J. A letter was received from W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., offering a prize of $5.00 for one flower each of his twelve seedling dahlias of 1916 dissemination, to be exhibited at our Dahlia Show in September. Joseph A. Manda spoke in regard to the prize he had offered to the member who brought in the most

MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The schedule of prizes offered for the year 1916 has been published and copies may be had on application to the secretary, W. P. Rich, Horticultural Hall, Boston. Prize exhibitions are arranged as follows: Spring Exhibition, March 17, 18 and 19. May Exhibition, May 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14. Peony Exhibition, June 10 and 11. Rose and Strawberry Exhibition, June 24 and 25. Sweet Pea Exhibition, July 8 and 9. Gladiolus Exhibition, August 11, 12 and 13. Exhibition of the products of Children's Gardens, September 2 and 3. Dahlia and Fruit Exhibition, September 9 and 10. Fruit and Vegetable Exhibition, October 7 and 8. Autumn Exhibition, November 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5. The most extensive of these events will be the May Exhibition and the Autumn Exhibition, the last named taking the place of the old chrysanthemum show. The May Exhibition is in a way an innovation. Hitherto a modest affair, it is planned for this year on a big scale and bold lines. A large number of special cash prizes and trophies of intrinsic value have been contributed for this occasion by patrons of Horticulture in and around Boston, the value of the prizes aggregating approximately $4,500. The amount available for the year exceeds $10,000.

SOUTHAMPTON HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the regular meeting of the Southampton (N. Y.) Horticultural Society on Feb. 17th, the following named were appointed on the show committee for 1916. James Guilfoil, chairman; H. H. Wells, secretary; J. Dickson, financial secretary; J. Johnson, treasurer; S. R. Candler, corresponding secretary; F. H. Smith, U. G. Agor, J. W. King, R. Mercer, A. McDonald, T. T. Corrigan, G. H. Campbell. W. A. Malcom, who was elected vice-president at the annual meeting, tendered his resignation and D. T. Wells was elected to fill the vacancy. J. W. King read a paper on Growing Sweet Peas, first as grown for show purposes, also as grown for cut flowers, by the professional gardener with greenhouse facilities, as grown with the aid of hotbeds, also the novice who has no glass. This brought forth some discussion and exchange of views which was both instructive and entertaining.

BUFFALO FLORISTS' CLUB.

The annual meeting of the Buffalo Florists' Club will be held on Tuesday, March 7. This meeting will not be at the rooms of the club but will be held at the "Hofbrau" in Eagle street, where a short session will be held and the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place. Following the meeting a banquet and entertainment has been arranged for and an invitation is extended to all local and out-of-town florists. It will be a jolly good time and the committee is anxious to make this the most well attended banquet yet held by the club.

NEWPORT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the February meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society papers were read on "Grafting and Budding," by E. Kempenaar, "The Culture of the Grape," by William MacKay, and "Rock Gardens," by Arthur W. Potter, Jr. All of these papers were excellent and were well discussed, many questions being ably answered by the authors.

At our first meeting in March, Bruce Bullerton will deliver a paper on the "Insect Pests of Boxwood," giving special advice as to the control of the leaf miner which has caused considerable damage to boxwood in this vicinity.

A notification from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in regard to the Boston shows was read and received. It was remarked with regret that the Gladiolus Show to be held in Boston on Aug. 11-12-13 conflicts with the dates intended for holding the Mid-Summer Show here, Aug. 10-11-12.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

Tuesday evening, March 7, will see the end of the administration of George H. Cooke as president of the Florists' Club, for that is the date of the annual election of officers for the ensuing year. At this time plans will be completed for the attendance at the Philadelphia Flower Show and the committee in charge, of which Harry B. Lewis is chairman, is expected to make its final report. The nominations already posted are as follows: For president, R. L. Jenkins; vice-president, Adolphus Gude; secretary, C. L. Linz; treasurer, William F. Gude, and for the executive committee: George Field, Adolphus Gude, George H. Cooke, Theodore Diedrich, David Bisset and William H. Ernest.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle of St. Louis will be entertained by Mrs. F. C. Weber, Jr., at her home on Wednesday afternoon, March 8th.

W. H. Judd, of the Arnold Arboretum, will read a paper on Trees and Shrubs for Spring Planting at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, of Boston, on March 21.

The Horticultural Club of Boston had as special guests at its dinner on March 1st a delegation of gardeners from Lenox and vicinity. The table was decorated with vases of seedling carnations and novelties from S. J. Goddard and F. Dörner & Sons Co.

The St. Louis Florist Club will hold its meeting and cutflower exhibition at Berning's wholesale establishment, Thursday afternoon, March 9th, at 2 o'clock. The Spring Flower Show committee met at the Bourdet Floral Co.'s place on Thursday night, to prepare a report.

Secretary J. G. Esler, of the Florists' Hail Association, has forwarded the twenty-eighth assessment notices to members of that organization. The association now has a reserve fund of $37,000, which, with the increased membership, is growing rapidly. Losses during the past six months have been unusually heavy.

President C. W. Johnson, of the Illinois State Florists' Association, has appointed the following named gentlemen to act as judges over the exhibits at the next annual state meeting to be held in Moline, Ill., March 7-8. Charles Loveridge, Peoria; Emil Buettner, Park Ridge; George A. Washburn, Bloomington. Judging will begin promptly at 1 P. M. on Tuesday, March 7. J. F. AMMANN, Sec'y.

N. Y. and N. J. Asso. of Plant Growers.

The eighth annual dinner of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers was held in the Green Room of the Hotel McAlpin, New York City, on February 23rd. Those present declared it was the most enjoyable and successful affair yet held by this association. After a hearty dinner J. H. Flessner, who is president and who acted as toastmaster, in an appropriate address welcomed the guests and then called upon numerous speakers, including F. R. Pierson, Anton Schultzeis, James McHutchison, A. L. Miller, Wm. H. Siebrecht, senior and junior, and others.

The attendance exceeded all expectations. The guests were seated at round tables which were so arranged as to leave dancing space at one end of the room and a goodly number of the diners danced between each course. After the speechmaking was over dancing was again indulged in until the early hours.

The success of this, as well as all other affairs run by the Association, is to be credited to the dinner committee, which was headed by A. L. Miller.

In Sutton's Seeds Are England's Choicest Novelties

Have you not in your back this year, as yet, seen people who have seen nothing like you? If so, you are in luck. You are in luck.

Other years the annual trip abroad has satisfied them. This year, the war keeps them here.

It's plain to be seen, then, that the firm who has England's choice novelties to sell, is going to scoop in a goodly bundle of new profitable business. Business that will give you an entering wedge with a number of people you have found it hard to reach before.

In Sutton's 190-Page Garden Guide you will find a wonderful collection of England's choicest novelties.

Send 35c. for Garden Guide. It tells you how to duplicate our Old English Gardens. With $5 purchase of seeds the 35c. will be promptly refunded.

An Equitable Postage Bill.

In the House of Representatives, on Feb. 16, 1916, Congressman Tague introduced the following bill, H. R. 11621, which was referred to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads and ordered to be printed.

A bill to provide for mailing catalogues, circulars, etc., now mailable under eight ounces in weight at the third class rate of one cent for two ounces or fraction thereof, at a pound rate of eight cents.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that on matter embraced in the third class, including circulars, catalogs, pamphlets, price lists, and other similar matter wholly in print of some form, upon which the postage is now paid at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof, fully prepaid either by postage stamps affixed or without stamps under a postpaid number, the same rate is hereby extended to apply to the mailing of such printed matter in bulk, to varying addresses, irrespective of the individual weight thereof within a limit of four pounds, without stamps affixed, at eight cents per pound or fractional part thereof to be fully prepaid in similar manner as now by law provided for the mailing of matter of the second class; but such pound rate shall apply only when such printed matter is offered in quantities of one pound or more.

Sec. 2. That this Act shall take effect upon its passage.

Danish Embargo on Root Seeds.

Hjalmar Hartmann & Co., Copenhagen, report to us that the Danish Government has put an embargo on all root seed for cattle feeding, such as mangels, rutabaga and turnips. These seeds, fortunately, are not used in such large quantities in the U. S. as in Europe. The demand, however, is increasing every year. Germany formerly was the largest supplier but quite a little of that trade went to Denmark since the outbreak of the war. While not a very serious matter this embargo will embarrass considerably those seed houses that sell largely in the farming districts.

speaker of the evening before the Baltimore Florists' and Gardeners' Club on February 28. He did not know what he was to talk about before he started; but that did not seem to

The Henry F. Michell Co. have added 21-23 S. Bank street, which they have purchased and will use as a warehouse. The building is four stories high and basement, modern and convenient to the chief steamboat and railroad depots to afford quick delivery and receipt of merchandise.

Miss Grace Battles, daughter of H. H. Battles, and George B. Yerkes, were married on February 23 at Holy Trinity Church. The floral decorations at the church and at the Bellevue-Stratford are pronounced by competent judges to have been the most elaborate and beautiful ever seen in Philadelphia.

R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens Co., who was appointed the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Florists Club for Feb. 1st, but who did not appear, writes that he has just returned from a trip south and west and explains that he had never received the notification of his appointment—although that had been passed by vote of the club at its November meeting. This explanation is due to Mr. Brown, who feels that he has been put in an unfavorable light through no fault of his own.

Samuel R. Aiken, who conducted a retail store on Columbia avenue for many years, is now located in Charlotte, N. C., with the Schultze Flower Store. Robert Lockerbie, another well-known Philadelphian, is also with Schultze. He will give a lecture on March 14 before the Presbyterian Church on his native country. If there should happen to be any English in the audience they will feel quite small, after they hear "Stirling Bridge" sung by the choir. There are bugles in it. Also, they seem to cut off heads about six at a swish.

PITTSBURGH.

John R. Bracken, of the landscape department of the A. W. Smith Company, spoke on Wednesday evening of last week before the Farmers' Institute, which held a two-day's session at Ingomar, on the Ornamentation of the Home Grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Heinz celebrated their silver wedding anniversary on Friday of last week. Mr. Heinz was formerly a well known gardener, as was his father, Henry Heinz, who brought his family to America in 1847 from Coblenz, Prussia, of which Mrs. Heinz is also a native.

Miss Elsie Kiss, who has been a designer for the past two years with the Gostovich of Detroit, Michigan, were married on Thursday of last week. They will make their home in Detroit, where the bridegroom is engaged in the retail grocery business. Both are Austrians, Mrs. Gostovich having come from Budapest about two years ago.

CHICAGO.

J. A. Senta has returned from a five weeks' trip to Florida and Cuba.

John Enders was taken seriously ill Saturday night and is threatened with pneumonia.

The prominence of baskets of flowers among the trade offerings is very apparent from the displays in the store windows. Everything from the toy-like basket of Sweetheart roses to the large imposing ones of American Beauties are in the running. They are used in all kinds of social affairs, for funeral offerings and for gifts.

Julius Schnapp and daughter, Elsa, arrived from Seattle on the 28th to again make Chicago their home. Mr. Schnapp was for many years engaged in the florists' business on the south side and five years ago went to Seattle to take charge of the retail store of the Hollywood Gardens. He will now take a responsible position with the Alpha Floral Co., which will also include Miss Elsa.

Phil McKee, of the American Greenhouse Co., is spending a few days in St. Louis, Mo., looking after some work there for the W. A. Rowe Floral Co. This firm expects to start glazing at once on the big greenhouses now being erected for A. F. Amling at Maywood and which include 275,000 square feet of glass. It is expected that with favorable weather the range, which was begun about Dec. 10th last, will be completed next month. Work on the range at Cudahy, Wis., will begin next week. R. R. Brenton is now handling a sales campaign for the American Greenhouse Co.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

An effort is to be made to have the Government devote the so-called Plaza property which it has recently acquired, to the United States Botanic Gardens and it is expected that a resolution directing the Committee on Library to make report as to the desirability of this will shortly be introduced into the Senate. William F. Gude is very anxious that this be done. If the gardens are extended in this way, he says, he will make an effort to have the William R. Smith Memorial located in the new section. He asks that all florists throughout the United States who want to aid in a really good work should write to their congressmen and senators asking them to favor this plan.

The week just passed was noted for its many large decorations. At the Beaux Arts ball enormous amounts of American lilies and other flowers, carnations, orchids and spring flowers and palms, ferns and spruce and cedar trees were used. The chandeliers were removed and in their place lanterns, with blue lights, were suspended, giving the effect, with the many shops and booths, of a moonlight street scene in Paris. The feature of the Gridiron dinner was the electric fountain with the water falling over a small bronze statue, placed in the center of the table and surrounded by a mound of growing orchid plants. Garlands were placed the length of the table and were made of spring flowers. The walls were decorated with smilax, the alcoves filled with palms and forsythia and at one end of the room was a miniature forest.

Speaking of Easter lilies, W. F. Gude says: "We have been agreeably surprised this year at the way our stock of Bermuda Harrisii has been coming along. Last year the crop was more than fifty per cent failure, while the preceding year the results were even more unsatisfactory. We were about through with this flower, but decided to give it another trial and accordingly put in about one-tenth the usual crop. The results are such that if we can get the same quality of bulbs we will again go into the production of these on the scale of previous years. The Formosum lilies this year are also very good and are very popular." Mr. Gude predicts great things for the F. T. D. S. and hints at a number of things on which he is at present working that will bring this service before the public in a way which will tend to bring about undreamed of results.

NEW YORK.

Doubleday, Page & Company are about to open a headquarters in New York City, taking the Book Department of Lord & Taylor. A series of lectures on horticultural and rural topics in the Lecture Hall will be a feature of this enterprise.

The "largest horticultural auction salesroom in the world" will be the Mecca of a throng of interested patrons when, at the stroke of 11 A. M. Tuesday, March 7th, Auctioneer MacNiff makes his bow, hammer in hand, for the opening gun of the season of 1916. Go down and see the fun and help things along.

BOSTON.

An unusually large number of bulb salesmen have come to this section with very low quotations for next season's delivery.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Patten sailed February 26 on the S. S. Atlanta for Savannah, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla. They expect to take in some of the different places through Florida and get rid of some of Massachusetts March weather. Neither have been in the best of health since about Christmas, and it is hoped this will do them lots of good. They expect to return about the first week or so of April.

Obituary

August Junge.

August Junge, formerly of the firm of Komitsch & Junge, growers, of Se-caucus, N. J., died of gas poisoning Feb. 15th. He was a native of Germany and about 43 years of age and unmarried.

William A. Martin.

Wm. A. Martin, of Houlton, Me., president of the National Potato Growers' Association in 1913 and 1914, died in a hospital at Richmond, Va., on Wednesday, February 23, following a train wreck on the Seaboard Air Line in which he was injured on the previous Thursday. Mr. Martin was closely identified with the work of the U. S. Horticultural Board in Aroostook County, Me.

David T. Watson.

Nurserymen and bulbmen and seedsmen throughout the country will regret to hear of the death of David T. Watson, the eminent attorney, which took place at Atlantic City, on Thursday of last week. Owing to his interest in the horticultural features of his fine old country place near Leesdale, Pa., Mr. Watson was probably better known to the trade at large than any amateur in Western Pennsylvania. The funeral from his North Side home on Ridge avenue on Monday afternoon called into requisition more rare flowers than probably any previous one hereabouts.

Mrs. J. A. Pettigrew.

Ann M., widow of John A. Pettigrew former superintendent of Boston Park System, died at the home of her daughter in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Saturday night, February 26. She had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Hinckley, and was taken with pneumonia on Monday, February 21. All her children were with her during the last part of her illness, Dr. R. R. Pettigrew, from Youngstown, Ohio, and the three daughters, Mrs. George T. Sisson, Mrs. Ralph W. Curtis and Mrs. George W. Hinckley. The services were held in Brooklyn, Monday afternoon.

Albert Roper

The Boston daily papers announce under big headlines the murder of Albert Roper, widely known as a carnation grower of much ability, in his greenhouse at Tewksbury, Mass. His body was found at midnight, Wednesday, March 1, by his son Chester. Mr. Roper was last seen alive at 9 o'clock Wednesday night. It is believed his skull was fractured by blows on the head. His money was stolen from his trousers pockets, and the indications were that Mr. Roper made a hard struggle before being killed. After informing his mother and brothers, Chester Roper notified the police.

Mr. Roper who has been in business in Tewksbury 20 years was well-known among the carnation growers of this country and abroad as a very successful raiser of new varieties. His first great triumph was Fair Maid, which is credited with having been one of the greatest money making carnations ever grown. Since that time he has repeatedly taken high honors at the American Carnation Society's exhibitions.

His tragic death will bring sorrow to many friends in the trade and sympathy for the bereaved family. He was a quiet mannered, unobtrusive man, a hard worker and always courteous to callers at his greenhouses where he had many interested visitors. He leaves a wife and six children.

Max Rudolph

Max Rudolph, the well-known and popular Cincinnati florist and president of the Cincinnati Florist Society, died at his home on Tuesday, February 22d, of heart failure. The end came almost without any warning whatever. He was born in Leipsig fifty-two years ago. At the age of eighteen Mr. Rudolph came to this country and followed his trade, the florist business. In 1891 he opened his own store on 12th street, and nine years later built his greenhouses. As a member of the Cincinnati Florist Society, the S. A. F. and O. H., the German Pioneer Society, and The Cuvier Press Club he formed a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Elizabeth, his widow, and Roy Rudolph, his son, survive him. Mr. Rudolph was a hustler and through his efforts built up a good business.

Fred W. Bruenig.

Fred W. Bruenig died on February 25th at Lutheran Hospital, St. Louis, after an operation for stomach trouble. He took sick at the funeral of the late Conrad Bergestermann where he was to be a pallbearer. His sudden death was a great shock to his many friends as he was always in the best of health. Mr. Bruenig was born in Germany, 53 years ago, and came to this country when a small boy and obtained employment in Elleard's floral establishment where he learned the business and 25 years ago started at his present location and has since built up a prosperous business with a large growing plant across the river at Columbia, Ill. Mr. Bruenig was married and has four children who mourn his loss. He was prominent in many social orders as a member and also of the S. A. F., St. Louis Florist Club and Retail Florists' Association, who sent floral tributes to his late home. The funeral took place Monday, Feb. 28. The members of the Florist Club attended in a body.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The cold snap of the first of the present week shortened up the flower supply considerably. Most affected were the carnations, which are very scarce and sell at a good figure. Roses have been cheaper but the shortage of carnations is sending them higher. Sweet peas are more plentiful, also violets. Bulb stock is coming fine and sells well. Primroses and pansies are much better and find a ready market. Snapdragon is more plentiful and sells very poorly at present.

Bright sunshine has had a tendency to bring on more flowers, especially carnations and bulbous stock. The former are coming in heavier each day and a good many ordinary are seen. Good stock has had fair sales. Lilies are fine and selling well. Roses are coming in heavier and the merchant has little or no trouble to fill his wants. Sweet peas are fine, lily of the valley is good and there is a good supply of daisies, mignonette, hyacinths and all corsage flowers. Floral work has been quiet and stock on some lines has seen accumulation, though it cannot be said that business is bad.

There is stock enough to meet all demands. CHICAGO Shipping trade has been heavy, but local trade has been rather light. There is considerable stock of second grade and the retail stores are showing the special price signs on southern jonquils, carnations, roses, etc. Tulips and daffodils continue to crowd the counters. Of the large roses Mrs. Russell is most in evidence. Beauties are still scarce. There is a large supply of lilies and callas and first quality move rapidly. Sweet peas are scarce, buds having dropped during cloudy weather. Freesia still in good supply. Violets are not so much of a feature at this time. The demand for them has not equalled that of former years. Lily of the valley is scarce and much of it is small.

The supply of stock CINCINNATI is about the same as it was at the last writing while the demand is strong enough to take up most of it. Stripping business is excellent. Roses have shown considerable improvement. Short American Beauties are in heavy supply but the long ones are extremely scarce. The carnation cut is not as large as it was. Lilies as well as callas continue to hold their own. Bulbous stock generally has a fair market. Sweet peas, lily of the valley and orchids are all excellent. Violets do not have a very good market.

Little needs to be said in detail regarding present market conditions. All stock is coming on full-till, and the street men and surplus-moving stores are in high spirits, alert for bargains and clamorous as usual when such conditions prevail. The standard of value on all stock is on the downward trend. The varieties of flowers in the market is unusually extensive.

PHILADELPHIA Early in the past week things were a bit draggy but by the wind-up there was a marked change. This favorable condition was caused not only by the milder weather but also by a good increase in supplies. This was particularly the case with roses. With the exception of American Beauty these are now more plentiful and of very good quality. Carnations were never better—splendid as to quality and there is a much firmer tone in recent quotations. The leaders at present are Pink Delight, Gloriosa, Matchless and Mrs. Ward. Sweet pea supply has dropped off a little; quality very fine and selling well. The cattleya market is rather bare, the principal subject being Trianae, helped out by a few Schroederiae and dendrobiums. Daffodils are in excellent form—some top-notch Emperor to be seen with large crisp well finished flowers showing excellent stamina and culture. Acacia is about over for the season. There are still a few camellias to be had. Plenty of lilies but lily of the valley rather scarce.

PITTSBURGH Flowers of all kinds are plentiful, excepting, of course, American Beauty roses. Roses, carnations, lily of the valley, jonquils, tulips, sweet peas, mignonette and cattleyas all bring fair prices. Violets, however, have no price and have to be worked out as best one can, the florists using practically everything else. They probably will come into their own again, but present prospects indicate that it will not be for a long while to come.

There is more stock ST. LOUIS coming in than can be consumed and at prices not unreasonable. Stock is of extra good quality. Violets are in great supply and $2 per 1000 is the lowest price. Roses are coming better each day. Carnations, too, are many. Bulb stock is also looking up and is coming in more than the demand calls for. Lily of the valley was scarce all week. Sweet peas are fine, but sell at greatly reduced prices.

Business last week WASHINGTON showed quite an improvement. The demand for American Beauty roses

NEWS NOTES.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Fairmont Floral Co., 141 Powell street, has been purchased by MacRorie, McLaren Co.

West Bend, Wis.—Harrison Ashman, of Appleton, has purchased the Kesting greenhouses, and will remove six of his greenhouses in Appleton to the new location.

A most interesting meeting of the Connecticut Horticultural Society was held on Friday evening, Feb. 25. Dr. W. E. Britton, State Entomologist, addressed the members on the "Life History and Habits of Some Kinds of Insects." There were many photographs taken from life and specimens had been secured showing how these insects get in their deadly work. Alfred Cebelius received cultural certificate for six pots of Boddington's Matchless Cineraria and eight pots of Boddington's Cactus Flowering Cineraria; N. Slocombe, a first-class certificate for Acacia pubescens, and H. R. Hurd, honorable mention for lemons. The meeting to be held on March 10 will be "Cineraria Night."

ALFRED DIXON, Sec'y.

was heavy. Carnations have been quite scarce and roses of all kinds also cleaned up well each day. Some days violets were so plentiful that they were unloaded on the fakirs for sale on the streets at low prices, while on other days it was a hard matter to get an adequate supply. Sweet peas are very good and meet with ready sale. Snapdragon is in fine demand for dinner decorations and for this same purpose large quantities of narcissus, freesia, daisies and other spring flowers find ready sale. Orchids are scarce and have advanced in price. Purple lilac has made its appearance. It is of good quality and is quite popular.

THE NUT-GROWER

No. 2 Francis St.

WAYCROSS, GA.*In writing to Advertisers kindly mention Horticulture

Within a distance of 50 miles of New York, this Alphano grown celery developed so rapidly that large market shipments were started the 20th of last June, when prices were away up. Full particulars on application.

Cut Down Your Soil Enriching Costs

Use Alphano

The Oderless, Weed-Seedless

Sanitary Soil Builder

For Lawns, Vegetables, Flowers and Shrubs

This celery is over three feet from root tip to top. It was grown on an unproductive heavy clay soil which was given a three inch coat of Alphano and ploughed in. Name of place on application.

A LPHANO HUMUS is a complete balanced soil ration. Its base is a rich nitrogen soil humus, thoroughly composted, heavy with soil binding bacteria, and heavily reinforced with plant foods. The high prices of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in chemical fertilizers this year, gives Alphano, which contains them all, a remarkable value for the money.

One ton is equal to several of average stable manure. It is a great absorber of moisture, fortifying roots against dry weather. We sell it to you in an odorless, dry, finely granulated form. Do not confuse it with the water logged, highly acid, raw humus sold under various names. It is acknowledged that we are the only concern selling a concentrated, dry, prepared humus. Our ten years of proven success, and the sale of over half a million tons, are your guarantee for Alphano's sweeping merits.

INOCULATED

In addition to the natural bacteria Alphano contains in such numbers, we heavily inoculate it with our Alphano Inoculant, giving it teeming billions of all the essential nitrogen fixing and soil digesting bacteria, including the nodule bacteria of all the clovers, along with those for beans, peas, alfalfa and the like.

Alphano is the only genuine inoculated humus. We will sell you this Alphano Inoculant separately or with Alphano. Send for full particulars and prices.

FOR YOUR LAWN

For your lawn, Alphano is ideal. Being odorless, you can use it anytime. Being in granulated form, you can easily distribute it evenly and raking it in thoroughly, it quickly reaches the roots. Being rich in usually liberated foods, it at once stimulates growth and continues to sustain it for a surprisingly long time. It absorbs five times its weight in moisture, protecting your grass against dry weather.

FOR YOUR GARDEN

So rich is Alphano in humus and plant foods that it will in one season, convert a compact, unproductive lumpy clay, into a fertile, open, friable soil, easy to work. Or it will bind together a light, loose sandy soil, and make it highly productive. For flowers and vegetables, it is equally resultful. Being sanitary and entirely free from the many dangerous infections carried by stable fertilizer, its health side argues strongly for it.

Our Alphano Book tells of four valuable garden uses.

FOR YOUR SHRUBS

Dig Alphano freely around your shrubs. Do it early so the blooms will be profuse and the first growth of Spring rapid and strong.

For Rhododendrons, Alphano makes a sure growing soil condition, the same as their native humus laden habitat. In planting them, mix the soil with a third Alphano. Every Spring, dig in a goodly mulch around the roots.

FOR TREE PLANTING

Make sure of a strong first season's growth of the trees you plant, by mixing the soil with 1% Alphano. Its foods are at once available to the roots. Its stimulating effect is a great assistance in overcoming the usual transplanting set-back.

Put a couple of shovelfuls around the top soil as a mulch. Results will over and over again reward the slight additional cost.

Buy at once, this wonderful Alphano, nature's balanced soil ration. Its cost is so little, you can afford to use it freely.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Farmers' Bulletins Nos. 705, 708 and 710 of the U. S. Department of Agriculture are devoted to the Catalpa Sphinx, The Leopard Moth and Bridge Grafting of Fruit Trees, respectively. All are illustrated and will be found very instructive.

Bulletin 361 of the College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., sent out by the Department of Landscape Art, is an exceedingly useful pamphlet of 144 pages. It is entitled "The Home Grounds." Part I, by E. G. Davis, covers the arrangement of the home grounds, with many diagrams of suggestive treatment, half-tone views, plans, etc., and some very instructive chapters on planting, grouping, etc. Part II, by R. W. Curtis, gives a list of trees, herbaceous shrubs, perennials and other materials suitable for the home grounds, with a lot of valuable technical and practical information followed by a splendid index of plants, giving cross reference, pronunciation and synonymy.

Our Early Wild Flowers, by Harriet L. Keeler. Illustrated by Mary Keffer; color plates by Eloise P. Luquer. A compact little volume which may be conveniently carried about and used by the nature student in country rambles. Its contents are comprehensive and authoritative, its descriptive notes are written with exactness, conciseness and sympathy, and in all respects it is admirably arranged to fill the purpose for which it was intended. The half-tone and color plates are excellent. The field covered lies between the Atlantic Coast and the Mississippi river and between parallels forty and fifty north latitude. Herbaceous flowers are considered only. The book is published by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. Price $1.00 in cloth and $1.25 in leather, net; 252 pages, 7 color plates, 12 half-tones and 94 line drawings.

San Francisco, Calif.

October 16, 1915.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Horticulture Jury, of which the writer was a member, awarded you a Gold Medal for your Insecticides, and when you take into consideration the fact that that Jury, outside of the writer, was composed of some of the famous experts of the world, you will realize the importance of this award. Verification of this may be obtained from Mr. George A. Dennison, Chief of Horticulture, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The writer has been requested to furnish a list of the articles which the Jury endorsed by their action in awarding prizes because of merit. This request comes from representatives of foreign countries and states.

Respectfully yours,

Signed: J. A. BUCHANAN, Gen. Mgr.

A PROMINENT CARNATION GROWER SAYS THIS ABOUT THE STANDARD RECORDING THERMOMETER

Lancaster, Pa.

Standard Thermometer Co.,
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Please send me 25 record plates like the enclosed sample, and I want to say that the machine, bought a good many years back, is keeping up its good work right along. I think it a very useful adjunct to good plant growing, and it should be in every greenhouse, as reference to it may often tell what is wrong with a batch of plants.

Very truly yours, ALBERT M. HERR.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

Fits That Misfit

THE fewer different types of construction a greenhouse concern makes, the more money it makes. This fact is no secret. You know it as well as we know it. Because it is so simply so; some concerns are continually trying to make their standard construction features, fit every place and every piece. As a result, their fits are often misfits.

Take for example, the four 100 foot houses of Mr. J. B. Coddington, now going up at Murray Hill, N. J.

Each is 41 feet wide. Our standard construction fits uneven span roofs; while our off our so called "standard details" on you.

Standard Details, of course, we must have, but we do not attempt to make a standard detail fit where, as experts, we know it is a more or less of a misfit.

That traveling scaffold with its swinging crane, we rigged up especially to meet conditions on Mr. Coddington's job.

With it, our men can put up 200 feet of frame in a day, because of the convenience of working from it, the bolts and screws are more likely to be put in right than if the men were climbing over the roof in difficult positions.

It has so short cut the erection time and increased the quality of workmanship, that it is in erecting all our

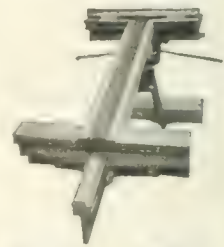

In reducing erection time we pleased Mr. Coddington, and at the same time, benefited ourselves. We both gain by it.

It is the same principle which we do business. It's just another of the reasons why you can depend upon Hitchings.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be gladly received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope

Achimenes

These are fine little plants. Place the tubers quite thickly in pans filled with good drainage material finished off with sand till three-quarters full. Cover the tubers with sand and keep moist but not too wet or the tubers will be ruined. In a temperature of 65 degrees young growth should appear in about three weeks and when the plants have grown an inch or two they should be potted, using 6 to 8 in either a 5 or 6-inch pan or pot. Give ample drainage and on this place some turfy material or sphagnum moss. Use a compost of two parts fibrous loam, two of leaf mold and one of sand. Set the plants an equal distance apart, and firm the soil around the roots. Achimenes while growing like a good supply of water. When flowering begins they will take liquid manure twice a week.

Bedding Plants

Verbenas, salvias, marguerite carnations, snapdragons, petunias, lobelias, bedding begonias, celosias, hybrid impatiens, etc., should be started now. Of less importance, but also to be sown now if wanted in salable size at the right time, are dianthus, ageratum, canna, torrenia, nicotiana, centaurea and vincas. Sow thinly in seed trays or pans, in fresh porous soil of a kind as used for rooted cuttings. Firm well, water thoroughly, place over mild bottom heat and cover with boards or paper, soil covering only being used on the largekerneled kinds and then only in a very thin layer. Take off the paper for a short time every day and lift out those trays showing the first green of the germinating seeds, placing them where they can have light and air. When the seedlings are large enough they should be pricked off into other trays and fresh soil. Use great care in watering.

Gardenias

In order to make a good start for next winter no time should be lost in starting a good batch of cuttings. Cuttings should have a bottom heat of 75 to 85 degrees with top heat 10 degrees lower. Keep the sand moist and warm and give them a spray every morning. Keep shaded and rather close until they are rooted. The propagation of gardenias is only successful where a somewhat high degree of heat combined with a rather close moist atmosphere can be steadily maintained. When their roots are about half an inch long pot them up. Good soil for these is one part leaf mold, one part good soddy, one and the remainder sharp sand. Keep shaded until they will stand the sun, when they should be grown on the sunniest bench and in a temperature 65 to 70 degrees at night.

Phalaenopsis

If there is any orchid that requires good care at all seasons it is the phalaenopsis. Phalaenopsis amabilis, Schilleriana and Rimestadtiana are good kinds to grow. As these orchids pass out of flower they are always better for a short rest. They should be kept comparatively dry but should not remain dry for any length of time as they have no pseudo bulbs in which to store up nourishment. When the compost assumes a slight crispness to the touch it is time to give them some water. The best time to overhaul these orchids is just before they send forth their new roots when they should be repotted or fresh material given. Where the compost is good it is not necessary to remove it all every year. Just pick out some of the old compost and renew with chopped live sphagnum and fern fibre in equal parts. They should be shaded from now until November. They grow very well in a night temperature of 62 to 68 degrees and from 70 to 75 by day.

Sowing Fern Spores

In sowing spores it should be borne in mind that the most desirable commercial varieties will take from 10 to 12 months before they are fit to sell in pots. A great deal of what is known as damping off has its origin in a minute fungus. Where you do not have a better means the soil can be baked in the furnace or soaked with boiling water. This compost should consist of loam, leaf mold, peat and sand in equal parts. Fill the pans about one-third with crocks, larger ones in the bottom and those on the top finely broken and over this place a layer of moss, then fill to within an inch of the top with sterilized compost. The surface soil should be pressed down and made as smooth as possible. A good soaking of water should be given and allowed to drain off before sowing the spores.

Propagating Stevia

Stevia will root in a moderately warm propagating bed if kept moist and shaded for a short time. When rooted pot into 2-inch pots and place in a temperature not over 50 degrees at night. Keep pinched back and they will grow into nice bushy plants. They can be planted out in May or grown under cover until put out through the summer.

Next Week: Chrysanthemums; Care of Seedlings; Fancy Leaved Caladiums; Tuberous Rooted Begonias; Odontoglossums; Starting Bulbous Stock.

A "green" nuisance

It is sad that green dye for staining carnations for St. Patrick's Day is a scarce commodity this year. We are delighted and wish our friends in Germany would supply our need. But our sad fate comes about, not by choice, but by compulsion. Let this odious practice of staining carnations green and forcing them on the market be stopped as quickly as possible.

A reasonable request

The communication to the Secretary of State at Washington which is mentioned in detail on another page of this issue, requesting some official action to expedite the delivery of foreign mail of immediate commercial importance is in our judgment a reasonable proposition. With proper oversight as suggested by the complainants it should not be difficult for the responsible authorities to arrange some practical way of putting through such mail matter as consular invoices, bills of lading, etc., on the steamer which carries the goods. We hope the result of the appeal may be prompt action and a favorable outcome.

Don't miss the National Flower Show

As the time for the opening of the great National Flower Show draws near the tremendous amount of efficient labor put into the preparatory work becomes evident and the vastness of the enterprise as developed and moulded by the men at the helm begins to be realized. All indications point to an unprecedented horticultural triumph, a splendid demonstration of Philadelphia's bigness as a horticultural centre and the rapidly advancing position of our profession in the esteem of the public. Every one of our readers who can possibly do so should visit this splendid exposition and acquire uplift and inspiration.

An opportune time

There are some busy times ahead for HORTICULTURE. Special Spring Trade Number will be issued on March 25 and this will be followed by National Flower Show Issue on April 1. Then will come the annual Easter edition. All of these issues will be full of interest for the trade in all departments and all sections of the country. They will be business getters for all who are enterprising enough to take advantage of the publicity opportunities afforded in the advertising pages. HORTICULTURE readers are distinctly of the most ready and most to be desired class of buyers. You can get your share of their patronage on spring trade if you wish and will tell them about what you have to offer.

The catalogue postage bill

The catalogue postage bill to which we called attention in our issue of last week has the approval of the seed trade generally so far as we have been able to ascertain. The bill is commented upon by some as being loosely drawn and somewhat ambiguous but no doubt these defects will be smoothed out by the experts of the post office department. As it appears in its present shape the average man will have some difficulty in fully comprehending its import. As we suggested in our previous note, it is important to know whether the adoption of the bill will affect in any way the operation of the parcel post system to which some catalogue houses have, at considerable expense, adjusted their business. Dealers issuing catalogues approximating one pound in weight will no doubt want to retain their parcel post privileges in the first zone, at least, and if, as we assume, the new bill contemplates the continuation of this privilege so that a catalogue firm may choose between it and the new method according as to which would be most advantageous to them, then the bill should find no objectors among those who are most directly affected. As things now are, the houses issuing small catalogues are heavily penalized and a reform such as is proposed would save them considerable money and, by its elasticity, in a way encourage the making of better catalogues.

Repotting

Do not allow the young potted plants to become pot-bound. This applies especially to the young Beauties, but all varieties will suffer more or less if they are allowed to become pot-bound. It is best to keep the young plants on the move all the time, giving them a size larger pot as soon as they need it. Usually we pot from the two-and-a-quarter inch pots direct into the fours, unless we are pressed for room and then we pot into three's, and if the plants are not to be planted soon they are shifted into larger pots later when they need it. The soil that is used for this second potting can be much richer than the soil used at first. Much more manure can be added but this should be well decayed and run through a fine screen before mixing it with the soil. Where the manure was composted with the soil, the soil will be in much better shape, as the liquids from the manure will have penetrated and made it much better for the plants. A little more bone can be added than was added to the soil for the first potting. A little soot is nice too but the amount should be very small, not more than a four-inch pot full to a wheelbarrow load of soil. See that the pots are well crocked, especially if the plants are to remain in the pots for any length of time. A little fine cinders makes cheap crocks although clean broken pot or charcoal is better. The latter is ideal but costs money, unless it can be made out of branches from trees and such waste found around greenhouses as a rule. When potting see that plenty of soil is put in so that there will be no empty spaces around the ball of the plant. Press the soil in gently but firmly, and see that the pots are filled up about the same all through the batch. Leave the surface roughened up a bit so that it will not cake and thus prevent water and air from entering. It is also best to pot a little deeper. Unless the plants are very short, we like to drop them almost to the bottom of the pots so that there will be no danger of the old ball sticking out of the soil and keeping the plant dry nearly all the time. Plants that are potted deep will also do much better when they are planted in the benches than those that are potted so high that they get knocked from side to side when they are syringed. When knocking the plants out of the smaller pots for repotting, make it a point to clean them well. Remove all the green scum that may have formed on top and also all yellow or diseased leaves. When setting the newly potted plants on the bench remember to put the smaller plants to the front or south side and the taller ones to the north or rear. They will do much better this way, as they will have equal chance. Any poor plants that will never be much should be thrown out. Small healthy plants should be cleaned and set to one side, until they grow big enough for re-potting.

Hauling Away Old Greenhouse Soil

It is not possible every winter to haul away old soil but in this winter, with plenty of snow to keep the frost out, it has been possible, and growers should take advantage of the weather while the ground in the fields is still frozen and the teamsters not very busy. We have been able to get teams a dollar a day cheaper in the winter. If manure is to be bought by the car, it is well to do so now while the roads are still good, as later they will likely be soft and the teams will be forced to take only half loads, besides cutting the whole field up with the wagon wheels. It is as well to spread the soil evenly over the fields. To do the thing right the field should be laid off in strips and numbered, so that it will be an easy matter to rotate crops and fertilize the field to the best advantage, thus putting the grower in a position where he knows pretty nearly what to look for in his soil.

Drainage

Right now in the winter when the thaws come and a large volume of water is set free is the best time to mark out any new ditches that may be necessary to keep the water away from the greenhouses. There is always danger of the water flooding the cellars and putting the fires out, especially on places where there are no cellar drains. Even on level Long Island we have seen a time when heavy rains and melting snows filled the greenhouse cellars so full that the fires went out and the houses were only saved from freezing by oil stoves and burning tobacco stems. If possible stake out places that have to have trenches, or else make sure where they are to go and let the boys make them next summer after the houses are filled. Even if it is necessary to get extra men, a few dollars expended this way will usually bring great returns by saving trouble and annoyance.

Save the Ashes

Although coal ashes are nearly worthless as plant food, still if they are screened and properly spread on the field the soil will be much better off for it. There always are spots where the soil is wet and soggy or bakes very hard, or it may be too sandy and open. A little coal ashes applied to these spots and worked into the soil will have a wonderful effect. They must be spread evenly, not too thickly, and screened through a fairly fine screen. The cinders can usually be sold or used in concrete and will more than pay for the labor of screening. A good way is to make a long screen and have a runway to it from the cellar, and as the ashes are wheeled out they can be dumped on the screen and as they roll down they will screen themselves thus making it an easy matter to separate the cinders from the fine ashes. Never apply the ashes to the field as they come from the cellar, for they will make a nuisance of themselves for years to come.

Saxifraga. I.*

An attempt to describe the whole genus Saxifraga in a single chapter would be rather like trying to cover a beautiful garden in only the most cursory remarks. In this matter it would become necessary to go into descriptive details at a length far beyond available space limits. I therefore confine myself today to the rosette forms distinguished by their long rosulate leaves cartilaginously serrated at the edges. Indigenous in the mountainous districts of the temperate and arctic zones they represent an extremely choice and effective material for the rock garden. In a soil well mixed with limestone, plantations established in large crevices or in specially prepared rock pockets are a delight for any real plant lover. It is of advantage to give saxifragas a slanting position allowing the water of melting snow and of rain quickly to run off of the plants. According to their constitution with the rosette class of saxifragas they do best in open sunny situations throughout our northern states. Fully exposed to the hot mid-day and early afternoon sun of our middle Atlantic summers the most species suffer more or less. Keeping this in mind and, if necessary, guarding against danger, will no doubt bring success. And, indeed, the beauty of a few clumps of saxifragas nestling amid rugged rockwork, especially when in full bloom amply repays us for our cultural efforts. I remember a few years ago while in the northern part of the New England states a happy owner of a small rockery proudly pointed out to me a few plantations of Saxifraga Cytledon pyramidalis and S. McNabiana as pretty acquisitions of his garden. We certainly have not enough of such proud and happy home owners in America.

The species Saxifraga Cotyledon pyramidalis, the subject of our illustration, as the best known is in my opinion one of the showiest and most resistant one. Trade catalogues of late drop the middle name Cotyledon, listing simply pyramidalis. Forming rosettes of from 5 to 6 inches in diameter its light graceful flower spikes appear during May and June. The color appears to be white. At close examination, however, we discover attractive fine reddish-brown pencilings at the inner base of the petals. Saxifraga McNabiana, not quite as robust growing as the former, flowers pure white. Saxifraga Aizoon widely distributed in European rock gardens is a denizen of the Alps and other mountainous dis-fruits of the northern temperate zone. Firms abroad specializing in Alpine plants carry white, yellow and rose-pink forms of it in their trade lists. I firmly believe the Aizoon varieties well adapted to our north and worth a trial in rockeries of the middle states particularly on inclines toward the north. Among the rarities in the rosette forms I mention Saxifraga cartilaginea, Gaudini and longiflora. Taking regard to proper exposure all the species and varieties will prove satisfactory and highly effective subjects for dry-wall planting.

For winter protection a few evergreen boughs make an ideal material. Plantations in rock gardens will survive well under thin leaf covering. At all events avoid manure as a cover for this class of saxifragas. Propagation is by offsets or by raising plants from seed. The latter process, of course, is slow and requires patience.

GROWING CARNATIONS.

1914 HORTICULTURE Editor Mrs.
1601 N. W. Ave., Seattle, Wash.
Dear Sir: I have been very busy throughout the year, but I am glad to report that my plants are doing well. I have had the help of a carnation growing in order to produce first rate blooms? I bought from a nurseryman field-grown plants July 20, 1915, and bunched in good rotted sod 3 parts,
1 part rotted manure. Grew along steady until September 15, gave watering of weak horse manure, and Oct. 15 a slight soot dressing.
Have about twelve shoots to each plant.
Some of them are now showing buds of blooms at Christmas, poor quality but no doubt better than those which would be produced by the same treatment in January.
Try to maintain 55° at night but during the day 48°. I can't afford a night man. Varieties are Enchantress Supreme, White Wonder,
Champion, Dagmar, Matchless. The latter has scarcely shown a bloom yet, but all are very green and healthy. Kindly show me where I am at fault. Any advice will be most cordially received. I have achieved great success as a greenhouse grower with roses through reading HORTI-CULTURE persistently for the past four Thanking you in anticipation, E. D.

Cooperstown, N. Y.

There is little wrong in the treatment of your plants as outlined by you. They were planted in good time and the proportion of soil and manure is all right. Without knowing more about the texture and general nature of the soil it is impossible to say if it is suitable for carnation growing although it can hardly be far wrong or you would not have done so well with roses. Generally speaking, a soil which will grow one of these well will grow the other.

You have not over fed, as you started with a well-balanced compost and the feed additions should have maintained a sufficient supply. With the varieties you grow some of them would have given split calyxes had they been overfed.

A night temperature of 55 degrees is too high for carnations. The average variety does better with a 50-52 degree temperature; and 46 to 48 is too low. These two extremes might cause serious results. Cut your high mark down to 52 and don't allow the temperature to go below 48 if it is at all possible. If you house any amount of plants the extra expense will be repaid.

It may be that Matchless does not take to your soil. On the average this variety is very satisfactory, but here and there a good grower will be found who cannot make it average up at all.

What has been said thus far can hardly be of much help and without a closer study of your soil and your method of treatment little more can be said. As a suggestion, visit your neighbor florists and learn, by observation, what their methods are as regards watering. Find out if you are running your soil too wet or too dry. The average florist is pleased to receive a visit from his brothers in the trade and to exchange ideas. Try it and you will be helped in some way every time you visit.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

Department of Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that the Bedford Flower Company, Bedford Hills, N. Y., offers for registration the Rose mentioned below. Any person objecting to the use of the proposed name or registration is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Description: A pink sport of Double White Killarney. Has the same habit of growth and is equal in production. Same foliage. Color is light pink, becoming deeper to the center as it opens. Flower is long and opens in perfect form.

Name: Bedford Belle.

National Flower Show.

The Final Schedule of Premiums covering the classes for competitions at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, March 25th to April 2nd, have been distributed, and all contemplating making entries are urged to place them in the hands of the Secretary at once. The closing date for entries is March 20th, and entries after that date must be accompanied with a fee of $2.00, and will only be received subject to acceptance by the National Flower Show Committee.

Practically all of the space set apart for trade exhibits has been reserved, excepting a few blocks on the main floor extension, which will, doubtless, be taken up within a few days.

Exhibits, or exhibition material should be forwarded wherever possible by Pennsylvania R. R. connection to North Philadelphia Station, which is two blocks from Convention Hall, where the show is to be held. Arrangements have been made whereby all shipments arriving at that station will be hauled to Convention Hall at the rate of 15c. per 100 lbs., and all shipments arriving at other stations will be hauled at the rate of 20c. per 100 lbs. Packages should be marked "Oberholtzer Transfer." Shipments by Adams Express should be marked "North Philadelphia Station," which is a depot of the Express Company.

The show will open at 2 P. M. on March 25th and the opening ceremony will take place at 3 P. M.

Anyone requiring a copy of the Final Schedule can obtain same on application to the Secretary.

Directors' Meeting.

By direction of President Daniel MacRorie, a meeting of the Board of Directors of this Society has been called, to take place at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, on Tuesday, March 28th, at 2.00 P. M., to continue until all business to come before the Board is completed.

COMING EXHIBITIONS.

March 17, 18, 19, Boston.—Spring Exhibition Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Horticultural Hall.

March 25-April 2, Philadelphia.—Fourth National Flower Show of the Society of American Florists, Convention Hall, Broad Street and Allegheny Avenue.

April 5-12, New York.—International Flower Show of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club, Grand Central Palace, Forty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, New York.

May 10, 14, Boston.—May Show Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Horticultural Hall.

National Flower Show Tickets.

Members of the Society in good standing visiting the National Flower Show in Philadelphia will be furnished with a Season Ticket of admission, upon arrival at Convention Hall.

It will facilitate the work of the secretary's Office, and prevent confusion and delay upon your arrival at the Exhibition Hall, if you will remit your 1916 assessment at this time. The 1916 badge button will be sent you by return mail.

The Proceedings of the Society for 1915, a volume comprising 364 pages, has been mailed to all members of the Society.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

53 West 28th Street,
New York, N. Y.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The Carnation Exhibition at the National Flower Show in Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2, will be known as the Silver Jubilee Exhibition. A special silver medal has been struck for the occasion and will be awarded to each winner of one or more first premiums in the competitive classes. These medals will be given in addition to the regular cash prizes. Another feature at this exhibition will be the class for the largest twelve blooms. The Kroeschell gold medal, valued at $50, will be offered in this class and should bring out an extraordinary display.

The regular A. C. S. judges will officiate, except in the retailers' section, which will be judged by W. J. Palmer, of Buffalo, W. L. Rock, of Kansas City, and F. C. W. Brown, of Cleveland. The regular judges are C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, Ill.; Wm. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, O.; E. Dailledouze, Brooklyn, N. Y.; E. A. Stroud, Strafford, Pa.; W. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y.

All entries for the carnation exhibit must be in the hands of the secretary not later than March 20. A $2 fine will be assessed against each entry arriving after that date. Prospective exhibitors will confer a great favor on the clerical force by sending in their entries at the earliest possible moment. There is an immense amount of detail work in connection with an exhibition of this size and nothing should be left that can be done early.

All members of the A. C. S. who have paid their dues for 1916 will be entitled to a season pass to the show. Certificates are being mailed to those whose dues are paid, which will be exchanged at the show for these passes. Please send in your dues at once and a certificate will be mailed to you.

A. F. J. BAUR, Sec'y.

GARDENERS' ESSAY CONTEST.

Chairman William H. Waite, of the Committee on Essays and Horticultural Instruction, of the National Association of Gardeners, has appointed Edwin Jenkins, Lenox, Mass.; William Downs, Chestnut Hill, Mass.; Arthur Smith, Reading, Pa.; William J. Stewart, Boston, Mass., and J. Harrison Dick, New York, N. Y., judges of the gardeners' essay contest. The report of the judges will be made public at the National Flower Show in Philadelphia on March 28th.

President W. N. Craig offers twenty-five dollars as a first prize, fifteen dollars as a second prize and ten dollars as a third prize in a new contest, for assistant gardeners, on any subject pertaining to horticulture, limited to twenty-five hundred words. The contest will close on November 1st and the winner will be announced at the annual convention of the Association in December. The essay committee will issue the rules regulating this contest shortly.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.

The special feature of the regular monthly meeting of this club held on the 7th inst was an address on "Winter Flowering Sweet Pea; its history and development," by Howard M. Earl. This address was quite a revelation to many. It will appear in full in a future issue. Many fine exhibits of sweet peas were made. Among these may be mentioned C. B. Newbold, C. S. Loeffler, Lititz, Pa.; D. H. Green, Brownsboro, Md.; Gude Bros., Washington, D. C.; Fred Carey, Kennett Square, Pa.; Yeatman & Way, Kennett Square; A. Harvey & Sons, Brandywine Summit, Pa., and John Curwen, Berwyn, Pa.

In addition there were some fine roses, carnations and other flowers of exceptional merit, including exhibits by Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., rose Prince de Bulgarie; Cottage Gardens Co., Cottage Maid carnations; Gude Bros., roses Red Radiance, J. L. Mock, and a seedling rose, a very fine flower, and John Curwen, Primula malacoides.

About fifty new members were proposed showing that the ninety-day probation is doing good work. There was a good deal of political and religious matter discussed contrary to the constitution and by-laws of the club.

HOLYOKE AND NORTHAMPTON FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

At the monthly meeting of this club, March 7th, at the greenhouses of Gallivan Bros., Smith's Ferry, Mass., James Whiting read the paper "Is Gardening a Profession?" and K. B. Ullman presented a paper on "Advertising" which provoked a good discussion and brought the retailers out of their shells. Exhibits made a fine showing. Mr. Schwartz, in charge of the greenhouses, had arranged a bank of Murillo tulips, a group of ericas, azaleas and ferns, and a crimson form of Primula obconica. G. H. Sinclair & Son showed Primula vulgaris, and vases of carnations and other flowers. F. D. Keyes & Son showed carnations. H.

E. Downer, Dendrobium nobile, Bauera rubioides, hyacinths, schizanthus and tulips. Congratulations were in order to G. H. Sinclair, that day appointed a Park Commissioner for the city of Holyoke.

NEW BEDFORD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual banquet of the New Bedford Horticultural Society was held Feb. 29, with a good attendance. At the regular March meeting, held Monday evening, the 6th, the paper on "Use of Native Plants for Ornamental Planting," sent out by the National Association of Gardeners, was read. It was decided to hold, as usual, four free shows this season—peony, rose, dahlia and chrysanthemum. The campaign for new members is progressing well, a considerable number having been already added. As soon as spring opens, an earnest effort in this line will be made and will undoubtedly be successful, as the society stands high in public favor, due to the very successful conduct of its shows for the last few years.

L. J. HATHAWAY, JR., President.

ST. LOUIS CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

At the next meeting of the Retail Florists' Association, March 20, at Mission Inn garden, a banquet will be given to which the heads of the five wholesale houses will be invited. The entertainment will be something out of the ordinary and they expect the entire membership to be present on this occasion.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club spent a pleasant evening on March 2 at the home of Secretary Beneke. An interesting program was laid out for the club meeting this week. These monthly meetings of the officers have been very beneficial to the club and the attendance has increased greatly as something new is always presented in that way. During the evening refreshments were served.

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

The success of the exhibitions for January and February have influenced the society to hold an exhibition in March, contrary to its usual custom. This exhibition will occur on Wednesday, March 15th, at the American Museum of Natural History, 77th street and Central Park West. Premiums are offered for collections of cut blooms of orchids, for both commercial and non-commercial growers, and also for roses and carnations for both classes of growers. For non-commercial growers only, premiums are offered for sweet peas, snapdragons, narcissus, tulips and lilies. The exhibition committee is also authorized to award prizes for plants or flowers of unusual merit or excellence of cultivation.

Schedules are now ready, and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, N. Y. City.

GEORGE V. NASH, Sec'y.

ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

This organization is assembled at Moline, Ill., this week (March 7 and 8) in its eleventh annual convention and exhibition. Details of the meeting we hope to record in our next issue. We have on hand the address of President C. W. Johnson, which gives an interesting account of the progress of the past year; also a valuable paper on fertilizers for roses by Prof. Muncie. Both of these papers will appear in a later issue.

LADIES' S. A. F.

"On account of the Secretary's inability to attend the National Flower Show, to be held in Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2, the President has authorized Mrs. Albert M. Herr to receive dues and give receipts for the same.

SEED TRADE

Canners' Bulldozing.

Several weeks ago we called attention to a new form of contract which the Wisconsin canners had adopted, and were trying to impose on the pea and bean growers. This contract contained several objectionable features, such as forbidding the "blending" of seed, meaning that each farmer's crop was to be kept separate during the process of threshing, milling, screening and handpicking, and each lot of seed was to bear the name of the farmer who grew it and just where it was grown. Just how all this was to benefit the canner, neither they nor anyone else has yet explained, but it would simply compel the seed grower to disclose the name of the farmer who grew the seed and his location. It is needless to point out that this is a confidential matter with every seed grower, and that under no conceivable conditions could such information be of any practical value to the canner.

In addition to the aforementioned clause was another telling the seed grower on what basis to plant in order to fulfil his contracts. In fact, the seed grower was not consulted at all, the canners having decided in their infinite wisdom that they would name the terms and conditions under which the seed grower was to transact his business.

Tearing Down the Fences.

The feature most objectionable to the seed grower, however, was the elimination of the non-warranty clause, or as it is generally known the "disclaimer," as adopted by the American Seed Trade Association. This matter came to a head in December last during the meeting of the Wisconsin Canners' Association at Milwaukee. When the matter was presented to the seed growers, nearly all of the principal growers being represented, a meeting was called to discuss the matter, and it was unanimously agreed that the proposed contract was so objectionable that it could not be accepted by the growers. It was evident, however, that there were a number of weak sisters who had not the moral courage to oppose the other growers at the moment, but who were only waiting for an excuse to disregard the sentiment expressed at the meeting referred to, and accept the canners' contract. The first break was made by one of the very smallest of growers located in the West, who heard voices and saw ghosts booking contracts for seed peas from the canners, and being unable to resist the temptation, surrendered and began writing contracts on the canners' blanks. At the time of the National Canners' Convention at Louisville this man was the only one who had broken what was in effect an agreement not to accept the canners' contract. Nearly all of the growers represented at the Convention exchanged views on this subject and all signified their purpose to stand fast on the understanding reached at Milwaukee. Within a week or ten days following the Convention two of these growers, torn by conflicting emotions, were no longer able to resist the lure of the canners' contract and capitulated. They had the grace, however, to notify their competitors of their intention, and it was not long before the conservative members of the American Seed Trade Association, realizing that this would mean the practical nullification of the disclaimer, decided that prompt and radical action was necessary to avert this disaster. Accordingly a meeting was called for Chicago for the 2nd instant, to consider what steps should be taken to avert the threatened trouble.

Danger Ahead.

It must be apparent to any thoughtful person that once the disclaimer was eliminated, it could not be confined to Wisconsin, but that not only the canner customers of the seed growers, but the seedsmen themselves would demand that the growers of peas and beans should write the same style of contract for them. In time the growers of every variety of seeds would have to surrender to the same demand, and thus the seed trade would be bereft of its only protection against careless or dishonest customers. If this situation did not appear to those who violated the fundamental principle of the American Seed Trade Association, they must have been lacking in ordinary discernment. We have not learned, as yet, what action was taken at the meeting in Chicago, but may possibly acquire the information in time for the next issue of Horticulture.

If so, we shall be pleased to give the information to our readers.

The Rennie Company's Disaster.

The recent fire which destroyed or seriously damaged the warehouse and seed stocks of the William Rennie Company of Toronto, Canada, seems to have wrought quite as severe damage as originally estimated. We understand that many stocks which it was thought were only slightly damaged have proved to be quite useless. This old reliable house has risen to the occasion with remarkable fortitude and energy, and while their losses may temporarily cripple them, they will probably emerge without any very great or permanent damage in the end.

Trade Conditions.

Notwithstanding the most inhospitable of weather, nearly all branches of the Seed Trade report good business, with excellent prospects. In fact, the trade is quite optimistic as compared with the feeling that existed earlier in the season. To be sure many have suffered great disappointment and much inconvenience by failure to secure stocks from Europe which they had confidently believed they would get, and this has undoubtedly meant some loss to many in the trade. However, it is surprising how the seed trade can adjust itself to new conditions, and most of the leading members have devised substitutions which will probably carry them through the season without great loss and with fair satisfaction to their customers.

Although yet comparatively early, offers of beans are beginning to appear where none could be bought for love or money not many weeks since. There seems always something hidden away in the old socks which can be brought forth in emergencies. However, it is well to remark that most of the beans being offered are of the Green Pod variety. Not many offers of Wax beans have been noted, and these very few offers are confined to one or two varieties.

There has been a very active de-

This New England climate produces fine, sturdy shrubs. Special trade prices. By the thousands, hardy Native and Hybrid Rhododendrons—transplanted and acclimated. Let us estimate.

Maltus & Ware, custom house brokers and forwarding agents of New York City, have addressed an open letter to the Secretary of State at Washington, calling attention to the great delay and embarrassment caused by the taking off and detention of important foreign mail by the British authorities at Falmouth, Eng., and elsewhere. Special instances are mentioned, among them the steamers New Amsterdam, Osterdyk and Noorderdyk from Rotterdam, which arrived in New York with many hundreds of cases of living plants for florists and nurserymen in this country which required prompt reforwarding on arrival, but all the invoices, bills of lading and other documents necessary for their proper disposition were missing. Messrs. Maltus & Ware suggested that the Secretary take up this matter with the British authorities with a view to setting aside on all mail vessels a portion of the mail to be known as Consignees Letters, containing bills of lading, consular invoices, waybills, and letters giving instructions for the disposition of perishable stock upon arrival, these letters to be placed in envelopes by the various forwarding agents in Rotterdam and other seaports in the presence of the British consul at that port and to be given in charge of the purser or other officer on board the vessel carrying the goods, for immediate inspection by the British authorities and allowed to accompany the property to destination.

CHICAGO.

W. E. Thompson has moved from his home at 1115 West Madison street to 1115 West Western Springs, Ill.

The condition of John Endus shows no improvement and at the same time he is very sick with pneumonia.

Sam'l Rabinowitz, formerly buyer for Poehlmann Bros. Co., instead of handling flowers, is now in the flour business, on the road in the interest of a relative.

Openings of spring styles at Marshall Field's and Stevens Bro.'s, called for the use of many hundreds of decorative plants in their suit sections. It was a matter of surprise and questionable as to its artistic fitness, when these palms were adorned with sprays of roses (artificial) and live ficus held rhododendrons on their long branches.

Mardi Gras called for a large number of flowers and the New Orleans shipments covered the week end. There was a good demand for stock and the orders helped make doubly brisk an already good business Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Notwithstanding this, the volume of business done with the old city is said to be much less than in former years.

The A. Henderson Co. has the retail part of its store nearly completed, the finishing touches being put on this week. The first retail catalog issued by this firm is now ready for mailing. Mr. Henderson, president of the company, is a man of judgment and his policy is the conservative and safe order. This adds a fourth firm doing a wholesale and retail seed business in the down-town district.

Several of the local growers have installed the Humphrey Heaters for warming the water used in the greenhouses. Great care has been taken to give no opportunity for gas to escape into the houses, but the matter is still in the experimental stage. Aside from the advantages to the plants in using warm water instead of cold, the saving in the loss of temperature in the house is a big item. The results are being watched with interest. The heaters are carefully encased when occupying a portion of the greenhouse.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

William F. Gude and George W. Hess last week accompanied W. F. Therkildson and E. C. Dungan on a visit to members of Congress and officials of the Post Office Dept. with a view to securing more equitable rates with respect to the mailing of price lists, catalogues and similar matter. Mention of this proposed legislation was made in our issue of last week.

The office of the Foreign Trade Adviser of the State Department has been notified by the British Embassy of the issuance of a permit by the British Foreign Office for the release from Rotterdam and the uninterrupted shipment to the United States of a quantity of florists' supplies of German production to the value of 2,850 marks for A. L. Randall & Co., Chicago.

A great deal of enthusiasm is being manifested by the Washington florists over the coming flower show at Philadelphia. Harry B. Lewis, chairman of the committee on transportation, has arranged for a special train to leave over the B. & O. R. R. at 10 A. M., Monday, March 27. Washington is also to be represented by its bowling team, which sends forth a challenge to all other strictly florists' club teams, and it is hoped that a match will be arranged for them. George C. Shaffer is looking after this and associated with him are George H. Cooke, Edward Niedomanski, Samuel Simmons, Captain William H. Ernest, George C. Dalgleish, Robert F. McLennan and Harry B. Lewis. Fred H. Kramer is to be in charge of the entertainment on the train.

PITTSBURGH.

Albert F. Vick, formerly manager of Buffalo, has joined the force of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

Edward Earl Ludwig, who is a senior in the Agricultural College at Cornell, visited his parents this week. Young Mr. Ludwig is a short stop on the first baseball team of Cornell.

Owing to the avalanche of semi-formal entertainments and weddings, which are invariably crowded in just preceding Lent, and several "pretty good funerals" (as a wholesale dispenser put it), the week has been one of favor in floral trade circles. With the exception of American Beauties, there has been plenty of stock for all.

An interesting feature of the March session of the Florists' Club of Pittsburgh last Tuesday evening was the presentation of a substantial testimonial to the retiring president, Neil McCallum. Congratulations galore were showered on William A. Clarke, treasurer of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company, on Friday, March 3, the day celebrating the fortieth anniversary of his entree into the floricultural world. Mr. Clarke, who was then a mere fad, made his "debut" on March 3, 1876, with the B. A. Elliott Company, which, as he expressed it, "covered the broad field of seeds, flowers, plants, trees, shrubbery, gold fish, rabbits, guinea pigs and monkeys." He is one of the most popular men in the trade.

Cincinnati—Roy Rudolph has taken charge of the business of his father, the late Max Rudolph. Roy has had several years' experience while associated with his father in the business and should be very successful.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kelley returned from their trip to Florida last Friday.

NEW YORK.

John Edgar Hoover, formerly G. E. M. Stumpp, who has been for thirty years an employee of the Stumpp establishment, has gone over to the wholesale business as salesman for P. J. Smith.

The general committee on the New York International Flower Show met on Monday of this week and had a very harmonious and highly elated session. The interest taken in this event is well shown by the fact that sixteen out of the membership of twenty were present at the meeting, although a violent storm was in progress.

Reed & Keller suffered a considerable loss from fire which broke out in their basket department at 120 West 25th street on Sunday, March 5. Fortunately the place was fully insured. The wire work department and general offices are going on as usual and commendable enterprise was displayed in the securing of temporary work-rooms with complete outfit for carrying on business within twenty-four hours after the conflagration.

Next Monday night the Florists' Club meeting—Rose Night. Exhibits of novelty roses are expected, and also many novelties in carnations that were not sent to the last meeting owing to the very severe weather. The question of inviting the S. A. F. to hold their 1917 Convention in New York will also be considered at this meeting. Chairman Thos. Boothe de Forest will make a report of the annual dinner committee. It is rumored that the Hotel Biltmore has been selected for this important event.

The Flower Show Committee are holding weekly meetings and are congratulating themselves upon the very satisfactory conditions in regard to the exhibition. All available space in the trade section has practically been taken up. There are more exhibitors in the trade section than there were a year ago, and there is a promise of many more large exhibits in the competitive section. Manager Arthur Herrington reports that the private gardeners in all sections of the country are only waiting the receipt of the final schedule so that they may send in their entries. Already many spaces have been reserved for the large groups and displays, and it is expected that this exhibition will be better than any of its predecessors. There is an active demand for trade tickets, the price of which has been placed at $20.00 per 100; in blocks of less than 100, 25 cents each. No orders received for less than 25.

The Dutchess County Horticultural Society meets on the second Wednesday, in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in the Fallkill Building, corner Main and Washington streets.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Robert Craig Company has disposed of a lot of land, 214 x 250 ft at the corner of 49th and Chestnut streets. The price paid is said to have been $50,000. The location will be used for a high school for Catholic boys.

William Kleinheinz was a recent visitor in the Long Island section of New York for the purpose of interesting large growers in the forthcoming Fourth National Flower Show. As everyone knows, "Big Bill" is a hustler and when he starts out to do anything, he does it well, and the result of his hard work as chairman of the Committee on Exhibits has already begun to be seen.

A concert and dance will be given under the auspices of The Florists' Club at Horticultural Hall, Saturday evening, March 11th, at 8 P. M. The musical clubs of the William Penn Charter School have arranged to give their best selections for which they have become noted and a treat is in store for the members and their friends. Admission by card only, which can be obtained free by applying to the secretary, David Rust, at Horticultural Hall.

BOSTON.

Simon Goldwult, who formerly worked for Mann Bros. of Randolph, Mass., and returned to Holland to go into the bulb business, has come back to this country for good and is now employed at the Hanover Greenhouses.

The death of Harry Berman from pneumonia on Monday, March 6, is mentioned in our obituary column. The deceased was a cripple and well-known amongst the florists. He has for the past ten years sold flowers around town, in office buildings, etc., and will be missed by a great number of friends in the flower market.

The funeral of Albert Roper took place on Sunday, March 5, at 2 o'clock. It was private and the following named gentlemen acted as honorary pallbearers: Louis Small and Louis Smith, of Tewksbury; S. J. Goddard, Wm. Nicholson and Wm. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, and Peter Fisher of Ellis, all life long friends of the deceased.

OUT OF THE GINGER JAR.

Tom Roberts and other distinguished readers of HORTICULTURE have been complaining. No Ginger Jar lately. The reason is not far to seek. The editor is afraid to print what is sent him from that source. By the time he gets through blue penciling there is nothing left. It is rumored that he is to be out of town next week, so perhaps a little sample will seep through. It is made short on the Sam Weller principle on the writing of love letters—making it brief so she'd wish there was more.

Dennis T. Connor, of Lord & Burnham Co., was confined to his bed for a week with a bad cold, but is around again all right. We are all glad. But Dennis has a grievance. Nobody made a fuss about it. Nobody seemed to know anything about it. Too bad about Dennis. Maybe he would like to be the Kaiser. If that gentleman has a sair wyme all the world holds its breath. However, we all know that it's only Denny's humorous Irish way of getting the joke on his friends. So that's all right.

We sympathize with our friend Samuel S. Pennock these days. What with articles for the Rose Annual, the presidential speech, and many other strenuous doings in intellectual composition, he has to sit up mornings to get there! Anyone can sit up nights and write things, but it takes a stern and ascetic philosopher to do them mornings. And then there's the Widener Building Annex. That is the worst of all. It takes afternoons away from business. The stray left on the doorstep without our knowledge or consent has to be fed just the same.

In looking over a rose list I was struck by the fact that Cornelia Cook was introduced as far back as 1855. Here it is 1916 and only about a year ago we got Francis Scott Key. Sixty years raising new roses—and good ones at that—is a record to be proud of. The American Rose Society should send John Cook a souvenir of its distinguished consideration.

We make strong claims about being neutral. But isn't there reason to doubt it when we stand for such a monstrosity as to the green carnation? They say they are working hard to popularize this in New York, Ireland and Berlin these days. However, there is not much need to worry. Unless Germany comes across by March 17 with a cargo of green aniline dye the divine flower will flourish in all its natural colors and all its original spicy fragrance.

One concern out West advertises the abomination at twenty-five cents a package. An Eastern house that wants a dollar a package says "nothing to it. Ours is the real green. Theirs is only greenery-yallery." So you see there's emulation and competition even in skulduggery.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

A HOUSE OF CYCLAMENS.

Our cover illustration shows a house filled mainly with cyclamen plants of more than ordinary merit. The greenhouses at Dixmont Hospital for the Insane at Dixmont, Pa., where the photograph was taken comprise about 10,000 sq. ft. of glass and are under the charge of Carl Becherer, whose name has appeared not infrequently in our columns as a grower of much ability. It may be stated, in passing, that Mr. Becherer has no assistance in his work other than from patients in the institution.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Cincinnati Florists' Society's next meeting will be held at Hotel Gibson on Monday, March 13th.

T. D. Hatfield, of Wellesley, Mass., read an interesting paper on plant propagation at Horticultural Hall, Boston, on Saturday, March 4.

The North Shore Horticultural Society held its regular meeting in Manchester, Mass., in February. Martin Eyberse was awarded a certificate of merit for a collection of carnations. It was voted to appropriate $50 for prizes in connection with the school gardens and to appoint a committee to instruct the children and carry on the work. It was voted to authorize the committee to have plans drawn for the proposed new Horticultural Hall and submit the same to the Society for approval. The essay on The Young Gardener's Opportunity in America was read by the Secretary.

Flower Market Reports

in. American Beauties are a little off as to quality, and the long-stem grades are scarce—a reversal of recent conditions when there were to be had but long stems. Carnations are very good and selling well. In fact we seldom see the market in just such healthy condition. By Saturday night there was not a bunch left over in any of the wholesale houses. The demand for cattleyas has improved a little and prices are firmer. Snapdragon is scarce. Lily of the valley is moving off a little better. Sweet peas are very plentiful except in the fancy grades. There is a lull in daffodil shipments; Golden Spur, Victoria, Trumpets, and other early sorts are about over, and the big fellows like Emperor, Horsfieldi, etc., are not yet in full crop.

The market was in ST. LOUIS fairly good condition until the bad weather came on March 1 which made things rather dull for the retailers. At the wholesale market stock of all kinds is quite plentiful and prices rather high considering the amount coming in daily. Sweet peas are in heavy supply and violets overload the market. Roses are normal. Carnations are up in price and are not over stocked. Bulb stock is plentiful and prices are about as usual. Greens have had quite a heavy demand and anything in this line sold well.

WASHINGTON The flower market with the commencement of the present week became stagnant, due to the approach of Lent. Growers and wholesalers expect a continuation of this condition for a week or ten days, but this period will have been long enough to break prices. Carnations continue scarce and these have been snapped up as soon as offered. Roses are becoming more plentiful and the quality is generally good. American Beauty roses are in larger supply and fine demand. Local orchids are completely off the market and the stock from other cities now being received meets with a very good sale at fair prices. There has been a scarcity of daffodils. The growers are better pleased with results this year with narcissus. Heretofore this flower has been grown in such profusion that there would be thousands of these go begging and the price would be hammered down so low that some of the growers discontinued the production of the flower entirely. The sales this season have averaged about $3 per hundred, a price which guarantees a fair return to the producer. A car strike, involving both of the local companies, which lasted two days and which practically demoralized the street car service, had a bad effect on general business, the florists suffering to some slight extent with other lines.

PERSONAL.

NEWS NOTES.

Hartford, Ct.—The greenhouses and business of Olsen & Francis, Main and Bristol streets, has been sold to A. C. Strom, of New Britain.

Tewksbury, Mass.—The murder of Albert Roper, which was reported in our issue of last week, is as much of a mystery as at the outset. Mr. Roper's son, Albert J. Roper, has been held without bail, charged with the crime, but there does not appear to be much on which the charge can be based. He claims to be able to prove a complete alibi and we hope sincerely that he may be able to do so. The funeral of the slain carnation grower was held on Sunday afternoon. The casket was banked high with flowers, including a magnificent tribute from the Flower Exchange in Boston.

Obituary

Harold Berman.

Harold Berman, a young florist of Rossmore, Mass., and well known in the Boston Flower Exchange died at his home in Rossmore on Monday, March 6, of diphtheria pneumonia. He was eighteen years old.

Joseph F. Vavrous.

Joseph F. Vavrous, of Lebanon, Pa., died suddenly at his home on Thursday evening, February 24, of dropsy, after a short illness, aged 56 years. Mr. Vavrous has been a resident of Lebanon for the past seven years, and during that time has built up quite a reputation as a florist. He was the head and founder of the present firm of J. F. Vavrous & Sons, florists.

William Wells, Sr.

Wm. Wells, Sr., of the Merstham Nurseries, Surrey, Eng., passed away on Monday, February 28, aged about 70 years. He was famous as a chrysanthemum grower, and was one of the international combination of chrysanthemum growers and distributors, the other members being Thomas W. Pockett, Australia, August Nonin, France, and Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J. He leaves a number of sons, all engaged in horticultural work.

M. J. Madden.

Chicago had for many years a landscape gardener policeman, for whose death the fashionable Hyde Park mourns. Little children brought many flowers to the home of their old friend, M. J. Madden, 5483 Dorchester avenue. He had planted the trees in old Hyde Park, and cared for them through their first hard years in a growing city and his love for them was as sincere as his love for the children, two generations of whom he had protected on the streets. His was a good example of the close relation between the love of plant life and child life.

John W. Dunham.

John W. Dunham died at his residence, 1204 North 19th street, Philadelphia, on February 29th. "Jack" Dunham, as he was familiarly known, was an associate member of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia for over twenty years, and took a keen interest in its affairs, especially in its social and sporting activities. He was known to many of the trade outside of Philadelphia, as he attended numerous S. A. F. conventions, and was noted as one of the most genial and lovable of men—a scholar, a gentleman, and a great bowler. We shall long cherish the memory of his many admirable qualities. G. C. W.

August Kruger.

August Kruger died at his home, 1102 South Park avenue, Meadville, Pa., Friday night, February 25, aged about 75 years. He had been in poor health for some time, though his final serious illness covered a period of only about one week. Mr. Kruger was doubtless one of the best known men in Meadville, where for a period of 36 years he conducted a successful florist business, and made many life-

Potash Problem Solved Alphano Richly Supplied Wonder-Worker for Potatoes

EVERY ton of Alphano contains seven dollar worth of Potash. Many soils already contain potash, but in a form not useable by plant life. Alphano is teeming with busy billions of soil-digesting bacteria which converts the soil potash and other properties into plant foods readily available. In addition, then to the phosphate, nitrogen, and potash Alphano contains, it also sets free those locked up minerals in the soil. These facts explain why Alphano gives both prompt, as well as long enduring enriching benefits to soil. For vegetables, flowers, and lawns; the results are both immediate and lasting. When sowed in the drill with potatoes, or other vegetables it renders the soil highly productive. The right hand pile of the above potatoes was grown in one of several rows of sandy soil, treated with a commercial fertilizer costing $45 a ton. The left hand pile from one of the other rows treated with a like amount (but not value of Alphano Humus). At our office we have on file, sworn affidavits to the above facts, made by the grower, C. W. Baines, of Newport News, Va. Send for the Alphano Book. Find out what Alphano is—how prepared and how entirely it differs from the water weighed, swamp humus, sold under various trade names.

$10 a ton in bags by the carload.
$8 a ton in bulk by the carload.

long friends. He was the typical industrious, conscientious, frugal German-born citizen, loyal to the country of his adoption and equally loyal to his friends, living an exemplary Christian life and meriting in the highest measure the esteem in which he was held in the community. Since his retirement from business, in which he was succeeded by his son, Henry J. Kruger, several years ago, he and Mrs. Kruger have lived in quiet retirement.

Mr. Kruger was born in Hohenniedorf, Germany, Aug. 10, 1841, served through the French-Prussian war after which he came to America, his first stop being at Buffalo, N. Y., taking charge of the Letchworth estates, both at Buffalo and Auburn, N. Y., where he built extensive greenhouses for those days. In 1881 he purchased the greenhouses of Herman Munz at Meadville, Pa., then as now called the Greendale Conservatories, which through hard and honest toil he has brought up to the present standard. After being in Buffalo about nine months he sent for his sweetheart, then Helen Barby by name, whom he married in New York upon her arrival in this country. He was buried in the family lot in Greendale Cemetery, Monday, Feb. 28th.

Johnsville, Pa.—Fire partly destroyed James Moss' upper range of greenhouses about 4 A. M., Saturday, March 4. By the prompt arrival of the local fire company from Southampton they were able to save part of the greenhouse, also the main house, with farm building, stock and implements. The wind was blowing a gale and the thermometer was zero outside. Nearly everything in the houses was ruined.

Use This Pure Plant Food

For Your Garden and Lawn

A SHREDDED MANURE HUMUS COMPOST

Magic Humus is a pure plant food unleached and unburnt. It contains more Potash, Phosphoric Acid and Ammonia in available form to the ton than any commercial fertilizer, pulverized manure or plain burnt leached humus. These essentials, together with Compost make a ready soil.

Magic Humus is the one Compost that possesses the body and fibre to absorb and retain Nature's moisture a long time after it is put into the ground.

Ordinary commercial fertilizer contains no Humus, can't spread its fertilizing properties and is only available to the soil in the spot where the material is drilled in.

Magic Humus spreads itself and enriches the soil all around. It comes to the gardener after months of careful preparation, thoroughly suited by Nature, free from weed and seed, without the odor so peculiar to other fertilizers, is sanitary and agreeable to handle.

Magic Humus can be used on the top of sand or hard ground as a soil, or cultivated into the ground in the garden with a hand cultivator or plow.

The garden receiving a liberal application of Magic Humus Compost is permanently enriched with plant food and soil.

TWO HANDSOME MEDALS.

Kroeschell Bros. Co. of Chicago donate to the American Carnation Society a gold medal, value $50, to be awarded at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, for the twelve largest carnation blooms, any color or variety. This medal is made of yellow, red and green gold, 14 carat, weight 12 pennyweight. The background is of yellow gold. The center is matted yellow gold and encircles a hand-carved carnation of red gold. The calyx and foliage of the carnation are of green gold.

The outer circle has the lettering in blue enamel "Kroeschell Gold Prize, Philadelphia," and on raised gold surface the figures "1916."

Kroeschell Bros. Co. also donate to the American Rose Society a gold medal, value $50.00, to be awarded at Philadelphia. What this should be offered for has been left to President S. S. Pennock of the American Rose Society. This medal is also of yellow, red and green gold, 14 carat, weight 14 pennyweight. The background is yellow gold encircled with a band of green gold with the same inscription in blue enamel as the preceding. The center is a hand-carved rose of red gold, with foliage of green gold, set in a field of matted yellow gold.

Upon the reverse side of each medal will be engraved the name of the winner, award and date. These medals are so arranged that same may be worn as a watch charm if desired

MASSACHUSETTS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE NOTES.

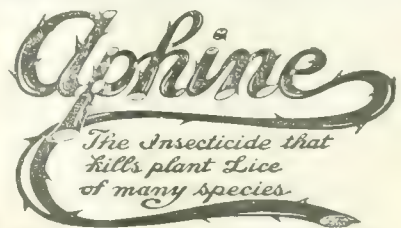

All sorts of flowers are selling well in the vicinity, violets and sweet peas particularly.

The Graduate School of Agriculture will be held at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, July 3 to 28, 1916. For details, address Charles E. Marshall, Assistant Dean of the School, Amherst, Mass.

The classes in Floriculture, including the short course students, made their annual Boston trip this week, visiting many large establishments in and near Boston, several private estates and the flower markets.

Next week is Farmer's Week at the college. Lectures are to be given on every phase of Agriculture and Horticulture. There will also be several shows, including corn show, flower exhibits, dairy products exhibits, etc. A record attendance is expected.

WHEN Theodore Wirth left the management of the City of Minneapolis to take his present position at the head of the wonderful Park System of Minneapolis, he left in hand the good work done by J. A. Weber on one of Hartford's notable houses. When Mr. C. G. Goodrich wanted a highly artistic superintendent, Mr. Wirth promptly recommended Mr. Weber, who ably fills the position. It is noted that among the first things he brought about after taking the job was the building of the Goodrich house.

The new or second of location of this fine old building was moved, turned into an advantage.

The New Rose, Mrs. Bayard Thayer

Just as you are getting this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large flowered roses which is rapidly making its way here. We introduced Mrs. Charles Russell, of which the new one is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink. Shade of petals a shade darker. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society medal over a strong class of competitors at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points.

PRICE LIST: Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Dark Russell

Grafted Plants (only) ready after March 1st, 1916. Eyes ready now.

WABAN ROSE CONSERVATORIES, Natick, Mass.

ROSE GROWERS You shouldn't be without RIMADONNA. A grand deep pink Rose—darker, better form than the Russell—very fragrant and constant bloomer—always sells at highest American Beauty prices. $15.00 per 100, $125.00 per 1000. Order early.

CARNATION GROWERS "LAURA WEBER" is a most pleasing shade salmon pink—a high-grade bloom, remains strong till Summer, does not fade out, always commands better than the highest market price. You can't go wrong on buying 100 or 250 cuttings, if you don't care to get 1000 or more. Prices, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. First come, first served. Order now.

MUM GROWERS—Here are two most desirable varieties: "ALEX GUITMAN," a very early lavender pink, comes in bloom middle of September—Exhibition size, foliage not too large—can be planted close, $35.00 per 100; and "EMMA," a garza type anemone double Pompon, light pink—it's a dandy. You will make no mistake by getting these. Comes in about November 15th, stays to December. $15.00 per 100. Plants now ready.

Write us for further particulars. We have more good things coming!

THE Wholesaler, as well as the Retailer, is a necessity—each has his special function. "Ours" is to secure the best obtainable. "Yours," to carry the finest to maintain your business. Our interests are interlaced.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Life

Chrysanthemums

For medium and late varieties, of course, good stock can be propagated as late as the middle of May, but to have first class stock get all the propagating done as soon after March as possible. Long and lanky growth should be discarded and only stout, straight cuttings, coming direct from the root of the clumps should be taken. A temperature of from 45 to 50 degrees is about right to root in. When the cuttings have made roots half an inch long, pot them. They are permanently weakened by being left in the sand too long. Early varieties and those that are intended for exhibition should not be allowed to get root-bound. It is very important to look to soil fertility if you mean to produce fine plants and bloom. Sod that was piled up last fall and mixed at the rate of one part of well-decomposed manure to three of chopped sod is good for shifts up to May.

Care of Seedlings

The earliest seedlings will now need pricking out into other flats. Use for all seedlings a compost with a good proportion of leaf mold in it. If some well broken-up cow manure or the manure from a spent hot-bed or mushroom bed is added the seedlings will grow all the better. Shade all newly pricked off seedlings for a few days. A neglect to do this may mean a loss of many of the little plants. As the days lengthen and the sun increases it will be necessary to watch them. See that all seedlings are kept as near the glass as possible, as it insures a stocky and robust growth. Careful and thorough watering and a moderately close and moist atmosphere for the first few days will reduce losses to a minimum. In addition to seedlings, there are many small cuttings which are just as well, or better, in shallow flats than in pots. Never leave them in the cutting bench to become hard.

Fancy Leaved Caladiums

A good way to start caladium tubers is to place them in a flat with some moss on the bottom. On this they can be arranged close together. Fill in and cover them all over with about an inch of moss. The flats can be placed in a temperature of from 65 to 70 degrees at night and on some bench where they can have a vigorous bottom heat, to start well. When they have made a fair amount of roots they can be potted into 3 or 4-inch pots, using plenty of drainage. For a compost mix turfy loam three parts, leaf mold two parts and well decomposed cow manure one part, and some sand. For good-sized plants keep shifting until they are in 5 or 6-inch pots. Give a large amount of atmospheric moisture and a damping down at least three times a day. Be very careful about ventilation at this season.

Tuberous-Rooted Begonias

The little seedlings that came from sowings made during January will soon be ready to go into small pots. Use good soil and leaf mold in equal quantities and one-third sand. If seedlings can be given a warm place for the first three months little trouble will be experienced. Corms started by the middle or end of March will grow into salable blooming plants by June. Use 3-inch flats. Put on the bottom of these boxes some moss and make a light sandy porous mixture to fill the flats within one inch of the top. Plant the bulbs a few inches apart half their depth in it and then spread some moss over all. When they have three or four leaves they can go into 4-inch pots. As the sun becomes stronger they will need some shade during mid-day.

Odontoglossums

Plants that have not been repotted yet should be attended to without delay. There is no question that autumn potting is the best. A very satisfactory compost is chopped live sphagnum, fibrous peat and charcoal. Give plenty of air, but using care to avoid cold draughts. Of course a good deal of judgment will have to be used as to outside conditions. Give judicious light syringing on all bright days, taking care in dull or wet weather not to have the atmosphere overcharged with moisture. Better keep a little more fire heat so as not to entirely cut off ventilation, or induce a stagnant atmosphere. The temperature through the spring months should range about 55 degrees at night and from 60 to 65 degrees with sunshine. They will stand as low as 50 degrees without, injury, but less water and syringing should be given under such circumstances. You will have to increase shading as the sun becomes powerful, but do not overdo it.

Starting Bulbous Stock

In order to keep up the supply of spring flowering bulbous plants you will need to bring in a batch about every three weeks into heat. See that they do not suffer for the want of water as they fairly live upon it. A good temperature for most bulbous plants is from 60 to 65 degrees at night, with the usual rise during the day. When they are over half out give them about 10 degrees lower. Also they will need some shade to hold the color of the flowers.

Formaldehyde; Hydrangea paniculata

JOHN J. M. FARRELL:

Dear Sir—Please tell me the best way to sterilize with formaldehyde. Would you also tell me how to prune Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora bush plants bedded out last October, and oblige Massachusetts.

A SUBSCRIBER.

In answer to A Subscriber, I would say to sterilize with Formaldehyde the best way is the drench system; that is to every 50 gallons of water add 3 or 3½ pints of Formaldehyde. Where the soil is in a bench or about 6 inches in depth you would need about one gallon of the mixture to every square foot, so as to penetrate through. If a foot deep then two gallons will be necessary. After treating with Formaldehyde do not use the soil for at least a week or ten days.

Hydrangea paniculata should be pruned back to 2 or 3 buds of last year's growth. The harder back they are pruned the larger the flower heads will be.

Next Week:—Care of Fleus; Easter Trade Suggestions; Palms; Pandanus Veitchii; Smilax; Outside Work.

monthly spring up have a great field and opening to develop service by bringing together women interested in any form of agriculture and horticulture and enlisting the support of philanthropically disposed people for the purpose of helping and encouraging women who desire to make a living in these lines of work. The movement already creates a very extended field for the Women's National Agricultural and Horticultural Association, which is one of the most active, now includes among its members women from every state of the Union. The conditions imposed by the turmoil in Europe, whereby Americans are compelled to seek their relaxations and social pastimes in their own land are especially favorable at the present time for such enterprises and, with wise far-seeing policies patiently and thoroughly carried out, the outlook is very encouraging for the future advancement of horticulture through the work and influence of these helpful auxiliaries.

Our editorial note "Time to Call a Halt"

Drifting published in a recent issue, has called forth a number of letters from readers in various parts of the country, some of these favoring protest against the drastic recommendations of the federal inspectors in the matter of plant imports, while others take the ground that it is best not to interfere with any legislation which has for its object the restriction or prohibition of any and all horticultural imports from foreign countries. A request from most of the writers of these letters that their identity be kept confidential prevents our presenting them in regular form in our reading columns but, as will be surmised, the line of business in which the writers are severally engaged has much to do with their views for or against the restrictive measures as applied to plant importations.

We think it hardly necessary to assure our readers who have followed these editorial columns regularly, of our hearty sympathy with all proper efforts to develop and expand our home production and this to the end that we may in due time become entirely independent of foreign supply, but the time is not in sight yet nor does there seem to be any organized movement of any magnitude thus far to bring this condition about. Therefore we fail to see that the plan suggested by the horticultural inspectors would accomplish any good for the florist and nursery trade but, on the contrary, much harm, by disorganizing and embarrassing the trade in some of its most efficient commercial channels. On the other hand, we would respectfully again recommend that if the horticultural inspecting department of the government work is to bestow any signal benefaction upon the horticultural interests of this country the sooner they get into friendly affiliation with these interests and consult the representative men of American horticulture on the work to which they have been assigned the better it will be for us all. We have been told of instances where the inspectors have wanted to destroy perfectly healthy Manetti stocks because they mistook the callous at the base of the cuttings for "root gall" or some other wart affliction. Plenty more might be said on this phase of the subject. Our columns are open to any who are interested and have the courage to sign their names.

Helpful auxiliaries

In our reading columns this week there will be found notes on two interesting events planned for the coming season directly under the management of women. Some means for promoting a more effective and practical participation in horticultural activities by women has long been sought but progress has been rather slow for obvious reasons. The new organizations which have

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

The Rose Growers' Garden

Nine times out of ten the rose growers' home is located far from town, friends, and often neighbors, and although the inexpensive auto has done a great deal to make life more cheerful a good garden will brighten things up still more. It is nice recreation after a day in the rose houses, to put in an hour or two in the garden. Not only can a great many nice vegetables be grown but fruits and flowers as well. The latter should not be overlooked as there is nothing nicer than a bunch of flowers on the dinner table, or in the different rooms. A bed of roses will furnish cut blooms for the house away into November and there are many pretty annuals and perennials that can be easily grown, adding greatly to the attraction of the home inside and out. By utilizing odd spaces in the greenhouse here and there plants can be started early and with a continuous supply of vegetables, flowers and fruit the cost of living can be greatly reduced, leaving much more to be spent on other pleasures, books, travel, church, etc., to say nothing of the saving in doctor bills. It is time now to see that all the grape vines, fruit trees, gooseberries and other small fruits are pruned so that they will not waste a good deal of energy by putting strength into wood which is later removed. The grapes especially will need attention early, for if pruning is not done real early the grapes will bleed badly. Fruit experts tell us that it does no harm and that all the plants let go is water, but I would rather see the grapes pruned early so that they will not bleed. Later they should be tied up properly and all perennial weeds removed, and if a bench of roses is taken out to make room for newly potted stock take the soil to the garden and see that it gets a good coat. A good coat of manure should be given, which can be horse manure, as this is easier to get as a rule. Prepare the soil with the same care that you do the soil for the best roses and there will be no disappointment when it comes to reaping the harvest. The lawn and shrubbery will need attention too, as will the paths and walks. Do not forget several nice bird houses, for without birds there seems to be something missing in every garden. Oh shucks! some one will say I see all the flowers I want to in the greenhouse! Very true, no doubt, but how about Mrs. Rose Grower? Make it a point to have a nice garden this year with plenty of vegetables, flowers and birds, and see if you and yours do not feel younger at the end of the year instead of older.

The Ventilators

With very severe weather such as we have been getting lately it has been necessary to keep the fires going for quite a while in the morning to keep the houses up to their temperature. Now, however, with spring almost here the days are bound to be warmer and it will be necessary to stop the boilers early in the morning or the houses would get too hot. Air will also have to be put on much sooner and as the houses will go up much quicker it will be necessary to see that the vents are looked after well and air applied often enough. Were the temperature allowed to run away up the plants will soon become soft and likely get a touch of mildew. At night it will be advisable to keep the vents open a little bit until after the sun goes down, especially on houses that are in good order and are tight. It will soon be best to carry a crack of air all night but it may be too cold for this for a while to come yet. As soon as the thermometer outside does not drop below 40 the air at night will help keep the plants healthy. Of course it should only be carried on clear nights, shutting the houses down on wet, foggy or windy nights.

Temperature for Keeping Roses

Mr. Arthur Ruzicka.

Dear Sir:—Will you kindly tell me the correct temperature an ice box or refrigerator should be to keep roses until they are shipped? Thanking you for past favors,

Yours truly,

J. H.

Oneonta, N. Y.

Between 45 and 50 degrees F., is what our ice box generally stands and we think this is plenty cold enough to harden the roses before they are shipped to the market. As a rule it is best to ask the dealer to whom they are shipped as he can tell better, knowing just in what condition the roses arrive and what they have to go through before they are sold to the consumer. If the roses are kept too cold it seems to stop the stems taking water and if the roses are brought out into a warm room directly after they come out of a very cold box they will wilt right down, until such a time as the stems begin to take water again. Rather than run the ice box very cold we would cut the roses a shade tighter and keep the ice box around 48. The water will then continue to draw up and if the temperature does not go below this, but rather above, the buds will continue to develop, but not to open.

ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

This Association held its annual convention at Moline, Ill., March 7. It was a very successful and enthusiastic affair. Mayor Caffery of Moline opened the proceedings with an address which was reported to by Vice-President Philbrick. Officers' reports and the various resolutions passed were all interesting and instructive. The officers of last year, C. W. Johnson, president, J. L. Philbrick, first vice-president, J. F. Amman, secretary and F. L. Washburn, treasurer were all re-elected by an unanimous vote.

The banquet at the Moline Commercial Club in the evening was a delightful occasion. There was a very creditable collection of exhibits of decorative plants, flowers, supplies heating apparatus, etc.

Among the important addresses in the business meeting and at the banquet were the following: Report of Work on Fertilizers by Prof. F. W. Muncie; Pathological Work, prepared by Prof. G. G. Peltier and read by E. Lauterbach, Christmas and Easter Flowering Plants by W. E. Tricker, Work of the Division of Floriculture by H. B. Dörner, and Soils by Dr. W. E. Taylor.

Extracts From President C. W. Johnson's Address.

This is the first time that we have met in the far western part of the state and I feel sure that the Association will greatly profit by it and that every member will be benefited beyond measure for any sacrifice he has undertaken to attend this meeting. It will enable us to get acquainted with the florists of this part of the state as well as those from our neighbor state of Iowa.

Professor Dörner informs me that there are more students taking up the study of floriculture than at any other time. I have had the privilege of having some of these students work with me during the summer months, and found them to be clean cut earnest young men, and the question that presents itself to me is—"How are these young men going to be received by the trade after they are through with their studies? Will they receive remunerative salaries commensurate to the study they have put in to have made their efforts worth while?" Surely, these young men trained to the conditions of this country ought to be able to show better results than men of more mature years who have not had the same advantages.

Just a few words for the good of the Association, the first matter being the non-payment of dues. The secretary advises me that he is at his wits end to find a way to induce the members to pay their dues regularly. It certainly cannot be the annual amount of $1.00 that is standing in the way, but it seems to be just neglect on the part of the members to attend to the matter on time.

I am not sure whether our Association is eligible to affiliate with the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists under its rule of one hundred paid up S. A. F. & O. H. members, and I would suggest that the secretary take the matter up with Secretary John Young of the S. A. F. & O. H. To my mind a representative from every state society in the union on the board of directors of the National Society would be an ideal arrangement. If it can be done, let our Association be the first.

As a State Association I believe our work should cover a more extended field than the Florists' Clubs of the cities, and that we should aim to get into close relations with the commercial bodies of the state. There is a growing interest among Improvement Societies and Women's Clubs throughout the state to hold local flower shows during the summer months and I believe that we as an Association could help in this work by contributing a display through our membership and assist in the judging of the exhibits.

The wet summer of 1915 was a bad season for the carnation plants in the field and to it can be traced, to a great extent, the reason of the short supply of carnation flowers during the winter, but it would seem that growers are not watchful enough of their plants and fail to recover themselves according to the conditions of the weather. The grower who brought in his carnation plants early and thus saved them from a great deal of the wet weather, has been well repaid by being able to supply a good lot of flowers at a high price.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The Executive Committee of the American Rose Society met in New York City on Monday, March 13, to go over the work of preparation for the coming exhibition and annual meeting. The annual meeting will be held in Convention Hall, Philadelphia at 7.30 P. M. on Monday, March 27. The judges appointed for the various classes are as follows:

Saturday, March 25, 1 P. M. Plants—Messrs. Philip Brinkley, Detroit, Mich., Alex. B. Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa., George C. Thomas, Jr., Philadelphia.

Cut Roses—Monday, March 27, 2 P. M. Private classes—Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, L. I., N. Y., Eugene Dilledouze, Flatbush, N. Y., and Victor Groebens, Roslyn, Pa. Commercial classes: Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill., John H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ontario, and Wm. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo. 25 Class: Frank H. Friendly, New York City, Fred. Burki, Pittsburgh, Pa. and Robert Craig, Philadelphia, Pa.

Thursday, March 30, 2 P. M. Rose Display and Retailers: A. B. Cartledge, Philadelphia, Pa., James Forbes, Portland, Oregon, and W. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Dorrance medal will be awarded as a sweepstake prize. This medal was won last by Gude Brothers of Washington, D. C.

The blanks for entries are all to be sent to Benjamin Hammond, Widener Building, Room 1205, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Annual for 1916, the best book the American Rose Society has yet issued, is being mailed to all members that are paid up, and tickets of admission will also be issued to all paid up members. At the annual meeting there will be various important matters to come up, and the time fixed for the meeting is on a day when we hope to obtain a large attendance of members.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The meeting of this Club on Monday evening, March 12, was a big and enthusiastic one, no less than 175 members being present, notwithstanding that a wild storm was in progress. After reports on the "Din Dan" by Joe Fenrich and the Philadelphia excursion by Abe Miller, a lively discussion came up on the project of inviting the S. A. F. to hold the 1917 Convention in New York. The proposition was passed unanimously. The perennial question of entertainment of Convention visitors was thrashed out by the leading orators of the Club with the usual result that if the time-honored custom is to be abandoned some other town will have to set the example. Emil Schloss arraigned the retail florists for their tardiness in advancing the prices for their goods in line with the enhanced cost of all supplies.

According to returns in hands of Secretary Young the coming Spring Flower Show at the Grand Central Palace will be a record breaker. Trade tickets are selling rapidly, a great deal more trade exhibition space has been sold than ever before and the "gate" receipts are expected to beat all previous records.

The storm prevented any large display on the exhibition tables but there was an attractive array of Rose Mme. Euler, Carnation Peace and other specialties by Guttman & Raynor, flats of new narcissi by M. van Waveren & Sons, of Hillegom, Holland, Narcissi from P. W. Popp and a vase of Carnation Aviator.

BUFFALO FLORISTS' CLUB.

At a meeting of the Buffalo Florists' Club, held March 8 at the Hofbrau and attended by more than 100 of the leading florists of the city and suburban towns, a resolution endorsing the proposed flower and fashion show to be given by the Buffalo Lodge of Elks at the Broadway Auditorium from April 6 to 12 was unanimously adopted. William F. Kasting offered the resolution and in submitting it to the members, called upon them to give their hearty support to the show and to make plans whereby they would individually and collectively make the

the following as members of the committee: Mark Palmer, Robert Scott, Charles Sandiford, W. Adams, L. Neubeck, Edward Stroh, Charles Ginther, W. Silvers and W. F. Kasting.

Officers were elected for the coming year as follows: President, E. C. Brucker; vice-president, William Sievers; secretary, William Legg; financial secretary, Mark Palmer; treasurer, Edward Stroh; directors, Louis Neubeck, Edward J. Palmer and William F. Kasting.

E. C. McLeish, professor at Hutchinson High School, spoke on "Advertising and Salesmanship."

The annual report of the Nebraska State Horticultural Society for 1915 is now off the press. The report contains three hundred pages of the latest information on fruit, flower, vegetable and tree growing in Nebraska. It is fully illustrated with twenty-seven full page engravings of fruit, flower and vegetable scenes on Nebraska farms.
It is a most creditable production.

A FIELD OF WHITE AND RED PINE, AT OLD TOWN NURSERIES,

The widespread interest in reforestation and the utilization of run-out farm tracts for the production of timber has made a big demand for young trees in this country. The prohibition against the importation of pines and other disease infested stock from abroad acts as a further encouragement for local production. One of the several enterprises engaged in this work in the vicinity of Boston is the Old Town Nurseries of M. P. Haendler, and the accompanying illustration gives an idea of what Mr. Haendler is doing in that line. There is practically no limit to the demand for material of this class at the present time.

SEED TRADE

Seedsman's Disclaimer.

At a meeting of seed growers and seed merchants, held in Chicago, Thursday, March 2, thirty-two delegates were present, representative of twenty-six establishments, and after a full discussion of the Seedsman's Disclaimer the subject was referred to a committee of five, consisting of two growers elected by the seed merchants present and three merchants elected by the seed growers present, the committee consisting of J. C. Robinson of the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., C. N. Keeney of N. B. Keeney & Son, Kirby B. White of D. M. Ferry & Co., F. W. Bolgiano of F. W. Bolgiano & Co., of Washington, and J. C. Vaughan's Seed Store.

The committee's report was as follows:

"The seedsman present at a conference at the Sherman Hotel, Chicago, on March 2, 1916, re-affirm and endorse the non-warranty clause known as the American Seed Trade Association Non-Warranty clause and believe that all sales or agreements of sale, wherever made, should contain said clause.

"In those contracts of sale, or sale of seeds, wherein for any reason, and contrary to the recommendation of the American Seed Trade, said non-warranty clause is waived, it is the opinion of said seedsman that for such waiver, or non-use of said non-warranty clause, the seller should receive an additional purchase price for the seed by way of insurance and so stated as a term of the sale or agreement of sale and that the seller should be liable in any event for not more than the purchase price of said seed."

The report was adopted by acclamation and by a standing vote.

BURNET LANDRETH, Sec'y.

The Catalogue Postage Bill.

Chairman Therikildson of the Postal Laws Committee of the American Seed Trade Association, sends the following letter:

You will note that Senator Burkhead has introduced in the Senate Post Office and Post Roads Committee, as a rider to the Post Office Appropriation Bill, Senate Bill 4997, which is an adjusted form of H. R. 11621.

I, together with Mr. Duggan of Maule's and a conference with several of the Senators and Representatives, also Mr. Koons, Mr. Woods and Mr. Dockery of the Post Office Department, and Senate 4997 has their endorsement so far as introducing is concerned. It will, of course, have to be again referred to them for their approval before it can get by. It may never become a law but we can at least try, and I am assured by Mr. Koons of the Post Office Division, that they are not only willing but anxious to do all that they can for the various catalog makers.

Sincerely yours,
W. F. THERIKILDSON, Chairman,
Postal Laws Committee, A. S. T. A.

One Week's Imports

Imports at the port of New York of horticultural material for the week ending March 3d, were recorded as follows:

Bulbs—Denmark, $20; France, $28; Italy $8; Netherlands, $9,673; England, $861; Hongkong, $1,673; Japan $198.

Plants, etc—France, $7,557; Netherlands, $39,478; England, $633; Scotland, $3; Ireland, $62.

Red Clover Seed—France, $180,439; Italy, $122,903.

Grass Seed—Denmark, $311; Scotland, $250; Ireland, $91.

All other seeds—Denmark, $387; France, $1,473; Germany, $276; Italy, $611; Netherlands, $16,023; England, $17,184; Chile, $4,742; British Indies, $3,160; British East Indies, $2,450; Japan, $34; Argentine, $4,618.

Nitrate of soda—Chile, $11,399.

Kainit—Peru, $555.

Sulphate of potash—Peru, $6,048.

Flood Damage in Holland.

A letter from Sluis & Groot, of Enkhuizen, Holland, concerning the damage to fields and premises from the horrible floods which recently devastated a great part of that country, tells us the island of Marken as well as the towns and villages of Edam, Monnikendam, Brock in Waterland, etc., were involved in the catastrophe and although only sixteen persons were drowned the population has suffered enormously and many refugees have been sheltered under the roofs of the surrounding towns and villages.

They add that the polder in which they live, the ground of which is very fertile had a narrow escape, for the dikes were partly destroyed in many places and even houses were badly damaged by the big waves, which came over the dams, so that people living near the dikes passed an awful night.

Only one of their gardens of about thirty acres, outside of the main dikes and surrounded by a lower dam, was entirely flooded, so that they will not be able to grow any flower and vegetable stock seeds in it during the next few years but they have taken measures elsewhere, so that their business will not in any way be impaired by this calamity.

Notes.

Lincoln, Neb.—It is expected that a dividend of 5 per cent will be paid to the creditors of the Griswold Seed Company, recently declared bankrupt.

W. A. Philippo, representative of M. van Waveren & Sons, of Hillegom, Holland, is now in this country on his annual business visit to the large American seed houses.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

BOSTON.

Very few Boston growers are coming over this year and local buyers will find a convenient source of supply in A. Hanes, of Weymouth, who is representing K. J. Kuyk, of Ghent, and will book orders at regular import prices.

Montague Chamberlain, ex-president of the American Gladiolus Society, has been in the Mass. Homeopathic Hospital, for the past two weeks, following a serious operation. He was on the dangerous list for some time but we are pleased to state that he is now convalescing nicely.

The Boston Herald, in its advance notes on the March Show at Horticultural Hall, says that "over half a million blooms" are to be seen there. Probably, if one counts the individual flower on the ericas, schizanthuses and acacias. Perhaps the Herald underestimates the number, which is very reprehensible from the standpoint of sensational impressiveness.

In the old days a set of "old fogies" were running the road. "All they knew about the business was to keep the stock up, provide good facilities for the shippers, pay dividends to the stockholders and reduce rates once in a while," he said. "Then came some high efficiency men, headed by Mellen, who did none of the things the 'old fogies' did. After some reckless driving they landed the road in a ditch, and, like most other reckless drivers who land in ditches, they called on the nearest farmer to help them out."

The foregoing remarks were made by W. H. Elliott in the course of a hearing in Boston on the petition of the Boston & Maine railroad to increase its rates on shipments of milk and other things. Right you are, Mr. Elliott.

Chairman Dillon, of the Park Commission, has recommended the following division of the Parkman fund expenditure for the ensuing year: Franklin Park greenhouse, $50,000; walks on Boston Common, $10,000; improvements and maintenance of golf links, $3,000; improvement and maintenance of Fens, $25,000; of bear dens, $3,000; of zoological gardens, $25,000; of Public Gardens, $5,000; of small parks and squares, $30,000; of the Aquarium and Marine Park, $10,000; of the Riverway and Commonwealth avenue, $30,000; total, $191,000. Mr. Dillon advises that the proposed erection of a horticultural building in the Fenway should be postponed in favor of the Franklin Park greenhouse.

Willimantic, Conn.—Many florists have been visiting Willimantic to see how the new carnation Red Wing is behaving in W. A. Dawson's houses. Mr. Dawson says that every one, without a single exception, has placed an order. This sterling scarlet carnation received a certificate of merit from the American Carnation Society. It seems to be exceptionally well fortified with the desirable qualities of a really profitable "cut and come again" variety.

CHICAGO.

Following the hint that fashion has set for corsages of tiny roses the Bud-long greenhouses will contain some of the "Baby Doll" roses this year.

Michael Wiltjen, of Evanston, had the misfortune to lose his greenhouse and barn by fire on March 8, caused by the dumping of ashes too close to the buildings. The loss included also an automobile, two horses and a cow.

Something new was a "seed service" in one of the large local churches March 12. Following an appropriate service, packages of flower seeds were given away and notice given that a floral service would occur when the seeds had produced flowers.

The Woman's Outdoor Art League is sending out its letters offering penny seed packets as in other years. This time wooden window boxes and soil are offered also at very low prices. Special prizes will be given for best results in cultivating plants, etc.

P. J. Foley made a brief business trip east last week. Mr. Foley's two sons, J. P. and P. J., Jr., are both in the business with their father.

Work is under way for the new greenhouses for Geo. Weiland, of Evanston, and they will start erecting about April 1.

It is the opinion in the flower trade that the effect of the lenten season is less each year. A few days after Ash Wednesday the flower demand becomes normal again. Quite a number of social affairs are booked for early April and they call for the use of many flowers.

One of the unique window attractions was that of Geo. Wienhoeber, in honor of St. Patrick's Day. A six-foot frame in the shape of a harp, was carefully mossed and given over to a grower some weeks ago with the result that a harp of real live shamrock was forthcoming this week. The effect is very good.

Only those who placed orders early have been able to get the quantity of shamrocks wanted, for the stock was exhausted nearly a week before St. Patrick's Day. The two principal growers furnished about thirty thousand each. Poehlmann Bros. turned down many orders. The little mailing boxes holding two plants each proved even better sellers than a year ago.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The establishment of an experimental farm near Plainview, Texas, is contemplated in a bill just introduced into the Senate. The sum of $50,000 will be appropriated if the bill is passed. It will be placed under the control of the Secretary of Agriculture.

R. Lloyd Jenkins, of C. L. Jenkins & Son, Suitland, Md., is convalescing after an illness of nearly a month. He was at first thought to be suffering from pneumonia, but later it was found that he had scarlet fever, a very dangerous illness for adults.

NEW YORK.

E. H. Wilson of Boston lectured on Wednesday, March 15, before the Horticultural Society of New York at the Museum of Natural History.

John Lewis Childs had the exciting experience of being on a train returning from California which passed through Columbus, N. M., at the time of the Villa raid on that town. He gives a very vivid circumstantial account of the affair as seen by him, in the New York Herald for March 13.

It is understood that between the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club over $4,000 was raised towards the premium list of the spring show. This seems to prove the wisdom of abandoning the personal guarantee system. The society and club each guaranteed $5,000 and this made the securing of special premiums much easier.

Never before has the New York flower market displayed such a variety of tulips as are seen this season. In past years half a dozen old standard varieties have practically monopolized the market. Now we see such lovely gems as Thomas Moore, Prince of Austria, Brilliant Star (scarlet with black centre) Flamingo, Calypso, DeWet (orange), Cherry (Rose LaReine), Jenny (cherry rose) and others, which have given the tulip market a new life. Even the Darwins are seen here and there and where is there a finer than the beautiful lilac Darwin, William Copeland, which is an early forcer, possible for the third week in January. Most of the foregoing are Van Waveren specialties and it is not surprising, after their success in this market as cut flowers during the present season that the demand for next years' bulbs is very great already.

NEWS NOTES.

Lancaster, Pa.—Mrs. George G. Goldbach has sold her greenhouses on East Orange street to Aaron H. Wisler, of Rossmere, Pa.

Shelburne Fall, Mass.—P. R. Burt, the florist, is tearing down the Lucius Fife greenhouses which he has purchased and will use the parts to increase the capacity of his houses at West Deerfield.

Hartford, Conn.—Considerable damage was done by fire to the greenhouses of James W. Scott, 514 Blue Hill avenue last week. One greenhouse was burned out, the potting shed was destroyed and plants were hurt from exposure.

Mandan, N. D.—The Mandan Flower Club was formerly launched at a meeting held in the Mandan commercial club rooms. Rev. F. W. Thompson acted as chairman. It is expected that the flower show which will be held during the height of the blooming season will arouse much interest, as a contest is planned in which valuable prizes will be awarded.

Obituary

Mrs. John Walsh.

Mrs. W. Walsh, wife of John Walsh, a well-known gardener of Montreal, P. Q., died on March 9.

Josiah B. Shurtleff.

Josiah B. Shurtleff, a widely known market gardener, died on March 8th at his home, 138 Cushman avenue, Revere, Mass., aged 78 years. He was an honorary member of the Boston Market Gardeners' Association. He is survived by one daughter and two sons.

Joseph Henry Burchard

Joseph Henry Burchard, aged 72 years, died on March 8th at his late home, 44 Nursery avenue, Woonsocket, R. I. Up to the time of his illness he was employed at the greenhouses of Drabble Bros., Park avenue. He is survived by his wife and an adopted son.

Asa Eldridge Brown

We regret to announce the death of A. Eldridge Brown, of the W. Atlee Burpee establishment on Thursday, March 9. Mr. Brown was born in New York City on September 29, 1854. In 1882 he accepted a position with W. Atlee Burpee & Company who were then located at 221 Church Street, Philadelphia. After attaining practical experience in the different departments of the business, Mr. Brown was made cashier and this position he occupied up to the time of his death. Mr. Brown had a wide acquaintance among the seed trade and many times represented the firm at the annual conventions of the American Seed Trade Association. He leaves no children, but a widow and a host of friends who mourn his loss.

George L. Freeman.

George L. Freeman, the well-known orchid importer and collector, died suddenly at his home in Fall River, Mass., on Thursday, March 9, following an illness of less than two days. For many years he was deeply interested in the orchid business, having formed two or more companies in Fall River, which did not materialize to any great extent. He was accustomed to go frequently on collecting expeditions to South America. Mr.

Freeman had nearly completed arrangements for another trip and intended to sail March 15. He was born in Wellfleet and was a nephew of L. D. Baker, founder of the United Fruit Co. He is survived by his widow, Catherine J. Freeman, who is at the present time critically ill. The body was taken to Wellfleet, where the Adams Lodge of Masons had charge of the funeral.

Sackville S. Bain.

Sackville S. Bain, florist, of Montreal, who was known throughout Canada as an interpreter of Scotch songs, died on Saturday night, March 10, at his residence in Westmount, P. Q., Canada. He was in his seventy-first year and died of pneumonia after a three weeks' illness.

Mr. Bain was born at Cromarty, Scotland and came to Canada settling in Montreal in 1871 at the age of twenty-six years. He founded the florists' business which still bears his name and later established large nurseries at Verdun, of which town he was once mayor.

He was the originator and leader of the Caledonian Choir, a past president of the Caledonian Society and a member of the St. Andrews' Society. For a quarter of a century he led the children of the Presbyterian churches at their New Year gatherings.

He married Francis S., daughter of the late Col. Aubrey Woolls of Stanstead, Que., in 1874, who survives him with two sons and one daughter. The children are Dyson Bain, in his father's business; Stewart Bain, manager of the Canadian Tungsten Lamp Works, Hamilton, Ont., and Mrs. George Dies, Montreal.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Bad weather has made business in this market very bad although flowers being a little scarce helps out the situation a little and prevents price slaughtering. Carnations have shortened up considerably which tends to make the bulb stock go fairly well. Bulb stock is coming in in large quantity and of good quality. Roses are being received in fair quantity but move slowly. Lilies also move slowly but callas sell well. Sweet peas are over-stocked with the best Spencers selling very cheap.

The market continues CHICAGO to have a very large supply of almost every kind of seasonal stock with the exception of American Beauties and lily of the valley. The Beauty situation varies more or less but, on the whole, it has not been satisfactory for a long time and many think the growing of American Beauties in large quantities has ceased to be a good commercial proposition. Other roses are so plentiful that we are very near a slump at this writing. Trade has been lighter the past week and this refers to shipping as well as local orders. The fad for the little roses continues and they often sell when the larger popular varieties of a couple of years ago are left on the counters. The great quantity of bright colored bulbous flowers is also a factor in the rose question for they meet the demand for spring suggestions and are so very attractive in their various make-ups. Carnations are in very large supply and white ones were in demand for coloring green for St. Patrick's Day, a fancy that still finds a certain amount of favor. There are plenty of lilies and a good variety of miscellaneous flowers to choose from.

The bad storm of the NEW YORK past few days has been a great handicap to business. Traffic has been held up and shipments greatly delayed. Trade is otherwise about as usual for the first week of Lent. There is a heavy supply of bulbous flowers with demand weak. Lily of the valley even is moving slowly. Lilies are exceedingly plentiful and sales are accomplished only at low figures. Roses are of splendid quality, more than enough for absolute needs but not sufficient thus far to make any very serious smash. The same is true of carnations. Violets are listless, only the singles having any chance.

Considering that PHILADELPHIA it was the first week in Lent, business here the past few days has been very good—in fact better than was expected and much better than it has been for the same period in previous years. This may be in part due to a change in the people but not entirely. The cold dark weather has held crops back so that there was no overstock and everything sold out clean at good prices. In the rose market everything sold right up all along the line. There is a scarcity in the longer-stemmed American Beauties but the medium grades are more plentiful. In carnations the demand is good and the cut not extra large so that these also clean up very well. The market on sweet peas is brisk but at rather lower figures on account of increased supply. In orchids there is rather more activity. Cattleya Schroederae is just commencing. The mainstay is still Trianae. Gardenias are of better quality and more of them—prices receding. Lily of the valley rather on the scarce side but for some reason demand has switched on to something else for the time being. Single violets have sold better; the doubles remain a little draggy. Snapdragon has greatly improved in quality and quantity and meets with ready sale. Daffodils, daisies, mignonette, and other minor items are all fine and plentiful and bringing good prices. Double tulips go well but there is a slump and a glut in poor quality singles. White lilac is in splendid form. In greens the only item that seems to have changed recently is the dagger fern, which is scarcer and higher.

The wholesale market ST. LOUIS has been running along as usual the past week. Stock has been coming in quite heavy of late while the demand has not been as good as a few weeks ago. The retailers claim that prices have been too high for this time of the year and especially when stock is coming in so heavily. Sweet peas are in great abundance. Violets are down very low. Roses hold up well in price with no oversupply of late, also carnations are high in price. Lily of the valley is scarce but other bulb stock is in plenty and reasonable in price.

The pre-Easter lull WASHINGTON is on in this locality and wholesalers and commission house men are hard put to move the large quantities of stock which are finding their way into this market. There is no scarcity except of locally-grown orchids and the demand is being taken care of with consignments from other places. Carnations, which have been very scarce, are now in sufficient supply. Violets are going off the market but their passing is not being felt because of the heavy production of sweet peas. The price on the latter has dropped to as low as $5 per thousand. American Beauty roses and gardenias are more plentiful. Large quantities of blooming plants are being offered and the sale is quite good. Greens continue scarce in some lines. Fine lilies are to be had. Some very attractive window displays are to be seen here at this time. The coming of Lent has greatly depressed business and it is only by keeping constantly at it that trade is obtained. These displays as a whole are proving very effective and are coupled with judicious advertising. The retailers are very hopeful of the largest business in the history of the trade during the Easter period.

DURING RECESS.

New York Florists' Club.

About The "Din-Dan"

AND what a thunder it is! Din-Dan? New just hold on we are ahead of our story. It happened this way. There were some of us five of us members of the New York Florists' Club, a cozy back room, having a nice quiet little dinner. The time happened to be such a nice one, as you know, to talk of good and lovely things, which just naturally led up to the Annual Dinner of the Club. Laying down his embroidery with a dull, that our dinner seemed as such a compact to make this dinner a real dinner, the kind you most about. So each and every one took the diamond stick pin from his breast, pocketed his arm and with his signature in blood.

Dinner Dance

Called in the Revised Version: Din-Dan

AND then the expected happened: all the married men insisted that it be a dinner dance—a party, popping, dipping, whirling, swirling dinner dance to music, really interesting.

And as usual, we husbands had to give in to the much married.

But it is not going to be an ordinary dance. That is, let it be! The tables will be all around the sides of the main hall, the main hall. In the center between the main hall and the main hall, you and your partner can trip the light fantastic while we old folks look on.

Lucky Number Dance

To add to the fun of all, we are going to have a lucky number dance. Each couple will have a number. Duplicate numbers will be in a hat and as shown, the couple raised stop dancing. The last couple will be awarded the beautiful silver cup which I and G. Burman Co. generously contributed.

The Dinner Itself

WELL, you know the Baltimore Hotel's reputation for guests, when it comes to please, looking appetizing tables.

That is all we need to say about the dinner part. And, anyway, didn't we sign a compact on that?

Tables will accommodate eight to ten persons. Let your party together.

Tickets

Of course, no such thing as a free lunch. As expected, the price was $10.00 a ticket. Considering how necessary it is to the success of the occasion, the tables are, we really ought to charge more for these tickets, but as a result of our meeting, to them, it has been decided to make the charge $10.00, which seems a round 100, really a pay.

The time is 7 p.m.

The place is Baltimore Hotel.

The day is Saturday, April 8th.

So put on your gladstone bags and come all around for festive friends and help us make this "Din-Dan" one of the happiest of happenings that has ever happened to the members.

BY ORDER DINNER COMMITTEE.

T. B. DeForest, Chairman.

Walter E. Sheridan, Secretary.

Florists' Club of Philadelphia.

The concert of the Florists' Club at Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, on the evening of March 11th was a great success. The Penn Charter Boys, both the glee club and the mandolin club aggregations, to the number of about fifty performers, appeared and gave their best selections. The program

ALUMNI OF THE N. Y. FLORISTS' CLUB.

At a meeting held on Monday, March 13th, the ex-presidents of the New York Florists' Club effected an organization to be known as the Alumni of the New York Florists' Club, in which, at present, only past presidents of the club are eligible to membership. There were but three absentees. Alexander S. Burns, the oldest ex-president and at the present time a member of the club, was chosen president and Joseph A. Manda, secretary and treasurer of the new organization.

The call for the meeting was signed by "the committee," one of which was Frank H. Traendly. Mr. Traendly does not claim the idea originated with him, but grew out of a wish expressed by several ex-presidents to keep alive the memories and traditions of the New York Florists' Club and for social recreation. It is said the idea originated with Patrick O'Mara.

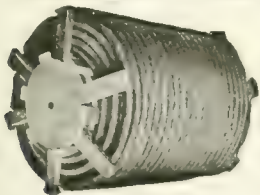

There were present at this meeting, Alex. S. Burns, Patrick O'Mara, Albert Manda, Frank H. Traendly, Chas. H. Totty, John B. Nugent, Walter F. Sheridan, Joseph A. Manda, Harry A. Bunyard and A. L. Miller.

The next meeting will be held prior to the next regular meeting of the club, the second Tuesday in April.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Palisades Nurseries, Inc., Sparkhill, N. Y.—Palisades Popular Perennials. One of the best examples of fine catalogue making we have seen this season, from the standpoint of utility, originality and typographical excellence. Hardy perennials are the leading feature and the lists are extensive and up-to-date. This book will be sure to rivet the attention of the garden maker and hardy plant lover.

Hohn & Olson, The Park Nurseries, St. Paul, Minn.—This is a very handsome work, highly artistic in every feature. Its title, "Creating a Landscape," is well justified in the excellence and appropriateness of the contents. Plants for special places and purposes are fully described and cultural notes, etc., of direct practical application add permanent value to the book. It is educational in its scope and cannot fail to bring a host of patrons within the circle of influence of this enterprising firm. There are several beautiful garden views in natural colors.

A SHREDDED MANURE HUMUS COMPOST

MAGIC HUMUS is a pure plant food unleached and unburnt. Its analysis proves that it contains potash and phosphoric acid. These essentials, together with Compost make a ready soil builder.

MAGIC HUMUS is the one Compost that possesses the body and fibre to absorb and retain nature's moisture a long time after it is put into the ground.

Ordinary commercial fertilizer contains no Humus, cannot spread its fertilizing properties and is only available to the soil in the spot where the material is drilled in.

MAGIC HUMUS spreads itself and enriches the soil all around. It comes to the gardener after months of careful preparation, thoroughly dried by Nature, free from weed seed, without the odor so peculiar to other fertilizers, is sanitary and agreeable to handle.

MAGIC HUMUS can be used on the top of sand or hard ground as a soil, or cultivated into the ground in the garden with a hand cultivator or plow.

The garden receiving a liberal application of MAGIC HUMUS Compost is permanently enriched with plant food and soil.

MASTICA

Mastica is elastic and tenacious, admits of expansion and contraction. Putty becomes hard and brittle. Broken glass more easily removed without breaking of other glass as occurs with hard putty. Lasts longer than putty. Easy to apply.

Dreer's Peerless Glazing Points

For Greenhouses

Drive easy and true, because both bevels are on the same side. Can't twist and break the glass in driving. Galvanized and will not rust. No rights or lefts. The Peerless Glazing Point is patented. No others like it. Order from your dealer or direct from us.

Some Facts On The Side About Our Reconstructed Construction

THE SILL
I T'S start at the bottom with the four-way braced heavy cast iron foot base to which the post is locked. You and I both know that cast iron alone can offer iron or steel, best withstands rust what in the ground. If then we claim that our reconstructed construction is the best construction, then there is nothing to do but back it up by putting the best of materials into it.

At the top of the foot base, there are four steel spikes rusting out at the ground line. It is entirely clear of soil rustings.

THE SILL
The wooden sill, like the wooden post, is made of the best of materials. And looking of eyes, take a look at the wooden sill, you will see the wooden splice plates. There is no iron in the wooden sill, and the wooden splice plates are the only iron in the wooden sill. The wooden sill is made of the best of materials, and the wooden splice plates are the only iron in the wooden sill.

EAVE PLATE

The plate is galvanized angle to which the roof bars are fastened by clasps. Not a little tin, but a good deal of iron. You can have it with or without the Z bar drip gutter. Some don't. If you do, you must admit that our combined eave plate and gutter is a plain, common sense piece of construction.

QUALITY AND SERVICE

To clean our construction would be the simplest of things. It's by no means difficult to build a house to meet a competitor's low figure. Any builder can do that. But it's quite a different matter to manufacture a house of 100 per cent. excellence, and sell it for a price that you feel it's consistent to pay. Anybody can meet a price. To meet it a quality, however, is quite a different matter. This may sound a bit like horn blowing, but is it? If telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, is horn blowing; then we are going to keep right on blowing our horn that way. You know we go anywhere for business; or to talk business.

The New Rose, Mrs. Bayard Thayer

that we are offering this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front since we introduced Mrs. Charles Russell of which the new claimant is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink inside of petals a shade lighter. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society medal over a strong class of competitors at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points.

WABAN ROSE CONSERVATORIES, Natick, Mass.

ROSE GROWERS—You shouldn't be without "PRIMA DONNA" A grand deep pink Rose—darker, better form than the Russell—very fragrant and constant bloomer—always sells at highest American Beauty prices. $15.00 per 100, $125.00 per 1000. Order early.

CARNATION GROWERS "LAURA WEBER" is a most pleasing shade salmon pink—a high-grade bloom, remains strong till Summer, does not fade out, always commands better than the highest market price. You can't go wrong on buying 100 or 250 cuttings, if you don't care to get 1000 or more. Prices, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. First come, first served. Order now.

MUM GROWERS—Here are two most desirable varieties: "ALEX GUTTMAN," a very early lavender pink, comes in bloom middle of September—Exhibition size, foliage not too large—can be planted close, $35.00 per 100; and "EMMA" a garza type anemone double Pompon, light pink—it's a dandy. You will make no mistake by getting these. Comes in about November 15th, stays to December. $15.00 per 100. Plants now ready.

Write us for further particulars. We have more good things coming!

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be promptly received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Care of Ficus

Now is a good time to put in a batch of cuttings. Insert in a 2-inch pot of sand and loam, tie up the leaves so that they can stand close together and plunge the pots in a propagating frame with a bottom heat of 80 degrees and keep moderately moist until they are rooted. They can also be increased by the mossing system. If kept constantly moist, in four or five weeks they will be fit to be cut off and potted. Keep them in a frame where they will have a close heat until well established, when they can be given a temperature of about 65 at night. From this time on pot or shift any of these plants that may require it. A suitable compost is three parts fibrous loam and one part of well-decayed cow manure with a light sprinkling of bone meal. When shifting pick away the drainage and as much of the old soil as possible and pot firmly. Those that you don't shift and are well filled with roots can be grown along without so much root space by giving them weekly doses of manure water.

Easter Trade Suggestions

Good stock, plenty of it and temptingly displayed never fails to attract custom. To be well prepared for a run of good business is very often all sufficient to assure its coming. The buds of lilies should be well forward now. We shall have to do some figuring during the next ten days in moving them around so as to time the blooms to a nicety. The most advanced ones should be removed to cooler quarters while those that are backward should be given some high forcing unless too far behind. The filling of pans, baskets and other receptacles with plants other than bulbous stock should be done ten days before Easter so as to have them in shape. See that the plants are well watered or thoroughly dipped before being made up. A week or ten days before Easter we should have our stock far enough advanced so they can be hardened before they are delivered or shipped.

Keep Palms Growing

Don't keep the glass too densely shaded and guard against an over-stagnant humidity which is only likely to occur at this season of the year and is bound to produce a soft and flabby growth. This is the season when palms make their best growth. By frequent spreading out at intervals from now up to the fall you will help to keep them in good condition. They should not be crowded into closely packed quarters now, while vegetation is so active.

Pandanus Veitchii

Some days quite a brisk fire will be needed to keep the temperature from 65 to 70 degrees at night, whereas other days will need only a little warmth in the pipes. Ventilation to prevent sudden rising or falling of the temperature is important. They will now need some shade during mid-day. Where the plants are pot-bound they would be better for a shift now than later. Give them a compost of three parts turfy loam to one of well rotted manure. These plants will not do well unless they have plenty of drainage. Give them room from time to time so they will not become crowded. They like some bottom heat as long as outside condition will allow. Where plants are showing a lot of suckers put a batch in small pots with a sandy mixture and plunge in a warm propagating bed to root.

Smilax

Smilax will take lots of feeding now both in liquid manure and mulches. About once every month they should have a top-dressing of about an inch of cow manure and new soil in equal parts. Before putting on this mulch give the surface a good sprinkling of bone dust. These plants are very strong feeders. On all good days see that they have a thorough syringing, reaching every part of the foliage, as red spider will be on the rampage from this out. Look the beds over every day for dry places as this is a good starting place for red spider to spread. Give more ventilation now as outside conditions improve.

Outside Work

This has been such a late spring we should let no good day go by without doing the most important work outside, such as pruning and getting frames in order so that in a few weeks we shall be able to give some room in our crowded houses. Making up more hot beds for warm blooded stock, hauling manure to beds and borders, etc., are all in order now.

Carnation Matchless

MR. FARRELL:

Dear Sir—Will you kindly advise me what to do with my carnations Matchless? I planted in July in the ordinary manner, and a bench adjoining of White Wonder are excellent. Matchless refuses to flower profusely up to the present. What flowers mature are fearfully small. The plants are hardy and very green. Does this variety require higher temperature than the other kind? What is the reason of their backwardness? I feed once a week with weak liquid horse manure. Any advice I certainly shall appreciate, as I have seen it in some localities so prolific.

Yours very truly,

New York.

W. D.

In answer to the above it is very hard to say what the matter is. It may be that you propagated rather late and the plants have not had time to grow into full strength. The best growers regard a night temperature of 50 to 52, 10 to 15 degrees higher during sunshine, and during dark or cloudy days 55 to 57 degrees as high enough. Liquid cow or sheep manure are better than that made from horse manure. Give plenty of ventilation as there is nothing better than fresh air to keep the atmosphere of the houses sweet. It may be that your plants are attacked by aphids, thrips or red spider; look them over carefully. There are also quite a few diseases which would retard growth and flowering. The control and prevention of insects and carnation disease depends a whole lot upon ideal cultural conditions from first to last. The successful passing over of the critical periods of the carnation depends largely on correct temperature, ventilation and watering.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur C. Ryzicka

Communications for this column should be sent to the Editor of Horticulture, 1115 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. Communications should be addressed to the office of Horticulture.

Cleaning Up

Although the weather has been very cold all along with plenty of snow to make it look like winter, it cannot last much longer and spring weather will soon be here. The late winter will make a good deal of work and with the rush of work inside there will be little time left to clean up outside. However, a day or two can always be devoted to cleaning, at least the worst of it, letting the rest go until later. The cleaning inside should receive prompt attention, however, and if the houses are not brushed up regularly every week see that all the old leaves, dirt, etc., are cleaned out now for the spring. There will be a great difference in the air of the house and the plants will be just that much better off. It need not take long. If the earth walks have become wet and green, dig them up a little with a pick and give them some screened coal ashes, with a little sand over this if the sand is cheap. Old propagating sand can be used if it is not needed for concrete. It is best to rake the ashes off smooth and then put the sand on after they have been trod down a little so that the sand will remain on top instead of working down into the ashes. If there are any pipes close to or right on the ground in the walks, care should be taken to lift these up for if the ashes came in contact with them they would not last very long. Ashes seem to eat right through the pipes, whether they are galvanized or not. Lime is not very expensive so it will be of great benefit to the plants to scatter a little under the benches after all the old leaves and dirt have been raked out. As fast as the old leaves are raked out and carried outside see that they are spread on the fields and plowed in at once, instead of letting them lie around all summer. Also see that the heaps of leaves that have been picked off the plants in the winter are all hauled away and disposed of. Not only do they make a place unsightly, but these heaps will breed insects which are injurious to roses, as well as fungi which are even more dangerous. Keep the place clean, inside and out, and it will look much more prosperous and will become more so through order, which is absolutely necessary to make any business pay, no matter how small.

Liquid Manure

If no manure is on hand which can be made into liquid, see that some is ordered as early as possible, for it will be necessary to feed the plants quite heavily as soon as the sun comes out to stay. Even with the few sunny days we have had the plants are already showing more vigor and if they are given all the liquid manure they will take the roses that will be cut during May and June will fully pay for the extra trouble. Liquid manure can be mixed as strong as the pumps will take it. We get best results by mixing it a day or two in advance and then letting it stand. With this way we have never had any trouble with stopped pipes or pumps as any coarse material that may have passed through the screens will settle to the bottom and will not be floating around in the tanks ready to get into the suction pipes. When applying it to the benches see that the soil is plenty wet enough, for should it be dry the plants are likely to take the liquid up too quick and some of the leaves are liable to get burned, to say nothing of the roots which will suffer even more. The best way we have found is to water well with clear water first and then follow with liquid applying enough to saturate the soil in the benches without running through too much. This will mean more time taken in doing the work but it will be well done and the saving of liquid manure will amount to something too, as the bill for fertilizers runs up fast enough.

Scratching Around the Plants

Many growers will still insist on scratching around the plants, much the same as they would hoe out in the garden. Now this may be all to the good in the summer before the plants have had a chance to root into all the soil, but as soon as they are of any size, with the soil in the benches pretty well filled with roots, this scratching should be discontinued as it will do far more harm than good. It is all right in the garden where the roots seldom come into the top layer of soil as this is always too dry and hot unless protected by a good mulch, but in the greenhouse where the roots are all confined in a small space this scratching will tear a great many roots all to pieces. Most of the tiny rootlets that supply so much of the food to the plant are right near the surface; in fact they stick right out into the air if the plants are real vigorous. If manure is kept on the benches for these roots to work into the plants will grow much better and they will receive a bad check if the soil around is all scratched up and these little rootlets torn. Even when applying bone meal or tankage see that it is merely rubbed into the surface and not scratched in. There is nothing to be gained by this method, as the soil is soon settled again after the benches are watered once or twice and then the roots will start once more only to be torn up again. Keep mulch on the benches to protect these roots, and stop the scratching. Even when watering see that the water is put on very gently so that all the mulch is not washed away to the center of the benches, leaving the front row with roots all

Watering

The foregoing reminds us of the habit some growers have of watering from one side only, watering across the whole bench. What can be gained we cannot see. It may be all right to water this way a week before a house is torn out, as by using plenty of pressure the water can be applied quicker, but in growing houses which should have the best of care we can only call this method of watering the lazy man's way. It surely is not very much extra work to water from all walks and have it done right. The top roots will not suffer and the mulch will not be piled high on one side of the benches leaving the other side all bare. It will also save mulch to water from all walks, for watering all the way across the bench will knock a good deal of mulch over the edge and into the walks. The only time to water all the way across is when the plants are real dry and then they can be watered from all the walks, watering across the whole bench, which will give the plants water twice, and will make sure that there are no dry spots. In doing this, however, it is best not to use too much pressure, so the surface is not disturbed at all, or very little. When watering on clear days from now on it will not hurt to wet the bottom leaves or the plants themselves providing they are not too dry. If not dry, and the water is allowed to come into contact with the lower portion of the plant it will help soften the wood somewhat and will thus induce them to break from the bottom. On cloudy days it should not be done, however, as it will be better for the plants to be dry, especially in houses that are damp under the benches, or that leak badly. This will apply to all roses, save the Beauty. With these we would rather not wet the foilage except when it is absolutely necessary, as this rose is more apt to get spot than any variety we know of, and with plenty of wood on the plants very little sun will reach the lower part and the result will be that they will not dry off well and in time blackspot is sure to appear.

Supplies for the Summer

Materials for repairs and other supplies such as bone, manure and tobacco, will not be any cheaper later on, and the grower who is wise will figure out his needs now and place his orders so that if anything happens to the supplies while they are traveling, and they happen to be delayed a long time owing to congestion of the railroads or some other trouble, they will still arrive on time. Greenhouse builders will be busier this spring than they have been for a long time, owing to the severe weather, and if there is any lumber, glass, putty, etc., to be bought, order it now, and have it on the place, so that it will be right there when it is wanted. The list should be complete, right down to nails, which by the way have already advanced and will no doubt go up still more as the companies manufacturing these can get other work which is far more profitable.

Saxifraga II

The question whether it is possible in our climate to succeed with the low growing alpine saxifragas, forming dense evergreen tufts of very attractively lobed or clefted small foliage, seems still an open one. For the northern boundary states I have no doubt that the answer will turn out in the affirmative. South of New York my experiences with plantations exposed to the full sun were not encouraging. Placing them on slopes or inclines facing northerly or otherwise shaded by nearby shrubs or trees during midday and the early afternoon hours improves conditions. Plants I kept on trial in favorable situations grew normal at Glenside, Pa., during last summer. With a more thorough study of the particular requirements on our part I believe the American rock garden of the future can be made the display ground of saxifragas. Their bright sheets of myriads of graceful white, pink and red blossoms literally covering the vivid green carpet of foliage beneath, possess a charm of their own. Being at their best during April, May and early June, they greatly add in bringing the total aspect of a rock garden up to a vernal beauty which has no comparison.

Saxifraga Camposi merits our attention for it is the largest flowering early white species. Of the other white representatives in this class recommendable for trying I mention hypnoides, Stansfieldi, muscoïdes and Sternbergi; the latter being the best large flowering late.

According to European reports of recent years the red, pink, and white forms of Saxifraga decipiens rank among the showiest in cultivation. Their usefulness is not limited to rockeries. We see them frequently employed for edging purposes in herbaceous flower gardens. Our illustration, a reproduction of a photograph of the rock garden of George Arends in Ronsdorf, Germany, shows the effect of his latest improved forms of decipiens grandiflora in the foreground of the picture.

While in Maine your correspondent tried Saxifraga Rhei and Rhei superba. The climate being exceptionally favorable the result was a very satisfactory effect from the seedlings in their second year. Rhei flowers very freely, so does Rhei superba. The large sized blossoms of the latter are deep rose-pink and in their abundance extraordinarily showy.

With our native wild mountain denizens alone we shall not be able to produce and maintain the richness in color desirable for the rockery as an occasional feature of refined home grounds. The consequence will be a steadily increasing demand for choice and effective rock garden plants. Our northern growers have the great advantage of favorable climatic conditions. It is now for the wide-awake to study opportunity and in time avail themselves of it.

SPRING EXHIBITION AT BOSTON

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society encountered some pretty rough treatment by the weather man in its well-meant efforts to give the people of Boston an advance treat of spring verdure and floral beauty. With unseasonable low temperatures and snow piled up everywhere during the week it was almost impossible to transport exhibits except in big heated vans. Notwithstanding all this, however, the determination and loyalty of the old stand-by exhibitors was equal to the task and a splendid exhibition was put up, which comfortably filled the three halls in Horticultural Building, and the admiring public did the rest, especially on Sunday, when it is said the attendance numbered 5,000.

Taking up the exceptional things first we would first mention the spacious garden arranged by R. and J. Farquhar & Co., which occupied one end of the large exhibition hall. It was a well-arranged formal garden with a fountain and basin in the centre around which nodded the lovely flowers of Liliun regale, filling the whole area with perfume. The various beds of bright bulbous material were laid out with encircling tan-bark walks and the whole parterre set in a forest of lilacs, tall standard laburnums and wisterias in bloom, great masses of rhododendrons and azaleas, etc. This was awarded a gold medal. The bulb flower display arranged with Phoenix Roebeleni, by Weld Farm, gardener Duncan Finlayson, was the richest in composition, quality and arrangement we can recall having seen here. Many of the newer tulips were here seen. Equally sensational was the great collection of narcissi by A. W. Preston, gard J. L. Smith. Herman Bartsch of the W. W. Edgar Co. was as proud as a peacock over his success in the prize competitions, every prize awarded to him being a 1st, and this including the premier honor on big group of foliage and flowering plants and that for hard wooded greenhouse plants which was on this occasion wrested from the private gardeners—first time on record, we believe. Acacia venticillata and Rhododendron White Pearl were among the outstanding ornaments of the Edgar groups.

The orchids were a prime attraction. Much interest attached to a plant in flower under a glass case, of Sopbro-Cattleya Thwaitesii, which won a first-class certificate of merit, and a specimen plant of Odontioda Bradshawiae bearing a spike of sixty-five flowers, for which a silver medal was awarded. This and the preceding, as well as a superb collection of rare blooms came from C. B. Dane, gard. Donald McKenzie. A first-class certificate was given to a noble collection of varieties of Dendrobium nobile in pots, from Walter Hunnell, gard. T. D. Hatfield. 1st prize for orchard plant group was won by Mrs. C. G. Weld, gard. W. C. Rust. This exhibitor got a first-class certificate for a vase of superb antirrhinums. Calanthe Wm. Murray, shown by Mrs. J. L. Gardner, gard. Wm. Thatcher, made a fine show; long spikes of bloom, white with crimson blotched lip.

PLANT GROUP BY WM. T. WALKER OF SALEM.

Spring Show of Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Of all the novelties shown none impressed us more forcibly as having a splendid commercial future, than the beautiful little Primula malacoides rosea, sent by F. H. Lemon Co., of Richmond, Ind. It received a well-merited certificate of merit. Cineraria stellata made a much greater showing than C. hybrida. This graceful species has taken the lead in these exhibitions each year more and more. Our picture shows a group of plants by W. T. Walke, florist, of Salem, which included some exceptional French hydrangeas, not for competition.

The list of awards in the competitive classes for cinerarias, cyclamen, (always grand in Boston), schizanthuses, ericas, hyacinths, tulips, narcissi, lilies, palms, primulas, etc., was quite lengthy, the names of Weld Garden, Miss Cornelia Warren, Mrs. J. L. Gardner, A. W. Preston, Mrs. C. G. Weld and Mrs. Lester Leland being oft repeated. The special prize offered by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, for ten cyclamen, was won by Mrs. Lester Leland, gard. Eric Wetterlow.

The cut flower section was well represented, especially in the carnation exhibits which were of a very high quality. A. A. Pembroke, Strouts, S. J. Goddard and Mrs. E. K. Farr were the principal exhibitors. Honorable mention was given to S. J. Goddard for carnation Doris, to W. R. Nicholson for seedling No. 51 and F. Dorner & Sons Co., for vase of seedlings. In roses, Waban Conservatories made an unbroken record for 1sts in every class and we never expect to see Killarney Queen in more royal splendor than on this occasion. Wm. Sim had it all his own way with sweet peas, Edward Bingham won 1st in all the violet classes, and Osgood Bros. of Everett showed pansies, in selfs and bronze colors of an unusually fine strain. There were quite a few unusual things shown in the various groups, such as perennial delphiniums and Buddleia magnifica, and T. T. Watt came in with some fine blooms of Moutan peonies. Rhododendron Kaempferi made its first appearance forced in quantity in the plant groups and is evidently "in it to stay."

Henry R. Comley, Caplan, Houghton & Gorney Co. and Boston Cut Flower Co., were represented by other retailers' arrangements. Houghton Gorney Co., were represented by table decorations and other retailers' arrangements. Houghton Gorney Co. showed a bridal bouquet of lily of the valley and Phalaenopsis amabilis which was a gem. The painted wooden parrots and other bird effigies which "adorned" their collection must have been invented by somebody afflicted with a bad case of brain storm. Such things might go in a toy shop, but they have no place in a flower show. The next big show in Boston comes May 10 to 14 and it will be a big one for sure.

MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The concluding lecture in the Horticultural Hall Course of winter lectures on subjects of horticultural interests will be given Saturday, March 25, at two o'clock, by Frank N. Meyer of Washington, D. C. Mr. Meyer is the explorer of the United States Department of Agriculture and will give some of the results of his travels in Northern China and Siberia in search of hardy plants suitable for cultivation in the United States. The lecture is free and will be illustrated by lantern slides.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW

Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2

ALL READY

AND READY TO DO THE HARD and faithful work the greatest horticultural event of the year is ushered in. As the issue of HORTICULTURE reaches its readers in the Flower Show City. The National Flower Show Committee has worked with an earnest purpose, the Philadelphia men have done their best in the herculean task with which they were confronted, HORTICULTURE has tried to help to the fullest extent of its ability and there is nothing left now but "watchful waiting" for the returns upon which so much of the future of progressive horticulture now depends.

We present in the pages of this issue the portraits of some of the men who have been entrusted with the heavy responsibilities of this enterprise. Many others—unassuming but earnest laborers on the committees to which they were assigned—might well be included in this collection of portraits and we only regret that it is not possible for us to portray the features of every one of them. Whatever of success may be attained, let us not forget to give due credit to the private in the ranks.

Directly associated with the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists in this colossal Flower Show of 1916 are the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, American Rose Society, American Carnation Society, Florists' Club of Philadelphia, American Sweet Pea Society, American Gladiolus Society, National Association of Gardeners, American Dahlia Society, Chrysanthemum Society of America and Florists' Telegraph Delivery, and to this list might be added the names of a score or more of floral organizations far and near whose sympathy, influence and cordial wishes are extended for the success of this gigantic undertaking. The roll of honor, comprising the working forces, the guarantors, the contributors of prizes, the trade exhibitors, without whose support financial success would be almost impossible, and many others, is a lengthy and brilliant one representing every section of this great country, as will be seen by perusing the very complete 76 page schedule which Secretary Young has compiled. We hope to be able to tell our readers in the next issue how those $20,000 worth of premiums were distributed and lots of other news which every member of the craft will be eager to know. More we need not say now. Congratulations and good wishes. May every promise be fulfilled and every hope more than realized.

Important Notice—The National Flower Show at Philadelphia will not be open to the public on Sunday. Members of the S. A. F. and all affiliating and co-operative organizations will, however, be admitted on Sunday, but no one else.

"NEW YORK DAY" AT THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Tuesday, March 28.

Philadelphia, quiet city,
Drooping by the sleeping Delaware,
Do you know that we are coming?
Just to wake you, wake you up,
Your quiet, gentle Quaker town

Philadelphia, sister city,
Quaint and sweet as old-time ditty
With your fine old streets
And your old lots
Where the bowing herd collect in vacant lots

Philadelphia, Philadelphia,
How we long to help you!
How we want to roam your streets
From "HONK" and scrambling feet!
Sure we're coming, industrial city,
But you'll be, we're coming
With the biggest bunch that ever made the running.

Rub your eyes, you dozing city,

FLORISTS' CLUB OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

The annual election of officers, the presentation of a remembrance to the retiring president, and the selection of George W. Hess, superintendent of the United States Botanic Gardens, as an honorary member, were among the more important matters transacted at the March meeting of this club. The roster of officers for the ensuing year is as follows: President, R. Lloyd Jenkins; vice-president, Adolph Gude; secretary, Clarence L. Linz; treasurer, William F. Gude. Executive committee: George Field, Adolph Gude, Theodore Diedrich, George H. Cooke, David Bisset and William H. Ernest.

There was a great outburst of enthusiasm evidencing the high esteem in which the members hold their retiring president, when William F. Gude called upon George H. Cooke to accept with the best wishes of the club a handsome sterling silver bread tray contained in a case, and telling him that the sterling silver was emblematical of his personal qualities. "You have ruled us with a rod of iron," said Mr. Gude, "but this was ever tempered by these sterling qualities of which we are all cognizant, and you have always been eminently fair in your dealings with your associates."

So also was Mr. Hess lauded as the man who has done much to further that love of flowers which tends to the betterment of the trade generally. The many things which he has done during the past three years as superintendent of the Gardens were recounted, and it was a rising vote that carried his name to the honorary list, an action not previously taken by the club for many years. Both Mr. Cooke and Mr. Hess responded briefly to the honors conferred upon them.

The larger part of the evening was devoted to talks upon the Philadelphia Flower Show. Plans are under way for the Washington Club to be represented by its bowling team prepared to meet the teams from other cities. Special cars will be furnished by the B. & O. R. R., March 27. Fare $3.40 each way. The club voted to enter a team in the tournament to be held in this city beginning April 3, the team to be captained by William H. Ernest. Very valuable prizes are offered for winners in each event.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The session of this club on Tuesday evening, March 21, was well attended by the members. The announcement that W. H. Judd, of the Arnold Arboretum, would talk on Flowering Shrubs was evidently a drawing card. Previous to the lecture, considerable miscellaneous business was taken care of. The secretary gave out some information relative to the steamer schedules, cost and other details of the proposed visit to Bar Harbor at the time of the Sweet Pea Exhibition next July and it was voted to engage fifty staterooms in advance. An invitation was received and accepted from the W. W. Edgar Company for a visit to their greenhouses to see the Easter plants, on Saturday, April 8. The committee on annual dinner reported a surplus of $19.80 left over and it was voted to transfer this amount to the summer picnic fund. The $50 cup appropriated by the club for an exhibit of cyclamen at the recent spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society having been won by E. Wetterlow, Mr. Wetterlow asked that a gold watch be substituted for the cup, as he already had about forty cups and this very sensible request was duly approved. Thirteen new members were added to the membership roll.

Mr. Judd's address was replete with good, practical notes on the newer shrubs now in cultivation at the Arnold Arboretum, most of which are now sufficiently well introduced to be obtainable at up-to-date nurseries. Starting with the witch hazels in January he showed that blooming shrubs are possible for every month in the year. His descriptions of the outstanding gems of the spring and summer garden were very lucid and showed the love for his vocation which always marks the earnest and successful horticulturist. The audience sat for over an hour deeply absorbed in this very instructive lecture. It was his first attempt to address a meeting, Mr. Judd said, and he was the recipient of many congratulations at the close. He showed an interesting set of dried specimens of the various shrubs described.

The exhibits for the evening consisted of three well-flowered standard specimens of Streptosolon Jamesoni from Mr. Thatcher; three new varieties of tulip from Duncan Finlayson, flower spikes of Celsia Golden Spray from James Methven and a plant of Primula malacoides rosea from F. H. Lemon Co., which was held over from the exhibition of last week. A report of merit was given for the Celsia, which Mr. Methven said was grown from seed sown last August and was a fine plant for conservatory decoration.
